John F. Kennedy To Receive Burial Of Hero In Arlington

JFK Caused War Scare, Castro Says

Cuban Leader Deplores Death Despite Policy

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Fidel Castro expressed disapproval Saturday night of John F. Kennedy's assassination but accused the slain President of having carried the world "to the brink of nuclear war."

The Cuban prime minister told his people by radio and television that despite Kennedy's "hostile policies toward us," the news of his assassination "is grave and bad."

"People feel repugnance to such a slaying because we should not consider this method a correct form of battle," he said.

Castro added in the broadcast heard in Miami: "We Cubans must react as conscientious revolutionaries and not confuse systems with the individual. We fight against systems, not the man."

HOSTILE POLICY

But he said Kennedy's administration and that of his predecessor, Dwight D. Eisenhower, "were characterized by hostile and implacable policies toward us. Cuba was victim of attacks of all kinds that cost blood. Hundreds of our compatriots lost their lives defending against Yankee imperialism."

Castro recalled the unsuccessful 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion and the October 1962 naval blockade of Cuba, and declared nuclear warfare could have resulted.

The broadcast was Cuba's first official reaction to the Kennedy tragedy. The prime minister asserted reactionaries in the United States "are taking advantage (of the assassination) to create a state of anti-Soviet and anti-Cuban hysteria."

In the United States, the Cuban leader said, "there is a strong current of reactionaries, racists," and economic factors that affect policy.

Special Church Services Slated For Twin Cities

By FRANK NOONAN
Church Editor

Most of the churches in the Twin Cities will have special services and prayers today for the nation, the new president, and the family of the late President Kennedy.

All Catholic churches in the Twin Cities will offer requiem masses at all of the regularly scheduled masses today. Requiem masses were held in all of these churches Saturday morning also, and some will be held on Monday.

Virtually all of the protestant churches in this area are planning special sermons and prayers. And Temple B'nai Israel will have special memorial services at 12 noon Monday.

Dr. Clifton Tennison, president of Trenton Baptist Association, said that churches in the association in the west part of Ouachita Parish, will have a special prayer at the close of services this morning for the nation in its time of tragedy.

SIMILAR PLANS

Similar plans were announced by the Rev. Ray Raddin, moderator of the Ouachita Parish Baptist Association, who said, "All of the churches in our association will observe a season of prayer in Sunday morning services for the nation and concerning the tragedy that has occurred.

Many pastors have completely rearranged their plans for services to deal with the tragedy. The Rev. James T. Horton of the First Baptist Church of Monroe said he had prepared a sermon with "a thought alone the lines of some of the realities that this points out to us in this great tragedy."

A message from Louisiana Methodist Bishop Aubrey G. Walton, on a tour of mission stations in Africa, was relayed to area ministers by the Rev. Edward R. Haug, Monroe district superintendent of the Methodist Church, asking special observances today.

The message said:

"In this tragic hour in American history our Methodist peo-

LONG, HECTIC DAY

New President Takes Control

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson, briskly taking command in a long, hectic day of crisis, Saturday night scheduled a high-level conference today on the war in South Viet Nam with Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. Ambassador to Saigon.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and McGeorge Bundy, special presidential assistant on national security affairs, will attend the 3 p.m. EST meeting.

The White House also announced that Johnson will make a major policy speech before a joint session of Congress on Wednesday, after talks with yet unnamed foreign heads of state who will be in Washington Tuesday.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said Johnson would talk with Lodge, McNamara and Rusk about their discussions last week in Honolulu on the progress of the costly anti-Communist war in Viet Nam. Johnson apparently wanted a first-hand account of their views following the overthrow of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem.

SLATES BRIEFING

The new chief executive also scheduled a White House intelligence briefing covering the world situation at about 10 a.m. EST. He and Mrs. Johnson will attend 11 a.m. services at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, after which the President will return to the White House. He will join the cortege that will carry the body of the late President Kennedy to the Capitol to lie in state until Monday morning.

The announcement of a heavy round of duties today capped an exhaustive day for Johnson as he struggled to prepare himself for every facet of the duties

INCRIMINATES OSWALD

Police Pile Up More Evidence

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Police Chief Jesse Curry said Saturday night photographs found in the home of Lee Harvey Oswald's Russian born wife link him with the rifle used in the assassination of President Kennedy.

Curry said the pictures found in the home in suburban Irving, Tex., will be used as evidence in Oswald's murder trial.

He has been charged with murdering the President, killing a Dallas policeman and now with attempting to kill Texas Gov. John B. Connally.

The last charge, assault with intent to murder Connally, was filed Saturday afternoon, the chief said.

STRONGER CASE

"We had this case in good shape this morning and it is even stronger tonight," Curry said.

"We are going to work on this until we have a perfect case," Homicide Capt. Will Fritz said.

Curry said the FBI has a letter, in Oswald's handwriting, ordering the rifle from a mail order house in Chicago. Oswald used an alias and a Dallas post office box number in the letter, he said.

The letter was dated Jan. 30, 1961, when Connally was serving as Kennedy's first secretary of the Navy.

The rifle cost $12.78, Curry said.

"This man killed the President," Fritz said.

In all probability, Curry added, Oswald would not be questioned much more Saturday night. He is to be transferred to the Dallas County Jail—he's now at the city jail—at 10 a.m. today.

Oswald has repeatedly denied any connection with Kennedy's death.

"We have been in this business a long time," Curry said. "After you've talked to a man you can usually tell whether or not he will sign a statement. Oswald has shown no intention of making a statement."

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade is confident of getting the death penalty for Oswald, 24, a man police say is proud of being a Communist.

Curry said Oswald was confronted with the pictures and with other evidence but still protested his innocence. The chief

LATE PRESIDENT'S SON

'No One To Play With Me,' He Says

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A lonely little boy who observes his third birthday Monday wandered through a big Washington house Saturday complaining, "I don't have anyone to play with."

John Fitzgerald Kennedy Jr., says his father was killed by "a bad man." But still he doesn't seem to understand why the slain President is not there to walk the White House corridors with him or why he is not allowed in the presidential offices.

It is different for Caroline Kennedy, to be six years old on Wednesday. Bright beyond her years, she seemed to comprehend death.

The children were told Friday night that their father was dead. The White House did not say who told them, but presumably it was their mother.

Friends said Mrs. Kennedy, not given to public displays of emotion, was making it a point to try to hold up under the strain. They said she "hasn't yet realized completely what has happened."

She has kept a steady vigil with death since she saw her husband fatally wounded in his open car in downtown Dallas Friday afternoon. She cradled him in her arms, his blood splattering over her as she cried, "Oh, no."

Mrs. Kennedy kept a vigil outside the emergency room in the Dallas hospital. On the plane back to Washington, she remained transfixed, staring at the casket in an alcove. She declined to be comforted by those who wanted her to lie down and rest. Those who wanted to sponge her face were turned away gently, with "Thanks, I'm fine."

The 34-year-old widow kept her children by her side Saturday. She took them to the East Room where the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, former president of the University of Notre Dame, said Mass at 10:30 a.m. The children saw the closed bronze casket, flanked by the flickering tall silver candlesticks.

63 Perish As Fire Hits Ohio Home

24 Persons Rescued From Gas Fed Blaze

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—Sixty-three persons perished Saturday in a fire that swept a path of devastation through a nursing home for the aged, infirm and mentally ill. Twenty-four other persons were rescued.

Twelve hours after the fire 62 bodies had been removed to a temporary schoolhouse, and 44 of those had been tentatively identified and two claimed by relatives. Authorities said one more body was being sought in the rubble.

BURNS QUICKLY

The blaze disrupted the 10-year-old Golden Age Nursing Home celebration near Fitchville, 15 miles southeast of here. The one-story concrete building burned quickly, fed by a propane gas tank and tar roofing. A brisk wind fanned the flames.

Harold Carter, state arson inspector, said it will be two or three days before the exact cause can be determined. He fixed the time of the fire's origin at 5 a.m. Gov. James A. Rhodes, who flew to the scene from his Columbus office, ordered a full investigation by the Ohio Highway patrol and the state fire marshal's office.

Carter said the flames had broken through the roof, which he said was of wood construction, at a point near the front door above an electrical entrance.

Amid the stories of horror—elderly persons trapped in their beds, other crippled or too weak to walk and still others crushed by the collapsing roof — two heroes emerged. They were the Good Samaritans who were driving by on U.S. 250 and went into the building to save lives.

Voting Machine Instruction Due

In a vital service to voters of Ouachita parish, the League of Women Voters will sponsor a demonstration on the proper use of the voting machine Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Manhein, president of the league, said the demonstration with a voting machine, like the ones to be used in the December 7 Democratic primary, will be held Monday and Tuesday between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. in the lobby of the courthouse.

"We are urging everyone to come that can, and who wants to know how to operate the machine properly," said Mrs. Manhein.

"If you have any doubt on how to use the machine, you should attend the demonstrations," she said.

Johnson Will Continue Kennedy Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson stressed Saturday that Kennedy administration foreign policy will be continued and asked that all U.S. ambassadors around the world stay on their jobs.

It was understood that the new President wanted Dean Rusk to remain as secretary of state and that this was agreeable to Rusk. High ranking officials under Rusk indicated they, too, intended to stay on.

Rusk was the lead-off Cabinet member on Johnson's appointment list. Afterwards informed sources said the new chief executive made plain his interest in continuity of U. S. foreign policy.

MOUNTING NUMBER

A mounting number of foreign governments were planning to send top representatives to the Kennedy funeral Monday. By late Saturday some 30 nations had informed Washington one or more of their leaders would attend the ceremony.

From a foreign policy standpoint, one of the most important visitors will be French President Charles de Gaulle. The United States and France have been at odds over NATO policy and tactics in dealing with the Reds. A De Gaulle visit in return for Kennedy's 1961 visit to France had been anticipated but had not been carried out.

Johnson expects to spend Tuesday conferring with some of the foreign leaders. Whether De Gaulle will be one of them is not yet known, said White House press secretary Pierre Salinger.

Still, De Gaulle's desire to come to the funeral was appreciated by U.S. authorities as evidence of basic friendship toward the United States. They said his formal visit to this country can come later.

The new British prime minister, Alec Douglas-Home, West Germany's new chancellor Ludwig Erhard and the head of the South Vietnamese military group which overthrew the Diem regime, Gen. Tran Dan Donc, were also in the star-studded list of foreign dignitaries attending the funeral.

From the Communist world, Moscow named First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan as its representative. Other Red countries were sending high-ranking emisaries too.

Johnson's request to U. S. ambassadors to stay on the job was dispatched by the State Department in cables to U. S. embassies around the world as one of the new President's first acts. At Johnson's direction, the department told U. S. mission chiefs the customary letters of resignation submitted when a new president takes office are "not requested or desired."

Some uneasiness has been reported in friendly capitals about the possibility of U.S. policy shifts under the new President. Soviet Premier Khrushchev and other Communist leaders were likewise believed keeping a sharp eye out for any Washington policy changes.

Although Johnson, as vice president, traveled an announced 118,506 statute miles in visiting 33 foreign countries ranging throughout most of the world except South America and the Communist bloc, he has not been regarded as heavily involved in U.S. foreign policy making.

Most of his travels have been goodwill trips, while Kennedy engaged in active direction of foreign policy.

On the record, Johnson's foreign policy utterances have been in line with the Kennedy administration official views.

Temperatures Cool Today

Cold temperatures will continue in the Twin Cities through tonight advises the area weatherman. The generally fair and rather cold weather is expected to last only through today however as Monday's outlook is for partly cloudy skies with temperatures rising a bit.

Saturday' highest mercury reading at FFA. Selmar Field was noted at 5° degrees and the low around 7 p. m. Saturday was recorded at 40 degrees. The expected high today will be 56 to 60 and the low tonight will be between 30 and 34. Monday's highest reading is expected to be from 62 to 66.

Winds in the area today will blow from the north at speeds between 5 to 15 m.p.h.

ANOTHER MAN SLAIN

Policeman's Widow Left Without Funds

DALLAS (UPI)—There is another funeral, another grief-stricken family. Mrs. J. D. Tippitt shares with Jacqueline Kennedy the sorrow of widowhood, for her husband was slain too.

President Kennedy was a man of history and wealth.

J. D. Tippitt, 39, made $490 a month as a policeman to support his wife and three children. He had no insurance. The city provides none.

His careworn widow and their children, Allen, 14; Brenda Kay, 10, and Curtiss Glenn, 5, live in a neat suburban area of medium brick homes on the southern edge of Dallas. She is 36.

"Daddy had just come home for lunch at 11:30 (a.m.). He had a sandwich and some milk before he went back to duty," Mrs. Tippitt said.

"Then the next thing I heard was that he was dead."

Mrs. Tippitt said she "certainly knows" how Mrs. Kenedy feels. She said the slain President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, called her Friday night.

"He said he was calling on behalf of Mrs. Kennedy," Mrs. Tippitt said. "He expressed their sympathy and sorrow over our loss. I told him to express my concern to Mrs. Kennedy and tell her I certainly know how she feels."

Mrs. Tippitt said she was grateful for the thoughtfulness of the Kennedys in calling their concern.

Mrs. Tippitt's neat, three-bedroom brick home was filled with friends and relatives. Food in abundance was spread over tables and the kitchen sink. Her children, surrounded by friends, were eating lunch quietly.

"I just don't know how we'll get along without him," Mrs. Tippitt said of her slain husband. "He was such a good man — he was so good to the children. . ."

Monday Set As National Mourn Day

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John Fitzgerald Kennedy, mourned by high and low alike, will be given a hero's burial Monday in Arlington National Cemetery following a Pontifical Requiem Mass at noon.

WISHES PRAYERS

The new President also appealed to the American people to assemble in their churches Monday for prayer, and invited all people anywhere who share this nation's grief to join in the day of mourning.

A little later the White House announced that the family of the slain President had decided on interment in the military cemetery in Virginia just across the Potomac River from the nation's capital.

As commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces, John F. Kennedy held abundant right to a grave in the honored military cemetery.

But he was a war hero as well, having recovered from a serious wound as a Navy lieutenant in World War II only to be struck down on a Dallas, Tex., street by a sniper's bullets.

As leaders of the world converged on the capital to pay homage, hundreds of people ranging from the family to the late President's most bitter political foes filed slowly past his bire in the black draped East Room of the White House.

First came Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, widowed by a sniper's bullet at 34, and members of the immediate family. Then President Johnson and his wife, accompanied by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and afterwards high government officials.

Among them were two of the late president's most intense civil rights opponents, Govs. Ross Barnett of Mississippi and George C. Wallace of Alabama. Wallace said the death of the man whose policies he denounced "transcends all politics."

A mounting number of foreign governments were planning to send top representatives to the Kennedy funeral Monday. By late Saturday some 30 nations had informed Washington one or more of their leaders would attend the ceremony.

From a foreign policy standpoint, one of the most important visitors will be French President Charles de Gaulle. The United States and France have been at odds over NATO policy and tactics in dealing with the Reds. A De Gaulle visit in return for Kennedy's 1961 visit to France had been anticipated but had not been carried out.

Johnson expects to spend Tuesday conferring with some of the foreign leaders. Whether De Gaulle will be one of them is not yet known, said White House press secretary Pierre Salinger.

Still, De Gaulle's desire to come to the funeral was appreciated by U.S. authorities as evidence of basic friendship toward the United States. They said his formal visit to this country can come later.

The new British prime minister, Alec Douglas-Home, West Germany's new chancellor Ludwig Erhard and the head of the South Vietnamese military group which overthrew the Diem regime, Gen. Tran Dan Donc, were also in the star-studded list of foreign dignitaries attending the funeral.

From the Communist world. Moscow named First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan as its representative. Other Red countries were sending high-ranking emisaries too.

Johnson's request to U. S. ambassadors to stay on the job was dispatched by the State Department in cables to U. S. embassies around the world as one of the new President's first acts. At Johnson's direction, the department told U. S. mission chiefs the customary letters of resignation submitted when a new president takes office are "not requested or desired."

Some uneasiness has been reported in friendly capitals about the possibility of U.S. policy shifts under the new President. Soviet Premier Khrushchev and other Communist leaders were likewise believed keeping a sharp eye out for any Washington policy changes.

Although Johnson, as vice president, traveled an announced 118,506 statute miles in visiting 33 foreign countries ranging throughout most of the world except South America and the Communist bloc, he has not been regarded as heavily involved in U.S. foreign policy making.

Most of his travels have been goodwill trips, while Kennedy engaged in active direction of foreign policy.

On the record, Johnson's foreign policy utterances have been in line with the Kennedy administration official views.

ANOTHER MAN SLAIN

Policeman's Widow Left Without Funds

DALLAS (UPI)—There is another funeral, another grief-stricken family. Mrs. J. D. Tippitt shares with Jacqueline Kennedy the sorrow of widowhood, for her husband was slain too.

President Kennedy was a man of history and wealth.

J. D. Tippitt, 39, made $490 a month as a policeman to support his wife and three children. He had no insurance. The city provides none.

His careworn widow and their children, Allen, 14; Brenda Kay, 10, and Curtiss Glenn, 5, live in a neat suburban area of medium brick homes on the southern edge of Dallas. She is 36.

"Daddy had just come home for lunch at 11:30 (a.m.). He had a sandwich and some milk before he went back to duty," Mrs. Tippitt said.

"Then the next thing I heard was that he was dead."

Mrs. Tippitt said she "certainly knows" how Mrs. Kenedy feels. She said the slain President's brother, Atty, Gen. Robert Kennedy, called her Friday night.

"He said he was calling on behalf of Mrs. Kennedy," Mrs. Tippitt said. "He expressed their sympathy and sorrow over our loss. I told him to express my concern to Mrs. Kennedy and tell her I certainly know how she feels."

Mrs. Tippitt said she was grateful for the thoughtfulness of the Kennedys in calling their concern.

Mrs. Tippitt's neat, three-bedroom brick home was filled with friends and relatives. Food in abundance was spread over tables and the kitchen sink. Her children, surrounded by friends, were eating lunch quietly.

"I just don't know how we'll get along without him," Mrs. Tippitt said of her slain husband. "He was such a good man — he was so good to the children. . ."

Monday Set As National Mourn Day

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John Fitzgerald Kennedy, mourned by high and low alike, will be given a hero's burial Monday in Arlington National Cemetery following a Pontifical Requiem Mass at noon.

WISHES PRAYERS

The new President also appealed to the American people to assemble in their churches Monday for prayer, and invited all people anywhere who share this nation's grief to join in the day of mourning.

A little later the White House announced that the family of the slain President had decided on interment in the military cemetery in Virginia just across the Potomac River from the nation's capital.

As commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces, John F. Kennedy held abundant right to a grave in the honored military cemetery.

But he was a war hero as well, having recovered from a serious wound as a Navy lieutenant in World War II only to be struck down on a Dallas, Tex., street by a sniper's bullets.

As leaders of the world converged on the capital to pay homage, hundreds of people ranging from the family to the late President's most bitter political foes filed slowly past his bire in the black draped East Room of the White House.

First came Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, widowed by a sniper's bullet at 34, and members of the immediate family. Then President Johnson and his wife, accompanied by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and afterwards high government officials.

Among them were two of the late president's most intense civil rights opponents, Govs. Ross Barnett of Mississippi and George C. Wallace of Alabama. Wallace said the death of the man whose policies he denounced "transcends all politics."

Many Problems Face New First Lady Of The Land

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even in her sorrow, Jacqueline Kennedy has thought of the problems facing a new First Lady and offered to help.

When Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson saw Mrs. Kennedy at the White House on Saturday morning, Mrs. Kennedy told her she would be glad to help in any way she possibly could.

Mrs. Johnson spent about 30 minutes with Mrs. Kennedy, the White House press office said.

Mrs. Johnson then went back to her home in northwest Washington.

No statements have been made about when the Johnsons will move to the White House.

She also went with her husband, the President, to St. John's Episcopal church across Lafayette Square from the White House.

There, the rector, the Rev. John C. Harper, read excerpts from the Episcopal prayerbook at a special service which Johnson had requested.

About 100 people were at the services, which had not been announced.

From the church, Mrs. Johnson returned home about 1 p.m.

The press office said, "She's just trying to get caught up on some matters which have to be taken care of at the house."

Hundreds and hundreds of telegrams have arrived.

Mrs. Johnson was to stay Saturday night in the big French chateau-like home on a hill in the Spring Valley section.

A detail of 15 policemen kept guard around the extensive grounds, and Secret Service men stood at the closed wrought iron gates to the driveway.

The older, Lynda, 19, a sophomore at the University of Texas in Austin, will not come here at this time, the press office said. Neither will the young Navy ensign, Bernard Rosenbach, to whom she is engaged.

Friday, she went to the governor's office in Austin to be with the children of Texas Gov. John B. Connally, who was wounded during the assassination of President Kennedy.

The nation's new first lady — Lady Bird Johnson — will carry a strong Alabama heritage into the White House.

Her parents, Thomas Jefferson Taylor and Minnie Lee Pattillo, were reared and married in Alabama before moving to Texas.

Mrs. Johnson moved back here after her mother died when she was only five.

Until she was nearly a woman, she lived with relatives in Montgomery, and Billingsley in Autauga County.

She has close ties here. Many of her relatives live in this area, and she owns 2,900 acres of plantation land in Autauga and Chilton Counties.

Born Claudia Alta Taylor, she is known universally as Lady Bird. The name was tacked on her early in life by a Negro maid.

Her mother's family, the Pattillos of Bilingsley and Selma, were and are wealthy landowners and merchants.

According to published reports, Mrs. Johnson has a fortune of her own amounting to as much as $3 million. She owns and operates a string of radio stations in Texas.

Attractive and vivacious, the new first lady is the mother of two beautiful daughters, Lynda Bird and Lucia Baines. Her husband has been quoted as saying:

"Lady Bird's the smart one in our family. She knows how to make money and she's a real politician."

Earlier, Johnson won pledges of unity and support from the nation's top government, business and labor leaders in the troubled weeks ahead.

The assurances were received by telephone and at Johnson's first cabinet meeting at the White House. The half hour cabinet session came a little more than 24 hours after an assassin's bullet felled his predecessor, John F. Kennedy, in Dallas, Tex.

At the end of the most momentous day in Johnson's 55 years, the White House announced he would address the House and Senate at 12:30 p.m. EST on Wednesday.

Informed sources said Johnson would spend most of Tuesday reviewing policy papers and conferring with some of the Allied chiefs of state who will remain in Washington after Kennedy's funeral on Monday.

The dignitaries will include French President Charles de Gaulle, British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and others from around the world. The White House said it could not report at this time which leaders would see Johnson.

Johnson opened his mid-afternoon Cabinet session with a minute of silent prayer for Kennedy, whose body lay in a closed casket in the nearby East Room, where a parade of sorrowing dignitaries paid their final respects.

Pledged Cabinet's Support

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said Johnson told the Kennedy-appointed Cabinet officers, including Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, that "he needed their help in the time ahead."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Adlai Stevenson, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, pledged the Cabinet's support and assured Johnson they were ready to serve as long as he needed them.

Earlier in the day, Salinger said, the President received similar pledges by telephone from AFL-CIO President George Meany, representing organized U.S. labor, and Frederick Kappel, president of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., representing the nation's business leaders.

"The President stressed the need at this time for united effort by every segment of our country," Salinger said. Both Meany and Kappel pledged their support, he added.

As a gray, dreary rain swept Washington, Johnson plunged into a strenuous round of conferences with other top aides, pausing in the gloom of the nation's grief to pay tribute to the memory of "a great and good man," his slain predecessor.

He consoled Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy and her two children at the White House, and greeted two saddened former presidents, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman. He also took his wife, Lady Bird, to a special prayer service near the White House.

Johnson proclaimed Monday as a national day of mourning for the martyred Kennedy. Federal offices across the land will be closed that day, the day of Kennedy's funeral. He also asked all U.S. ambassadors overseas to remain at their posts and forego the custom of handing in of their resignations to a new president.

Between visitors and hurried conferences, Johnson conferred by telephone with FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover on the progress of the assassination case in Dallas. He also telephoned the widow of Dallas patrolman J. D. Tippitt, who was slain in the post-assassination manhunt, and former Pennsylvania Gov. David Lawrence.

Early in the day, Johnson met in his old vice presidential office near the White House with Rusk and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, and was briefed by top intelligence aides.

Johnson viewed Kennedy's flag-draped casket with Eisenhower and other high officials, and then took the former GOP president back to his old office for lunch. He arranged for Eisenhower to get an up-to-date briefing on world trouble spots from McGeorge Bundy, special White House assistant for national security affairs.

In proclaiming a national day of mourning, Johnson said Kennedy "has been taken from us by an act which outrages decent men everywhere."

The new President invited the world to join the American people in mourning on Monday. He asked Americans to assemble in their places of worship, "there to bow down in submission to the will of almight God, and to pay their homage of love and reverence to the memory of a great and good man."

Oppressive reminders of the tragic event that catapulted him into office came to Johnson throughout the day as he coped with the urgent demands of his task as President.

Shortly after 11 a.m., he and Mrs. Johnson joined former President Eisenhower in the black-draped East Room of the White House to view Kennedy's body. Afterwards, the President and First Lady went upstairs to spend 20 minutes with Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy and her two children, Caroline and John Jr.

After a lunch with Eisenhower at Johnson's old office next to the White House, the new President and his wife attended special services at St. John's Episcopal Church, the "Church of the Presidents" across Lafayette Square facing the White House.

The day ,the most momentous in Johnson's 5 years, began at daybreak in his elegant spring valley home in northwest Washington. Johnson apparently rose early, probably after very little sleep, for the house lights were on when dawn broke.

Wearing a black suit and black, yellow - striped tie, the President left home at 8:45 a.m. in a black limousine accompanied by five unidentified men. The car was preceded and followed by five motorcycle policemen and two Secret Service cars during the five mile drive to the White House.

New President Takes Control

Earlier, Johnson won pledges of unity and support from the nation's top government, business and labor leaders in the troubled weeks ahead.

The assurances were received by telephone and at Johnson's first cabinet meeting at the White House. The half-hour cabinet session came a little more than 24 hours after an assassin's bullet felled his predecessor, John F. Kennedy, in Dallas, Tex.

At the end of the most momentous day in Johnson's 55 years, the White House announced he would address the House and Senate at 12:30 p.m. EST on Wednesday.

Informed sources said Johnson would spend most of Tuesday reviewing policy papers and conferring with some of the Allied chiefs of state who will remain in Washington after Kennedy's funeral on Monday.

The dignitaries will include French President Charles de Gaulle, British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and others from around the world. The White House said it could not report at this time which leaders would see Johnson.

Johnson opened his mid-afternoon Cabinet session with a minute of silent prayer for Kennedy, whose body lay in a closed casket in the nearby East Room, where a parade of sorrowing dignitaries paid their final respects.

Pledged Cabinet's Support

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said Johnson told the Kennedy-appointed Cabinet officers, including Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, that "he needed their help in the time ahead."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Adlai Stevenson, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, pledged the Cabinet's support and assured Johnson they were ready to serve as long as he needed them.

Earlier in the day, Salinger said, the President received similar pledges by telephone from AFL-CIO President George Meany, representing organized U.S. labor, and Frederick Kappel, president of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., representing the nation's business leaders.

"The President stressed the need at this time for united effort by every segment of our country," Salinger said. Both Meany and Kappel pledged their support, he added.

As a gray, dreary rain swept Washington, Johnson plunged into a strenuous round of conferences with other top aides, pausing in the gloom of the nation's grief to pay tribute to the memory of "a great and good man," his slain predecessor.

He consoled Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy and her two children at the White House, and greeted two saddened former presidents, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman. He also took his wife, Lady Bird, to a special prayer service near the White House.

Johnson proclaimed Monday as a national day of mourning for the martyred Kennedy. Federal offices across the land will be closed that day, the day of Kennedy's funeral. He also asked all U.S. ambassadors overseas to remain at their posts and forego the custom of handing in of their resignations to a new president.

Between visitors and hurried conferences, Johnson conferred by telephone with FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover on the progress of the assassination case in Dallas. He also telephoned the widow of Dallas patrolman J. D. Tippitt, who was slain in the post-assassination manhunt, and former Pennsylvania Gov. David Lawrence.

Early in the day, Johnson met in his old vice presidential office near the White House with Rusk and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, and was briefed by top intelligence aides.

Johnson viewed Kennedy's flag-draped casket with Eisenhower and other high officials, and then took the former GOP president back to his old office for lunch. He arranged for Eisenhower to get an up-to-date briefing on world trouble spots from McGeorge Bundy, special White House assistant for national security affairs.

In proclaiming a national day of mourning, Johnson said Kennedy "has been taken from us by an act which outrages decent men everywhere."

The new President invited the world to join the American people in mourning on Monday. He asked Americans to assemble in their places of worship, "there to bow down in submission to the will of almight God, and to pay their homage of love and reverence to the memory of a great and good man."

Oppressive reminders of the tragic event that catapulted him into office came to Johnson throughout the day as he coped with the urgent demands of his task as President.

Shortly after 11 a.m., he and Mrs. Johnson joined former President Eisenhower in the black-draped East Room of the White House to view Kennedy's body. Afterwards, the President and First Lady went upstairs to spend 20 minutes with Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy and her two children, Caroline and John Jr.

After a lunch with Eisenhower at Johnson's old office next to the White House, the new President and his wife attended special services at St. John's Episcopal Church, the "Church of the Presidents" across Lafayette Square facing the White House.

The day ,the most momentous in Johnson's 5 years, began at daybreak in his elegant spring valley home in northwest Washington. Johnson apparently rose early, probably after very little sleep, for the house lights were on when dawn broke.

Wearing a black suit and black, yellow - striped tie, the President left home at 8:45 a.m. in a black limousine accompanied by five unidentified men. The car was preceded and followed by five motorcycle policemen and two Secret Service cars during the five mile drive to the White House.

Reds Claim U.S. Rightists Casting Blame

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow radio charged Saturday night that rightist elements in America are attempting to cast the blame for President Kennedy's assassination on the Communists.

The radio said: "Serious observers do not believe the police version about the responsibility of leftist elements for the assassination and wait for further their results of the invstigation."

The radio commentary on the arrest of Lee Harvard Oswald, an avowed Marxist and former defector of the Soviet Union, stated: "The head of the Dallas police said that Oswald allegedly admitted that he was a member of the Communist party, but the more details and announcements are made, the more suspicious and dark this case appears."

It said that Oswald was charged with Kennedy's slaying after 10 hours of interrogation, "but there was no evidence which could prove this accusation."

"The police are trying to involve the Communist party of the United States in the assassination of the President," it said.

For the first time Saturday the Soviet news report mentioned that Oswald "allegedly was in the Soviet Union."

The young ex-Marine defected to the Soviet Union in 1959 but returned home in 1962 with a Russian wife and a baby daughter.

Moscow radio commentator Valentin Zorin countered charges that Kennedy was a victim of a leftist fanatic by saying: "Those who know how the security of President Kennedy is organized, know that it is not possible for a fanatic to commit such an assassination."

Hearing To Set Beckwith Trial Slated Monday

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — A twice-postponed hearing to set a trial date for the accused killer of Negro leader Medgar Evers is scheduled here again in circuit court next week.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Garland Lyell said a mandate from the state supreme court was mailed Saturday, paving the way for Byron de la Beckwith to be transferred from a Rankin County jail to Jackson.

The hearing is set for Monday, but there is a possibility it might be postponed for a third time because of President Kennedy's funeral.

LEE HARVEY Oswald, surrounded by detectives, is led down a corridor of the Dallas police station today for another round of questioning about the assassinatin yesterday of President Kennedy. He was formerly charged with murder just before midnight last night. (AP Wirephoto)

Background Given On Accused Man

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—He was a loner and kept pretty much to himself all his life. He held radical views but wasn't regarded as a troublemaker. Deep within, his inverted personality became imbued in early youth with an alien ideology, enunciated a century ago by Krl Marx.

This was the portrait that emerged Saturday of Lee Harvey Oswald, 24, accused of the assassination Friday of President John F. Kennedy.

Dallas Police Chief Jesse Curry said Oswald has "readily admitted he is a Communist."

"Apparently he was proud of being a Communist," Curry added. "He didn't try to hide it."

Although formally charged with the murder of Kennedy, Oswald has withstood all efforts by authorities to gain any admission from him of any kind in the assassination.

He has told newsmen, "I did not kill President Kennedy. I did not kill anyone."

Oswald is 5 feet 9, weighs 160 pounds. He has a firm jaw, regular features, straight black hair. He was described as cool and defiant — even arrogant at times — under questioning. But he can smile easily.

What kind of a man was Oswald before his arrest.

He was born in New Orleans, La., Oct. 17, 1939, and said later:

"My father died before I was born."

His widowed mother brought her family to Fort Worth and set about at a variety of jobs to support three sons.

Mrs. Howard Green, wife of a Texas State representative, taught Oswald in the sixth grade of Forth Worth's Ridgely Elementary school. His grades were below average and her description of him from her memory was "in introvert, bookish, a loner."

A Fort Worth policeman asking that his name not be used, said he knew Oswald from fifth grade until his entry into Arlington Heights High School in Fort Worth.

The former classmate recalled, "He was always opposed to any kind of discipline. He seemed to hold it against people up there—any authority. He never was like any other kid. He didn't associate hardly at all, but he wasn't a trouble maker. He talked a good bit in high school about how things should be."

"It's supposed to be a free country, a man's supposed to be able to do what he wants."

However vocally Oswald expressed his belief in freedom, by his own admission his conversion to communism already was well along.

He said he became interested in Marxism at the age of 15, when a Communist pamphlet fell into his hands. Later, he discovered Marx's "Das Kapital," the bible of communism.

At the age of 17, Oswald withdrew from school 23 days after starting in high school. He promptly joined the Marines.

His military career was not a success. Twice he faced courts-martial for infractions of regulations. His occupation specialty was electronics operator. He served overseas in Japan but never rose above the rank of private first class.

A man who served with him, Allen D. Gray, Buffalo, N. Y., said, "He was a lonely, introverted, aloof boy. He was bitter about the tough time his mother had during the depression."

Oswald's Marine career ended Sept. 11, 1959 when he was released from active duty to aid in the support of his mother. He was put in the inactive reserve but later received an undesirable discharged.

A month later, Oswald was in Moscow. On Oct. 30, 1959, he appeared at the American Embassy where he announced his decision to renounce his American citizenship.

He told officials, "I am a Marxist."

Later, Oswald was quoted in an interview as saying, "Capitalism has passed its peak. I would like to spend the rest of my life here."

State Department officials said that their records show that on Nov. 2, 1959, in Moscow, Oswald turned in his American passport and in an affidavit declared, "I affirm that my allegiance is to the Soviet Socialistic Republic."

Oswald married a Russian girl, Marina Nicholaevna, an attractive, petite blonde who worked in a hospital in Minsk. She was pregnant with their first child when in January, 1962, Oswald wrote to Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., as disenchantment set in.

The defector pleaded:

"Since July 20, 1960, I have unsuccessfully applied for a Soviet exit visa to leave this country. The Soviets refused to permit me and my Soviet wife to leave the Soviet Union. I am a citizen of the United States of America and I beseech you, Sen. Tower, to rise (sic) a question of holding by the Soviet Union of a citizen of the United States against his will and expressed desire."

Tower's office referred the letter to the State Department and in February, 1962, it was decided after a review that Oswald never had actually achieved Soviet citizenship. Therefore he was given a passport and provided with the customary loan available to Americans stranded aboard — in this case $435. It is not clear whether the money ever was repaid.

Back in this country, Oswald turned up in his native New Orleans where last June 25 he reportedly applied for a passport to return to Europe and the Soviet Union.

Meanwhile, he became involved in a dispute with an anti-Castro Cuban, Carlos Bringuier, who said:

"He offered himself as a former Marine to train Cubans for an invasion. I was suspicious of him from the start. Frankly, I thought he might be an agent from the FBI or the CIA trying to find out what we might be up to.

"Then a few days later, I encountered him on Canal Street distributing 'Viva Castro' literature. We took all his propaganda away from him. Then the police came and arrested the lot of u."

Oswald appeared on a radio program in New Orleans in which he described himself as a Marxist but not a Communist. However, Dallas Police Chief Curry said:

"Actually, Oswald has never drawn any distinction between the two."

The House Committee on Un-American Activities lists Owwald in its records as secretary of the New Orleans chapter of a group called "Fair Play for Cuba."

In Buffalo, N.Y., however V. T. Lee, national director of the Fair Play for Cuba organization said:

"We have never issued a charter in that area. I don't know if Oswald is a member. He could be. There is no one, however, named Oswald who is an official of the committee anywere in the United States."

On Sept. 26, President Kennedy's plans for a visit to Dallas were announced. A few days later, Oswald got a job at the Texas school book depository as a temporary warehouse worker.

The man who hired him R. S. Truly, said, "He was a pretty quiet individual. His work was fine and I had no reason to believe—no idea the man had ever been in Russia. He was very quiet with nice manners and a nice appearance."

On Oct. 14, with just a satchel and a few clothes on coathangers in his possession, Oswald rented an $8-a-week room from Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Johnson on Dallas' North Beckley Street.

It was a barren 5 by 12 foot room, devoid of pictures, furnished with a small stand, an ancient dresser and a small clothesholder. The walls were painted baby blue. White curtains covered the windows. Two throw rugs were on the floor.

KENNON -- A NATIONAL NEED

With the whole of the United States engulfed in a wave of Socialism (a first cousin of Communism) and Government based on ideology and all the "isms," Louisiana and the U. S. A. need men dedicated to the true American way of life and Government based on the U. S. Constitution.

In the Governor's race in Louisiana is that kind of man, former Governor Robert F. Kennon. For the past 10 or 12 years he has advocated a return to Government based on the Constitution and not on ideologies and "isms." He did not become an overnight convert after entering the race for Governor; it is not a fly-by-night decision with him. He has lived it and preached it for the past decade or more.

GOVERNMENT STUNNED

President Begins Picking Up Pieces

WASHINGTON (AP)—As rain dripped on a grief-stricken capital, President Johnson began Saturday to set back in motion a government stunned to a standstill by the tragic slaying of John F. Kennedy.

For the solemn-faced Johnson it was a day of split-second attention to affairs of state, among them the designation of Monday as a national day of mourning for his fallen chief. The 36th President found time, too, to call on Mrs. Kennedy and to attend with Mrs. Johnson a brief special service at St. John's Episcopal church.

There, around a little table in front of the desk he has been using since he moved in as vice president in January 1961, Johnson was brought up to date on international problems by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and on military matters by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Congressional leaders, called in on short notice, went over the legislative situation.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower called for a private conference with Johnson and the two chatted for about 15 minutes.

An aura of grief pervaded the place. The participants were grim and close-mouthed as they arrived and departed.

An early morning drizzle had temporarily ended—it quickened later in the day to a steady downpour — when the wrought iron gates of the Johnson estate in northwest Washington swung open at 8:45 a.m. Johnson's black limousine rolled through, the new President seated in a corner of a back seat, looking as if he had not rested much.

Ten minutes later he was at the White House for his first official business in the oval room of presidents—a conference with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the slain President. The subject was not disclosed.

Johnson went then to the map-bedecked "situation room," where the nation's security affairs are screened, for a briefing by Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency.

A few minutes later, Johnson crossed the narrow street to the west of the executive mansion and launched the series of meetings with Rusk, McNamara and congressional leaders.

Then, accompanied by the new First Lady, Lady Bird Johnson, the President made an umbrella-protected dash through a pouring rain back to the White House to greet Eisenhower. Together the two men visited the East Room where the late President lay in repose.

GOVERNMENT STUNNED

President Begins Picking Up Pieces

WASHINGTON (AP)—As rain dripped on a grief-stricken capital, President Johnson began Saturday to set back in motion a government stunned to a standstill by the tragic slaying of John F. Kennedy.

For the solemn-faced Johnson it was a day of split-second attention to affairs of state, among them the designation of Monday as a national day of mourning for his fallen chief. The 36th President found time, too, to call on Mrs. Kennedy and to attend with Mrs. Johnson a brief special service at St. John's Episcopal church.

There, around a little table in front of the desk he has been using since he moved in as vice president in January 1961, Johnson was brought up to date on international problems by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and on military matters by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Congressional leaders, called in on short notice, went over the legislative situation.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower called for a private conference with Johnson and the two chatted for about 15 minutes.

An aura of grief pervaded the place. The participants were grim and close-mouthed as they arrived and departed.

An early morning drizzle had temporarily ended—it quickened later in the day to a steady downpour — when the wrought iron gates of the Johnson estate in northwest Washington swung open at 8:45 a.m. Johnson's black limousine rolled through, the new President seated in a corner of a back seat, looking as if he had not rested much.

Ten minutes later he was at the White House for his first official business in the oval room of presidents—a conference with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the slain President. The subject was not disclosed.

Johnson went then to the map-bedecked "situation room," where the nation's security affairs are screened, for a briefing by Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency.

A few minutes later, Johnson crossed the narrow street to the west of the executive mansion and launched the series of meetings with Rusk, McNamara and congressional leaders.

Then, accompanied by the new First Lady, Lady Bird Johnson, the President made an umbrella-protected dash through a pouring rain back to the White House to greet Eisenhower. Together the two men visited the East Room where the late President lay in repose.

Viet Cong Steps Up Pace

TEN HIEP, South Viet Nam (AP)—The pace of Communist guerrilla attacks has risen swiftly on this battlefield of canals and rice paddy fields only 40 miles north of Saigon.

One after another, eight government outposts were hit Thursday. The Viet Cong guerrillas captured large numbers of U. S. - supplied weapons, killed defenders and drove many others into the paddy fields.

The Viet Cong moved almost to the gates of Mytho, headquarters of the Vietnamese 7th Division. This forced the 7th to strike out from the normally quiet town and disperse the guerrillas, "to give us some elbow room," as a U. S. military adviser put it.

So hot is the action that U. S. armed helicopters have had to double as flying ambulances to bring out the wounded. Helicopters are averaging eight flying hours a day, far more than ever before.

The Viet Cong's object appears to be to discredit the military regime that toppled President Ngo Dinh Diem. The tempo of guerrilla attacks has been rising ever since he was overthrown Nov. 1.

An American spokesman announced in Saigon Saturday that South Vietnamese government forces lost 641 men killed, wounded or captured in the week just closed. He put losses of the Communist guerrillas in the same period at 639.

5 Killed After Attending Funeral

NATCHEZ, Miss. (Special) — Five Negroes returning from a funeral were killed instantly Saturday afternoon when their car slammed into an Illinois Central freight train at a crossing about nine miles north of here on U.S. Hwy. 65.

They were identified as Richard Tillery, 58, driver, Natchez; Robert Curtis, 64, and his wife, Beulah, 63, both of Chicago, Ill. Robert Johnson, 42, Natchez; and Sadie Johnson, 36, Natchez.

According to Adams County sheriff William T. Ferrell the victims were returning from the funeral of Beulah Curtis' mother who had died in Chicago and was brought to Stampley, Miss., for burial.

The accident, which occurred shortly after 3 p.m. at the Selma crossing, strewed wreckage of the automobile along the tracks, according to reports. Adams County coroner Ned Smith said the bodies were badly mangled. He said that an inquest would be scheduled.

The death car was a limousine of Williams and Wiliams Funeral Service of Natchez and the driver was an employe of the funeral home.

Columbus Again Dixie Youth Site

COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP) — The national board of directors of the dixie youth baseball series voted Saturday to conduct the annual playoffs here for the third time.

Myrtle Grove, Fla., also sought the tournament.

Columbus was host in 1957 and 1958.

Eight southeastern states send teams to the series. They are Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Virginia, South Carolina and Florida.

Grain Futures Still In Decline

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market carried its general decline through another week on the Board of Trade at an accelerated pace with most commodities showing their broadest losses for any comparable period in several months.

Setbacks ran to 16 cents a bushel in soybeans,to more than 10 in wheat and more than 9 in rye. Corn was relatively steady at declines of less than two cents.

New factors in the market were rather scarce and in the absence of any bullish developments of consequence, speculators were inclined to liquidate or trade from the short side.

Eight southeastern states send teams to the series. They are Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Virginia, South Carolina and Florida.

Grain Futures Still In Decline

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market carried its general decline through another week on the Board of Trade at an accelerated pace with most commodities showing their broadest losses for any comparable period in several months.

Setbacks ran to 16 cents a bushel in soybeans,to more than 10 in wheat and more than 9 in rye. Corn was relatively steady at declines of less than two cents.

New factors in the market were rather scarce and in the absence of any bullish developments of consequence, speculators were inclined to liquidate or trade from the short side.

Police Pile Up More Evidence

declined to say what the other evidence was or describe Oswald's reactions when he saw it.

Curry said ballistics tests on the rifle have been "very encouraging."

Wade said Oswald will be tried first--probably in mid-January—in the death of the President.

"If we get the death penalty as expected, there will be no need to try him in the other case," said Wade. He has prosecuted 24 murder cases and obtained the death penalty 23 times. He got a life verdict the other time.

Officers said Oswald, 24, discharged from the Marines as undesirable is proud of being a Communist. He has denied killing anyone.

President Kennedy was killed from ambush Friday by a gunman who snapped off a rapid volley of shots that also wounded Gov. John Connally of Texas.

The Defense Department announced in Washington that Oswald once wrote to Connally from Russia, pleading that his undesireable discharge be reversed.

This raised a new question—whether the real target was Kennedy or Connally. The two were riding with their wives in the presidential car when three shots ripped from a high-powered rifle on the sixth floor of a building overlooking the motorcade as it left downtown Dallas.

Chief of Police Jesse Curry said: "I think his actual target was the President. I say this because he hit the President twice from about a 75-yard distance on a slant, and apartly he was an expert marksman."

One shot hit Kennedy in the head, one in the neck. Another slug tore through Connally's back, smashing ribs. He was reported in satisfactory condition Saturday.

Oswald sharply denied both shootings. "I didn't kill the President. I didn't kill anybody" he told reporters.

Oswald was arrested within an hour after the President died. Police dragged him screaming and struggling from a movie theater in a shopping district where they had gone in pursuit of a man who had gunned down a Dallas policeman a few minutes earlier.

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade charged Oswald with murder in the deaths of both Kennedy and policeman J. D. Tippit.

Oswald returned about a year ago from a three-year stay in Russia, where he married a Russian woman.

Four years ago he swore allegiance to the Soviet Union and tried to renounce his U.S. citizenship.

The State Department later held he was still a citizen and could return to America. Oswald says he is now a member of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee.

Curry said Oswald "readily admitted he is a Communist" and "apparently is proud of it."

The assassination weapon was found, partly hidden behind books and amid scraps of fried chicken, on the sixth floor. The police homicide bureau said it was a 6.5mm bolt action rifle, apparently of Italian make.

Monday Set As National Mourn Day

other dignitaries as Gov. and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California and former President Harry Truman.

Truman, who upon his arrival in the capital denounced the "good for nothing" Kennedy assassin, talked with Mrs. Kennedy for 15 minutes in the White House living quarters.

Despite a White House request that Americans express their condolences with gifts to charity, baskets of flowers kept arriving at the executive mansion until a spare room had to be set aside for them.

In issuing his proclamation of mourning, President Johnson invited "the people of the world who share our grief to join us in this day of mourning and rededication."

He earnestly urged the American people to assemble in the nation's churches, "there to bow down in submission to the will of Almighty God, and to pay their homage of love and reverence to the memory of a great and good man."

All federal offices will be closed. Even before issuance of the proclamation business establishments across the nation signalled their intent to be darkened during the day.

The casket with the late president's body was closed as it lay in the somber East Room of the White House.

At 10:30 a.m., with only the family and close friends present a Mass was said in the East Room by the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, former president of the University of Notre Dame and a long-time friend of the Kennedys.

The Mass was attended by Mrs. Kennedy and her children, Caroline and John, who were told Friday night that an assassin's bullets had snuffed out the life of their father.

Sunday the body will be taken to the rotunda of the Capitol where it will lie in state for some 21 hours for public viewing. Thousands were expected to file past. But some chose not to wait to pay respects.

In Palm Beach, Fla., a small blond boy, followed by two little girls plucked two hibiscus blossoms from bushes surrounding the resort home of the slain President's father, Joseph P. Kennedy, and placed them on the front steps of the house.

In Moscow, Nikita Khrushchev expressed the "indignation of the Soviet people against the culprits of this base crime" and dispatched his deputy, Anastas Mikoyan, for Monday's Pontificial High Requiem Mass that will be the official state funeral.

At those solemn ceremonies, France will be represented by President Charles de Gaulle, Britain by Prince Philip and Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas Home, and West Germany by Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

At 1 p.m., EST, Sunday, to the muffled cadence of a corps of drummers, the body in its heavy mahogany casket will be borne from the White House to the Capitol on a caisson drawn by seven horses.

There it will lie in state in the Capitol rotunda until 11 a.m., EST, Monday. It will then be moved to St. Matthew's Cathedral several miles away for the Pontifical Requiem Mass that will be celebrated by Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston.

In keeping with the tone of a dismal day in history, rain fell almost unceasingly on the people who stood for hours on the outside, looking on at the somber comings and goings.

New Employe

The Monroe police department was boasting of a much needed new employee this week.

Chief James C. Kelly Jr. said the department has long needed another secretary. Mrs. Eloyce Tannehill filled that need when she came to work this week at the department. She is the wife of John Tannehill, director of the Westminster Recreation Center, and the couple resides on Grammont Street on the east side of town. Judging from Mrs. Tannehill's winsome smile, she should be a credit to the department.

Dear Friend and Customer:

Through the years it has been my privilege to serve you with your drug needs. It has always been my desire and ambition to serve this area with the best pharmaceutical service available anywhere.

This has been possible through the past 34 years because of the friendship and continued patronage of fine folks like you. I am using this means of expressing my sincere appreciation for your patronage through the years.

Now, I have arrived at the time in life where I would like to turn my business over to another generation, in order that I may take time to enjoy all those things one misses in a rather confining profession.

I would like you to know more about these young men who are assuming my business. First, let me say that you will notice no difference in the operation, policies, or quality of service to which you are accustomed.

Both of these men have been in my employ for several years in the capacity of managing pharmacists and have done an excellent job for me. Their combined experience represents a total of 20 years in the retail drug business. I would like to recommend them as your pharmacists.

I assure you that Randolph Cage and Roland Nix earnestly solicit your business and friendship and they, too, have the same desire and ambition that has been mine these last 34 years—to provide you and yours with the best pharmaceutical service available anywhere.

Yours sincerely,

Brazil's Bankruptcy Echoes In Nation

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—President Joao Goulart's statement that the nation is headed for bankruptcy is still echoing in the nation's press. The cruzeiro fell. Food lines lengthened.

Goulart's pronouncement, published in a nationally circulated weekly, Manchette, was described as a "prophecy of chaos" by the independent Jornal do Brasil of Rio de Janeiro.

The cruzeiro, whiplashed by runaway inflation, dropped 60 points, to 1,120 to the dollar. Money changers blamed the president's words of gloom.

Prices took another hike upward as lines lengthened here and elsewhere for sugar, butter meat and milk. The government was reported studying establishment of a sliding wage scale as a possible means of enabling workers to keep abreast of prices. Some newspapers said this merely would add fuel to the inflation fire.

In the nation's capital, Brasilia, there were unconfirmed reports that Finance Minister Carlos Carvalho Pinto, irked because he had no advance information of Goulart's statement, had submitted his resignation.

Goulart's statement said:

"I have not the slightest doubt that the dizzying inflationary process to which we are now submitted will fatally drag the country to bankruptcy with all the sinister consequences of a social disaster of catastrophic proportions."

This brought sharp criticism from much of the nation's press. It also brought retorts from Goulart's political opponents, notably Gov. Carlos Lacerda of Guanabara State—Rio de Janeiro—a leading candidate for the presidency in 1965. Goulart, under Brazil's constitution, cannot succeed himself.

Lacerda, one of Brazil's fiercest opponents of communism, was quoted as saying Goulart "has one month in which to deliver his coup. If he delays beyond that he will no longer have the conditions in which to do it."

Lacerda did not elucidate but earlier this year Lacerda expressed belief Goulart's government would fall before the end of the year.

In his statement, Goulart blamed Congress for failure to establish needed reforms, and added that "the reforms would already have been made" if he had held all administrative power.

"These are strange words," said Rio's independent Diario de Noticias. "This is very serious. Even as a mere hypothesis it constitutes an insinuation which is, to say the least, not convenient."

An official statistical survey estimated that the cost of living in Brazil would show an increase of 60 per cent for the year of 1963 by the end of December.

HOME OFFERINGS

LE HAVRE, France (AP)—A parish priest near Le Havre found a new box for money offerings on the wall of his church with a note attached saying, "Leave here your offerings for candles."

The puzzled priest found the box had been set up by a 14-year-old girl who told police she planned to take home the returns.

Northwestern Will Be Sent Mobile Lab

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — A mobile radioisotope laboratory from the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies will be sent to Northwestern State College in April for a two-week lecture and laboratory course to be offered at the College, it was announced by Dr. Alan H. Crosby, professor and head of the department of physical science.

President John S. Kyser was advised Friday that the mobile radioisotope laboratory would be sent to the NSC campus in a letter received from Dr. L. K. Akers, director of the program, which is a part of the Institute's Special Training Division.

Dr. Crosby indicated that ninety-minute lecture periods and two - hour laboratory sessions would be scheduled daily for ten days with faculty members and some advanced students in attendance. The traveling laboratory can accommodate six students in laboratory sessions and two such periods will be arranged for a maximum of 12 students. All materials are furnished by the Institute.

Only qualified faculty and students, those with necessary academic prerequisites, will be eligible for the special course.

President Kyser and Dr. Crosby expressed their extreme satisfaction in the selection of Northwestern as a site for the special course by representatives of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies.

Boys Club Hours Are Announced

Lloyd Williams, executive director of the Boys Club, located at 128 N. Violent St., in West Monroe, reported Saturday that club hours will be from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. this week, with the exception of Thanksgiving day.

At 1 p.m. Monday wood-working is scheduled under the direction of Todd Moore; 4 p.m. Tuesday, Boys Club Choir, Gene Smith, director; 5:15 p.m. Tuesday, plaster mould class, Mrs. Jeanne Carter, instructor; 4 p.m. Wednesday, plaster mould class, Barry White, assistant director.

He said there would be a basketball session for boys of all ages in the gym and that there are still openings for senior teams.

A new trampoline will also be available each day. It was donated by Harold Roberts. Doug Crew and Baughn McDuffey made the legs for it.

AN OLD PRESIDENT of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower, gives a close bit of advice to a new one, President Lyndon Johnson, as they meet today in the Executive Office Building near the White House. Brazil's Bankruptcy Echoes In Nation

RIO DE JANEIRO. Brazil (AP)—President Joao Goulart's statement that the nation is headed for bankruptcy is still echoing in the nation's press. The cruzeiro fell. Food lines lengthened.

Goulart's pronouncement, published in a nationally circulated weekly, Manchette, was described as a "prophecy of chaos" by the independent Jornal do Brasil of Rio de Janeiro.

The cruzeiro, whiplashed by runaway inflation, dropped 60 points, to 1,120 to the dollar. Money changers blamed the president's words of gloom.

Prices took another hike upward as lines lengthened here and elsewhere for sugar, butter meat and milk. The government was reported studying establishment of a sliding wage scale as a possible means of enabling workers to keep abreast of prices. Some newspapers said this merely would add fuel to the inflation fire.

In the nation's capital, Brasilia, there were unconfirmed reports that Finance Minister Carlos Carvalho Pinto, irked because he had no advance information of Goulart's statement, had submitted his resignation.

Goulart's statement said:

"I have not the slightest doubt that the dizzying inflationary process to which we are now submitted will fatally drag the country to bankruptcy with all the sinister consequences of a social disaster of catastrophic proportions."

This brought sharp criticism from much of the nation's press. It also brought retorts from Goulart's political opponents, notably Gov. Carlos Lacerda of Guanabara State—Rio de Janeiro—a leading candidate for the presidency in 1965. Goulart, under Brazil's constitution, cannot succeed himself.

Lacerda, one of Brazil's fiercest opponents of communism. was quoted as saying Goulart "has one month in which to deliver his coup. If he delays beyond that he will no longer have the conditions in which to do it."

Lacerda did not elucidate but earlier this year Lacerda expressed belief Goulart's government would fall before the end of the year.

In his statement, Goulart blamed Congress for failure to establish needed reforms, and addcd that "the reforms would already have been made" if he had held all administrative power.

"These are strange words." said Rio's independent Diario de Noticias. "This is very serious. Even as a mere hypothesis it constitutes an insinuation which is, to say the least, no' convenient."

An official statistical survey estimated that the cost of living in Brazil would show an increase of 60 per cent for the year of 1963 by the end of December.

HOME OFFERINGS

LE HAVRE, France (AP)—A parish priest near Le Havre found a new box for money offerings on the wall of his church with a note attached saying, "Leave here your offerings for candles."

The puzzled priest found the box had been set up by a 14-year-old girl who told police she planned to take home the returns.

Northwestern Will Be Sent Mobile Lab

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — A mobile radioisotope laboratory from the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies will be sent to Northwestern State College in April for a two-week lecture and laboratory course to be offered at the College, it was announced by Dr. Alan H. Crosby, professor and head of the department of physical science.

President John S. Kyser was advised Friday that the mobile radioisotope laboratory would be sent to the NSC campus in a letter received from Dr. L. K. Akers, director of the program. which is a part of the Institute's Special Training Division.

Dr. Crosby indicated that ninety-minute lecture periods and two - hour laboratory sessions would be scheduled daily for ten days with faculty members and some advanced students in attendance. The traveling laboratory can accommodate six students in laboratory sessions and two such periods will be arranged for a maximum of 12 students. All materials are furnished by the Institute.

Only qualified faculty and students, those with necessary academic prerequisites, will be eligible for the special course.

President Kyser and Dr. Crosby expressed their extreme satisfaction in the selection of Northwestern as a site for the special course by representatives of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies.

Johnson Plans Congress Talk For Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson plans to address a joint session of Congress next week, a top administration leader said Saturday.

The only thing uncertain, he said, is whether the new chief executive will make his first congressional appearance Wednesday or Friday.

"Probably Wednesday," the informant said.

He said the President probably wil make a plea for national unity in the present period of stress caused by the assassination of President Kennedy.

THOUGH DEADLINE IS PASSED

Workers Continue Appeal In United Givers Drive

Officials of the United Givers Fund were still hard at work this past week, even though the final day of the campaign had officially been reached.

The final report meeting on Wednesday showed that $234,737, or 90 per cent of the goal had been raised. The amount raised now stands at $236,034, 90.6 per cent of the goal.

The amount raised was termed a "disappointment" by campaign chairman Jack S. Campbell this past week. "Especially in view of the fact that the goal is reachable," Campbell said.

"Even though the campaign deadline has been passed, we haven't closed operations," Campbell said. "At this time last year, the drive had apparently stalled at 88 per cent, but through the continued efforts of many hard-working and dedicated volunteers, the goal was finally reached. We now find ourselves in a similar position.

"Less that $25,000 remains to be raised. We are confident that the community will respond to this challenge and once again put this worthwhile project over the top."

Leaders appealed to all workers with cards outstanding to complete their calls as rapidly as possible.

"Although several hundred volunteer UGF workers have been calling on firms and individuals for the past eight weeks it has been physically impossible to see everyone," Campbell said.

"If you are one of those we've missed for one reason or another we ask you to please accept this appeal as a solicitation of your gift and mail it to United Givers Fund headquarters, 200 S. Grand St., today," Campbell said. "Your gift today will help us to reach our goal tomorrow so that the 13 health, welfare and character building UGF agencies can continue to administer to the basic human needs of our community. Or, if you have already made a contribution and wish to make an additional gift that, too, will be welcome. Every possible dollar is needed now to reach our goal.

"As we approach the Thanksgiving holiday," Campbell said, "we all give thanks for our many blessings. We also give thanks that we are able to give to others and to share our blessings. We are hoping that all who have not yet given will do so now and help the community have a truly happy Thanksgiving. Many thousands of our neighbors are counting on us to do this."

Telephone Act Wins Top Spot In 'Redskins'

By JOHN CALE
STAFF REVIEWER

The song and dance routine was the last number on the two-night review, which featured some 38 acts all told. William C. (Bill) Wells was director of the production and Buddy Smith was master of ceremonies.

Other final winners were Jim Robinson, who took second place with his piano stylings. His off-key rendition of "Tammy," which seemed to make the best use of purposely injected bloopers brought laughter and applause from the student audience.

And Stefan Anderson, country guitarist and singer from Shreveport and Winn Parish took third place in the finals.

The folk music brigade appeared in force for the twin bill version of "Redskins." No fewer than six participants made use of the folk song, which someone said was so named because "lots of folks were singin' 'em."

As a whole, the student show managed to hold together fairly well, considering its placement between nine-weeks tests and Thanksgiving. Some may have missed the carefully timed barages from last years' jazz ensembie, but Kenn McKenzie's smaller aggregation filled the bill suitably this year.

We didn't think anything came up to last year's musical stunt based on "West Side Story," but you don't find students' schedules which let things like that happen every year. All told "Redskins, 1964" was an enjoyable student show.

Tear Gas Bomb Foils Attempt At Safe Robbery

The attempt to open the safe was evidently abandoned when a tear gas bomb, attached to the dial inside the safe, went off.

The burglars entered through the floor of the meat-icebox section of the store and left by the door in that room. A hole was made from underneath the store which stands about six feet off the ground at this point.

Holes were bored in the floor and a saw used to complete the entrance. The left lower corner of the door was mutilated and the dial removed. The tear gas bomb evidently went off when a punch was used. A fan from the rear of the store was set up to blow on the safe while the burglars worked on it.

The fan was still going when officers were called. Pliers and a butcher knife, also belonging to the store, were found near the safe along with other tools which were abandoned. Tools left behind included a brace and bit, pick hammer, punch, a long bolt and a claw hammer.

During their stay in the store, the burglars drank from two one-quart containers of milk and left them sitting on the floor. Four other full cartons were nearby, but untouched.

NEW CORVAIR Seven models in four series. Plus two Greenbriers. A new standard 95-hp engine (nearly 19% livelier). A 110-hp engine available at extra cost on all Corvairs and a 150-hp Turbocharged engine under the deck lid of the Monza Spyder. Styling? It's never been cleaner. Interior? Never been brighter. Luxury features at no extra cost? Lots of them. Fun to drive? More so than ever before.

Johnson Plans Congress Talk For Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson plans to address a joint session of Congress next week, a top administration leader said Saturday.

The only thing uncertain, he said, is whether the new chief executive will make his first congressional appearance Wednesday or Friday.

"Probably Wednesday," the informant said.

He said the President probably wil make a plea for national unity in the present period of stress caused by the assassination of President Kennedy.

THOUGH DEADLINE IS PASSED

Workers Continue Appeal In United Givers Drive

Officials of the United Givers Fund were still hard at work this past week, even though the final day of the campaign had officially been reached.

The final report meeting on Wednesday showed that $234,737, or 90 per cent of the goal had been raised. The amount raised now stands at $236,034, 90.6 per cent of the goal.

The amount raised was termed a "disappointment" by campaign chairman Jack S. Campbell this past week. "Especially in view of the fact that the goal is reachable," Campbell said.

"Even though the campaign deadline has been passed, we haven't closed operations," Campbell said. "At this time last year, the drive had apparently stalled at 88 per cent, but through the continued efforts of many hard-working and dedicated volunteers, the goal was finally reached. We now find ourselves in a similar position.

"Less that $25,000 remains to be raised. We are confident that the community will respond to this challenge and once again put this worthwhile project over the top."

Leaders appealed to all workers with cards outstanding to complete their calls as rapidly as possible.

"Although several hundred volunteer UGF workers have been calling on firms and individuals for the past eight weeks it has been physically impossible to see everyone," Campbell said.

"If you are one of those we've missed for one reason or another we ask you to please accept this appeal as a solicitation of your gift and mail it to United Givers Fund headquarters, 200 S. Grand St., today," Campbell said. "Your gift today will help us to reach our goal tomorrow so that the 13 health, welfare and character building UGF agencies can continue to administer to the basic human needs of our community. Or, if you have already made a contribution and wish to make an additional gift that, too, will be welcome. Every possible dollar is needed now to reach our goal.

"As we approach the Thanksgiving holiday," Campbell said, "we all give thanks for our many blessings. We also give thanks that we are able to give to others and to share our blessings. We are hoping that all who have not yet given will do so now and help the community have a truly happy Thanksgiving. Many thousands of our neighbors are counting on us to do this."

Telephone Act Wins Top Spot In 'Redskins'

By JOHN CALE
STAFF REVIEWER

The song and dance routine was the last number on the two-night review, which featured some 38 acts all told. William C. (Bill) Wells was director of the production and Buddy Smith was master of ceremonies.

Other final winners were Jim Robinson, who took second place with his piano styings. His off-key rendition of "Tammy," which seemed to make the best use of purposely injected bloopers brought laughter and applause from the student audience.

And Stefan Anderson, country guitarist and singer from Shreveport and Winn Parish took third place in the finals.

The folk music brigade appeared in force for the twin bill version of "Redskins." No fewer than six participants made use of the folk song, which someone said was so named because "lots of folks were singin' 'em."

As a whole, the student show managed to hold together fairly well, considering its placement between nine-weeks tests and Thanksgiving. Some may have missed the carefully timed barrages from last years' jazz ensemble, but Kenn McKenzie's smaller aggregation filled the bill suitably this year.

We didn't think anything came up to last year's musical stunt based on "West Side Story," but you don't find students' schedules which let things like that happen every year. All told "Redskins, 1964," was an enjoyable student show.

Tear Gas Bomb Foils Attempt At Safe Robbery

The attempt to open the safe was evidently abandoned when a tear gas bomb, attached to the dial inside the safe, went off.

The burglars entered through the floor of the meat-icebox section of the store and left by the door in that room. A hole was made from underneath the store which stands about six feet off the ground at this point.

Holes were bored in the floor and a saw used to complete the entrance. The left lower corner of the door was mutilated and the dial removed. The tear gas bomb evidently went off when a punch was used. A fan from the rear of the store was set up to blow on the safe while the burglars worked on it.

The fan was still going when officers were called. Pliers and a butcher knife, also belonging to the store, were found near the safe along with other tools which were abandoned. Tools left behind included a brace and bit, pick hammer, punch, a long bolt and a claw hammer.

During their stay in the store, the burglars drank from two one-quart containers of milk and left them sitting on the floor. Four other full cartons were nearby, but untouched.

National Week On Alcoholism To Be Observed

Alcoholism Information Week, an educational and informational campaign emphasizing that alcoholism is a treatable disease, will be observed in Monroe and West Monroe December 1-7, it was announced Saturday by George Phillips, president, Twin Cities Council on Alcoholism.

The campaign in Monroe and West Monroe is part of a nationwide observance being sponsored by the National Council on Alcoholism, the national voluntary health agency in the field of alcoholism.

"Alcoholism is one of America's four major health problems, along with mental illness, cancer and heart disease," Phillips said. "It is estimated that there are 5,000,000 alcoholics in the country. However, there is help for the person suffering from the disease of alcoholism. During Alcoholism Information Week we hope to call this fact to the public's attention, thanks to the wonderful cooperation we are receiving from newspapers, TV, radio and other informational media."

The Twin Cities Council on Alcoholism will open and maintain an Alcoholism Information Center shortly after the first of the coming year.

2-WAY RADIO EQUIPMENT HAS BEEN INSTALLED IN EACH OF OUR CARS...AN Exculsive At Mulhearn Funeral Home

Improved communication has brought progress in many fields because ideas and information are exchanged more effectively. We have installed two-way radio equipment in all of our cars and at all of our funeral homes to provide even better funeral service and ambulance service.

We are in constant touch with personnel driving our cars, no matter where they may be in the Monroe, Rayville, Delhi or Winnsboro areas. Faster ambulance service, closer co-ordination of funerals and more efficient flower deliveries between cities are among the many advantages.

Johnson Likely To Push Defense Policy Forward

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration's basic defense policies probably will march forward under President Johnson without breaking stride.

But one major policy—involving the U.S. military role in space—may change direction.

Johnson has indicated he favors an increase in the military emphasis in space research which, under the late President Kennedy, took second place to civilian space exploration. The Pentagon position has been that space weapons could do little that presently available systems can't do—and present weapons can do it far more cheaply.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara probably will stay in the Johnson Cabinet. Johnson has spoken admiringly of McNamara, calling him the strongest man in the Kennedy Cabinet.

Johnson Wishes Chiefs To Stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has asked all chiefs of U.S. foreign missions to stay on the job and not submit the usual resignations.

The State Department announced this Saturday, increasing the belief Johnson is eager to emphasize a continuation of the foreign policies of President Kennedy, who was assassinated Friday.

Johnson Likely To Push Defense Policy Forward

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration's basic defense policies probably will march forward under President Johnson without breaking stride.

But one major policy—involving the U.S. military role in space—may change direction.

Johnson has indicated he favors an increase in the military emphasis in space research which, under the late President Kennedy, took second place to civilian space exploration. The Pentagon position has been that space weapons could do little that presently available systems can't do—and present weapons can do it far more cheaply.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara probably will stay in the Johnson Cabinet. Johnson has spoken admiringly of McNamara, calling him the strongest man in the Kennedy Cabinet.

Johnson Wishes Chiefs To Stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has asked all chiefs of U.S. foreign missions to stay on the job and not submit the usual resignations.

The State Department announced this Saturday, increasing the belief Johnson is eager to emphasize a continuation of the foreign policies of President Kennedy, who was assassinated Friday.

World Weeps As News Sinks Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was beginning to sink in. John Fitzgerald Kennedy was gone. Around the world, many wept, some fumed and others became apprehensive.

Nations broke their own precedents to mourn him; cold war enemies praised him; people all over the earth—kings and the presidents; street peddlers and fishermen—expressing their sorrow.

In Britain, Queen Elizabeth II commanded her court to go into a week's mourning, and every minute from 11 a. m. until noon the great tenor bell in Westminster Abbey tolled. This token of mourning is usually reserved only for dead British royalty.

President Charles de Gaulle of France ordered the flag of France flown at half staff immediately. By tradition, the tricolor flies at half staff only on the day of the funeral of a chief of state.

In Moscow, Soviet Premier Khrushchev broke off a tour to pay his personal respects at the U. S. Embassy and send messages to President Johnson and Mrs. Kennedy. He said he and the Soviet nation were deeply grieved. Crowds came to the embassy to sign a book of condolences — something unprecedented for Moscow in the depths of the cold war.

Leaders of the world headed for Washington and the funeral of the slain Western leader.

Queen Elizabeth's husband, Prince Philip, and Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas - Home will represent Britain; De Gaulle himself will come from France.

King Baudouin will come from Belgium; Chancellor Ludwig Erhard from West Germany; Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson from Canada; President Eamon de Valera from Ireland; U. N. Secretary - General U Thant, heading an eight - man delegation; and Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan from the Soviet Union.

There were just a few of the leaders and representatives of leaders who have announced they will attend the funeral.

At Vatican City, Pope Paul VI dedicated his morning Mass to the dead President, the first Roman Catholic to become chief executive of the United States.

The reaction was as heartfelt among the nonelect people of the world as it was among the elect.

In Tokyo Bay, for instance, the tiny boats of Japanese fishermen pulled up alongside U.S. Navy warships with little flags flying at half mast in tribute.

Big and little alike condemned Kennedy's assassination in Dallas, Tex., on Friday and began to wonder what course the affairs of the world will take because of it.

Louisiana in Miniature

The history and resources of Louisiana, including those of the northeast area, are the subjects of numerous skilled portrayals in miniature at the Louisiana Exhibit Museum in Shreveport. Over the years, visitors from many parts of the world have viewed these works.

By EZRA ADAMS

One of the ancient portrayals is contained in the newest diorama, showing a realistic Indian Village as it is believed to have existed at Poverty Point archaeological site in West Carroll Parish in the era before the birth of Christ.

Housed in a building constructed in 1938, the museum has attracted visitors from around the nation, and from distant points of the world.

Described as one of the largest of its kind, the museum has what are reported to be some of the finest detailed dioramas in existence, depicting Louisiana's numerous natural resources, industries, works of art, and historical artifacts.

ALL SECTIONS

All sections of Louisiana are represented, and one can tour the state vicariously by spending half a day touring the exhibits.

Completed in 1938, the marble, limestone and granite building still is one of the largest round structures anywhere. Two wings enhance the exterior appearance and serve as a 414-seat auditorium, and as an artifact - and - art exhibit hall. It was refurbished last summer to a high point of freshness.

The museum is located at the Grounds on Shreveport's west side and motorists traveling along Highway 80 may use either of two driveways into the large parking area behind it.

It is open to visitors, without charge, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. through the week, and on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. It is closed for only one holiday a year — Christmas Day.

The circular building's front entrance is impressive, with two very large solid granite columns. They are oval, about three feet in diameter, and some 25 feet high.

COLORFUL MURALS

Behind the columns are colorful 16-foot murals, done soon after the building was completed, depicting various phases of life in the state.

Inside, miniature sculptured figures and lifelike details are displayed to blend indistinguishably with a realistic painted background, to form the dioramas noted for their impressiveness.

The dioramas, presenting a panorama of Louisiana life and times, have been done over the years since February, 1939, when Dr. H. B. Wright and his staff of experts began the herculean task of their creation.

Since Dr. Wright's retirement on June 30, the Museum has been directed by Heber Long of Shreveport. He is assisted by five employees.

Long said recently, "The Museum this year experienced an unusually steady flow of summer tourists, ranging from South America to Wisconsin, and from California to Florida and Maine.

"Also, I remember one man from England who enjoyed a detailed study of a cotton stalk here, loaded with open boles. He had never seen one before."

Shreveporters bring their visitors to see the museum and many Louisiana families drive considerable distances to view the unusual history.

"Too, there are many groups of students from kindergarten through college who come to make a complete tour of the facilities here," Long commented. He said classes came from as far away as Oklahoma.

MANY USE FACILITIES

The museum director added, "Many local and area groups use our facilities regularly. A monthly average of about 20 meetings of local and area groups have been held here during the past nine months."

Young and old alike find points on interest in the museum. Even the most recent addition — large live gold fish, perch, trout and catfish in an artificial pond in the patio enclosed by the circular musuem building — delights its share of visitors.

Recent restorations, costing upward of $50,000, included cleaning the exterior limestone, granite, terazzo steps, terazzo landings, concrete retaining wall, concrete fences, etc.; rejointing of all defective joints in the limestone; repainting exterior metal windows and lintels, and extensive roof repairs.

Most of the work was completed by October 1, giving the building a new appearance.

One can enter the building at any of its several openings, tour all its exhibits and facilities and return to the same entrance without passing the same way twice.

In the main, circular building are the enchanting glass-encased dioramas, exhibits of historic state relics, and other items that reveal the varying cultures that have gone into the making of Louisiana as one of the most colorful of the 50 states.

PLASTER MAP

Inside the north entrance is a foyer, in the center of which is a plaster-of-Paris relief map of Louisiana, sunken into the floor and encircled by an aluminum railing.

The map, with each parish in a different color, illustrates the contour of the state, the elevation, watershed, and principal resources of sections, including the national forest reservations, and larger bodies of water.

The east wing is the auditorium, used by many area groups for lectures, organizational meetings, civic gatherings, and other events.

Local art lovers were using the art gallery, in the west wing, for taking a four - day watercolor course from a noted painter, engaged and paid by them, when we visited there recently.

But, most fascinating of all to visitors are the dioramas. And most recent of them is the realistic (though scaled-down) ancient Indian Village of Poverty Point archaeological site in West Carroll Parish.

OTHER DIORAMAS

Other dramatic dioramas, construction of which required immense amounts of skill, patience and care, include scale model reproductions of dairy and beef cattle pastures, an old syrup mill in action, sugar cane, rice, and cotton harvesting, cotton ginning, forage crop and vegetable harvesting and packing shed, orange grove, oil refinery, sulphur mining, salt mining, migratory waterfowl, scale model paper mill, poultry farming and forestry.

Some of them, interestingly, show the harvesting methods of years gone by. Plans of those closest to the museum include adding of dioramas to illustrate the latest harvesting methods, when funds are available for this work.

The museum is operated and maintained by the State Department of Agriculture. Agriculture Commissioner Dave L. Pearce, commenting on the museum recently, said, "With its contents, the State Museum represents an investment of $5 million. It is renowned for its artistic diorama displays, exhibits of agricultural and industrial products, historic murals, archaeological relics and art collections. Its function is to preserve the old and at the same time the technological advance of a progressive people. It is Louisiana in miniature."

SALISBURY, England (AP)— The word around these days is that American tourists aren't what they used to be.

They have, the story goes, been abroad so often that they no longer order hamburgers at the Tour d'Argent, throw dollar bills around like confetti and complain about the coffee where ever they go.

To investigate this story, a correspondent traveled incognito on a tourist bus through southern England.

The following conversation was recorded as it happened, with the guide speaking in an exaggerated British accent, and the tourists in nasal tones that were sharp enough to quarry rock:

CONFUSION

Guide: Here we are at the Salisbury Cathedral, which you may recognize from the famous painting by Constable.

"What did he say?"

"I don't know. With that accent I can't undertsand a word he says."

Somebody named Constable buried here I think."

"Don't they ever wash these places? This one looks about 700 years old. It might not look bad if they washed it."

Guide: You will notice the beautiful stained glass windows, but only the one at the end is original. The Puritans smashed the others.

"That sounds like an anti-American remark."

"What did he say?"

"The Americans smashed the windows."

"They could do with a cleaning."

Guide: And here is a tomb with a wooden effigy. The school boys here have a curious custom — they carve their initials in the effigy upon graduation.

"What did he say?"

"People have been carving their initials in the statue."

"It's Americans. That's what it is. They carve their initials in everything."

Guide: No, madam, these are local schoolboys. They have this—

"Don't tell me. They're Americans. My countrymen. It's terrible. You see it all over Europe. Last Saturday I saw it in Madrid."

"I saw it in Milan. Have you ever been in Milan?"

"I had my pocket picked there last year. Or was it Florence?"

Guide: And here is the tomb of King Henry III.

"Oh, no, it isn't. I had a guide last Friday, and he told me Henry was buried in Notre Dame. I saw the tomb."

Guide: Perhaps he meant the French Henry.

"He said Henry III. I saw the tomb. And it was Paris. He never said anything about Canterbury."

Guide: Madam, this is Salisbury.

"Salisbury! But this is Wednesday. If it isn't Canterbury I'm on the wrong tour."

Louisiana's Tax Hikers

The tax records of gubernatorial candidates John McKeithen, Gillis Long and Robert F. Kennon ring forth loud and clear. Here they are:

JOHN McKEITHEN, as an Earl Long floor leader in the House of Representatives in 1948 helped push through the massive Long tax-hiking program. He voted for at least 10 tax-hiking measures, co-authored some of them, guided them to legislative passage, and introduced three additional tax raising measures of his own which did not get through.

GILLIS LONG never has held a legislative post, but he boasts of being one of "the Longs" politically as well as by blood, and the record of "the Longs" is high taxing and high spending. Senator Russell B. Long, chief political sponsor of Gillis Long in the race for Governor, was special legislative counsel in the writing of the Earl Long-McKeithen avalanche of tax-hiking bills in 1948.

ROBERT F. KENNON is a tax cutter. In 1952 he brought about repeal of the Long-McKeithen 2c per gallon gasoline tax and increased exemptions for state income tax in a manner to save $85 to $125 a year for the average family. Under his administration came the two-thirds majority constitutional amendment, co-authored by Rep. Jasper K. Smith of Caddo. This makes a two-thirds majority necessary in the House and the Senate to hike or create a tax. It blocked tens of millions of dollars of taxation legislation attempted by Earl Long in his second term, 1956-1960.

Just as the records ring forth loud and strong, so should it be crystal clear to the voters that if either John McKeithen or Gillis Long becomes Governor, the taxpayers of Louisiana may well expect another drive at their pocketbooks.

It should be equally clear that an administration under Robert F. Kennon would seek to lean in exactly the opposite direction.

Here is Mr. McKeithen's tax record in the 1948 regular session of the Earl Long administration when he was a floor leader in the House of Representatives:

1948 REGULAR SESSION

1. Act No. 7—Providing a 2c per gallon increase in the gasoline tax.

VOTED: YES. (Repeal of this tax was the first major legislative step by Governor Kennon when he took office in 1952. Governor Kennon also increased state income tax exemption in a manner saving the average Louisiana family $85 to $125 a year.)

2. Act No. 8—Increase the excise tax on light wines and beer.

VOTED: YES.

3. Act. No. 9—Providing a 2 per cent sales tax.

VOTED: YES.

4. Act No. 10—increasing severance tax on natural resources.

CO-AUTHOR OF THE BILL.

5. Act No. 11—Increasing gas gathering tax.

CO-AUTHOR OF THE BILL.

6. Act No. 138—Levying tax on generating electricity for sale or use.

7. Act No. 169—Increasing tax on tobacco.

CO-AUTHOR OF THE BILL.

8. Act No. 440—Further increasing excise tax on light wines and beer.

VOTED: YES.

9. Act No. 465—Increasing tax on generating electricity.

VOTED: YES.

10. Act No. 470—Increasing chain store tax.

VOTED: YES.

Mr. McKeithen also introduced the following tax bills, which failed of passage:

Bill No. 729—Levying an annual tax on all persons, associations, firms and corporations pursuing any trade or profession.

To the Editor:

In your editorial in Sunday's Monroe Morning World, November 17, 1963, in answer to a reader's question as to why you did not give greater consideration to the gubernatorial candidacy of Mr. Shelby M. Jackson, now Superintendent of Education, you asked this question, "Why should we?"

Since you are so uninformed, I would like to tell you a few of the many reasons for supporting Mr. Jackson. First and foremost, Mr. Jackson is going to win and I am sure you want to be on the winning side. He is the only man in the race who has ever come to the aid of the common people of Louisiana. All the other top candidates were too busy trying to grab a fortune for themselves. The people are looking for an honest man with wisdom and integrity to lead this state through the next four years. The reason the Monroe Morning World did not support Mr. Jackson is because he is a man with such high ideals and stern character that he cannot be controlled by the press nor by the big political machine of this state.

Sunday, October 20, 1963 you endorsed Mr. Robert Kennon for governor of Louisiana and told some of the things he did while he was governor from 1952-1956, but why didn't you tell the other side of the story? Why did you not tell the people that while Mr. Kennon was governor of Louisiana that all the Colleges south of Alexandria, La., were integrated; that Mr. Kennon took two cents tax off gas and gave it back to the gas companies - robbing the state of this income; that during the Davis administration Mr. Kennon has been drawing a salary of $7,000 a year from the welfare department and has carried on the welfare department according to orders from the Kennedys; (This information was given in the councilor) that Mr. Kennon, during his term as governor, came into possession of 6,500 acre oil lease in Caddo Parish and that the title of this oil lease was put in his sister's name until his term of office expired and then it was transferred to his name. If Mr. Kennon's oil dealings were on the level, why did he not have this title in his own name instead of his sister's name.

While Mr. Jackson was fighting our battles with the federal government Mr. McKeithen was standing idly by, afraid of offending the Kennedys' and let the railroad and bus stations, which were under his jurisdiction, be integrated without saying a word.

In your editorial November 11, 1963, you rigged the voters to write to PAR for its booklet which is intended to furnish the voters with information concerning the different candidates. I think the voters of Louisiana are fully capable of judging the character of these candidates without any advice or help from PAR nor the big time politicians. The only thing they need is to be left alone and given an opportunity to express themselves at the polls December 7 1963.

I'd like to ask that each voter consider the facts I have given you above, search these men's past records, and vote for the one man whose character and public record has yet to attacked by his opponents, Mr. Shelby M. Jackson, number 1 on your ticket.

If you would answer these questions, I would be most appreciative.

1. Are your editorials about John McKeithen being written here, in Shreveport or in New Orleans? Why is it your paper's policy not to tell, when asked who writes them?

2. Do you condone Mr. Kennon's approval of Mr. Eisenhower in his sending troops to Arkansas, or of Mr. Earl Warren's decision to end segregation?

3. In stating that Mr. McKeithen never says anything about Mr. Long, your reporter stood behind me at the southside rally and heard Mr. McKeithen blast Mr. Long. Is he denying he heard this?

5. Were you aware in endorsing Mr. Kennon of his oil deals when governor? The question is not $5,42, it well could have been $5,420. Are you implying that if he made only that, it is RIGHT? If it was, why did he put it in his sister's name, AND THEN have it transferred to nimself after he left office?

6. Why did he resign his $7,500 Welfare job after being exposed? If this job was aboveboard, why did he leave?

I will await with anticipation your PUBLISHED ANSWERS, to these questions.

Police Jury Rapped

Sterlington, La.

To the Editor:

When that sedate and estimable body, the Ouachita Parish police jury, is not having one of its "knock-down drag-out" type of meetings, they can really settle down to serious business. This was evidenced recently, when they held a real "Love Feast" meeting and decided to send part of their number on an expense-paid trip to a convention in Hawaii! Next year it may be in Hong Kong or Paris!

Just what benefit can the Parish possibly derive from attendance by our jurors at the meeting? Meetings held in our own state where problems of common interest in parish government are discussed may be of some value, but this jaunt looks like a clear-cut attempt to take a vacation at the expense of "you know who," the taxpayer.

It was gratifying to note that two of those elected to making the trip are going at their own expense. It has also been called to my attention that one of our jurors does not collect all the money due him for attendance at meetings, it being turned back into the treasury. These actions are commendable and it is hoped that in the upcoming election, that more men of this caliber will be put into office to replace some of our irresponsible money wasters.

How many times have we read where the police jury was so deeply concerned about funds running out that they would not be able to keep the roads and ditches in repair or buy needed equipment — and yet we now have enough to attend a convention in Hawaii that could cost as much as $1000 per person.

Raps Jury Waste

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

It has just been brought to my attention that our wonderful police jury has found another way to waste our money.

Not being satisfied with having obtained from the Legislature permission to hold 50 paid meetings per year at $50 per member per meeting; and also, just recently having voted themselves $125, each for the entire crowd, including engineers and office help, to go to a Baton Rouge convention, it now appears that they have found a new way to squander our money. This latest move is voting to send a delegation all the way to Hawaii at our expense to attend a convention.

I feel that it is time to call a halt to this waste of our tax money, and am wondering if a few new faces after election would not help matters.

Power Is Centralized

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

To the people of West Monroe the abridgment of their liberties by a law that does not permit their voice in public affairs related to sale of their own belonging, there is surprise and even fear of what's next.

The people's properties collectively ought to be held inviolate as is private ownership from harm that may hurt collectively or privately. Not so as it concerns operation at City Hall. The city hall people may sell the new city hall without consent of the governed. This is centralized power without restraint.

Valuable property on the Ouachita River bank, just opposite the old city hall, including the Pine street area, may be sold without specific authority from the people of West Monroe who own the property? The courts may look askance at the action of delegated authority when such large sums are involved in the sale and little or no appraisal is made of the possibilities of how it affects the public interest later. Precedents may be shown.

It may be stated here our investments there, in lands equipment and the fact it affords the beach head for water lines spreading all over town, has more value than the mere price of real estate sought in order to make the deal. And further added that it is our only river bank land and afford s a value for river traffic later.

McKeithen And Longs

The political record of gubernatorial candidate John McKeithen as part and parcel of "The Longs" in Louisiana — politically speaking — is not complete with his tax voting record alone. There also must be consideration of the part he played in Governor Earl Long's attempt to establish, during his 1948-1952 term, a dictatorship in Louisiana of a type perhaps never dreamed of before by any politician in any state.

And discussion of this necessarily brings in Gillis Long, too, although he was not around — politically — at the time.

Mr. McKeithen went into the Legislature in the Earl Long landslide of 1948 and promptly was made one of the governor's House floor leaders. He is running now against a background of Earl Longism, for Mrs. Earl K. Long is his state campaign manager and various other Earl Long leaders and followers around the state are supporting him.

Flushed with the victory of his avalanche of tax-hiking in the 1948 Legislature — brought about in part through the efforts and votes of Mr. McKeithen as a House floor leader, and with the bills written under guidance of Senator Russell Long, present sponsor of gubernatorial candidate Gillis Long, Governor Earl Long next attempted a dictatorship "power grab." Mr. McKeithen and other Long leaders pushed through the Legislature a series of constitutional amendments which would have given the governor one-man control over every cent of spending in the state WITHOUT EVEN LEGISLATIVE APPROVAL.

These amendments also would have given the governor complete control over and the opportunity to completely politicalize Louisiana's state university and all of the state's colleges.

These amendments were called the "Nine Earl Long Power Grab Amendments" when submitted to the electorate in the general elections of November, 1948. All of these amendments were defeated overwhelmingly by the people after exposure of their real purpose to the people by the Morning World and the News-Star and the Shreveport Times — as well as by such other newspapers around the state as the New Orleans Times-Picayune and the Baton Rouge State Times.

The defeat of this Earl Long power grab was spectacular in the political sense because Mr. Long and his legislative machine — including floor leader McKeithen — had been in office only six months after a landslide election victory, and had pushed through the Legislature every bill and resolution they desired merely by giving it an okay.

The first of the "Nine Earl Long Power Grab Amendments" would have removed the existing limits on the amount of state funds that could be appropriated between sessions of the Legislature by the board of liquidation of state debt of which the governor, his lieutenant governor and other administration machine officials were members. This board has authority to appropriate moderate sums between sessions of the Legislature for emergencies which may arise in various departments, thus making it possible to meet these emergencies — minor in their total dollar volume — without calling a special session of the Legislature.

What Governor Long and floor leader McKeithen and others of the Long regime proposed was that the limit on the amount of money the board could appropriate between sessions of the Legislature be removed so that this board could usurp the Constitutional appropriation powers of the Legislature and pass tens of millions of dollars of state money around in any way the board saw fit without action of the Legislature itself.

Another of the "Nine Earl Long Power Grab Amendments" would have reduced the terms of members of the L.S.U. board of supervisors from 14 years to seven years so as to enable Governor Long to pack it with his own appointees and thus to establish complete Long political control over Louisiana's biggest and most important educational institution.

Still another of the "Nine Earl Long Power Grabs" would have created a new state board to be appointed in full by the governor and to serve at his will, to control all of the state's colleges.

Thus, Governor Long would have been, in effect, the president and administrator of every state college — and of L.S.U. as well.

To all of this, John McKeithen gave full and earnest support. Senator Russell Long, now the sponsor of Gillis, was a guiding power behind the dictatorship power grab which Governor Earl Long attempted to set up with Mr. McKeithen's assistance.

So, a vote for Mr. McKeithen on the basis of his record — is a vote to re-establish Earl Longism in control of the government of Louisiana, and a vote for Gillis Long is a vote to expand Russell Longism into control of the government of Louisiana.

What's the difference?

Commission Gives Details On Farm Plan

By BASCOM TIMMONS

The National Agricultural Advisory Commission has just come out with a ringing endorsement of the "family farm" and its role in the American economy but there is some disagreement on what to do about the hired hand in such operations.

Some members of the 24-man commission part company, however, with the prevailing opinion that minimum wages and working conditions for hired agricultural labor should be established.

So far no one has been able to draw a clear line defining a family farm and a larger-than-family farm. For statistical purposes the Department of Agriculture considers a family farm one whose hired labor on the average farm is about 1.5 man-years.

At its last meeting the commission set forth nine recommendations "for a healthy family farm agriculture" and there was dissent only on the one dealing with better wages and working conditions for the hired hand.

"Concern about the welfare of farm people surely includes, in a democratic society, the welfare of families who work our farmers," it was noted. "Farm wages and other conditions of employment are not at those industrial minimums in important parts of agriculture nor not in all. We recommend that minimum wages and improved working conditions, in terms adapted to agriculture of production, be extended, by stages, to hired farm workers on a national basis until comparability with industrial minimums is attained."

One of the dissenters was commission member William M. Rawlings, a Virginia peanut and hog producer, who opposed the recommendation on this subject.

"I view this problem as a social problem and I do not agree that the economic condition of agriculture is such that will permit agriculture to bear the entire burden of correcting this social problem."

Further, he feels that the necessary working hours during rush periods, the fact that much farm labor is paid a hourly wage even through periods of unemployment and part-time employment, the wide variance of fringe benefits to many farm laborers such as housing and the like all add up to a most difficult, if not impossible problem in enforcing such legislation should the objectives of the recommendations be enacted into law.

Another Southern member, Charles B. Sayre, head of a cotton cooperative in Mississippi, says flatly proposals for minimum wages in relation to a single target could lead to serious distortions in the rural economy.

Sayre also believes added rural unemployment would be a direct result of a rigid farm wage structure.

A third dissenter, C. D. Dosker of Louisville, Ky., considered it "wishful thinking" to talk about the wage level of farm help attaining that of industrial minimums. The law of supply and demand, he pointed out, is just as effective in agriculture as it is in industry. And over and above that this country can expect to have a large number of subsistence farmers on its hands for years to come.

In many, many instances the family farm survives only because of Federal support programs. It is not likely this help will end at any time soon because of the large number of Congressmen in whose districts these farms are operated.

More than that, though, letting the family farms die off would only replace one problem with another.

If the family farmer had to leave his land to find employment he would head for the cities where there is already serious unemployment. And farmers don't become mechanics, tool and die makers or telephone repairmen overnight. Their's is a skill which has applicability nowhere else but on the farm.

For the time being, the family farmer will continue to be praised for his contributions and that will be that.

Louisiana's Tax Hikers

The tax records of gubernatorial candidates John McKeithen, Gillis Long and Robert F. Kennon ring forth loud and clear. Here they are:

JOHN McKEITHEN, as an Earl Long floor leader in the House of Representatives in 1948 helped push through the massive Long tax-hiking program. He voted for at least 10 tax-hiking measures, co-authored some of them, guided them to legislative passage, and introduced three additional tax raising measures of his own which did not get through.

GILLIS LONG never has held a legislative post, but he boasts of being one of "the Longs" politically as well as by blood, and the record of "the Longs" is high taxing and high spending. Senator Russell B. Long, chief political sponsor of Gillis Long in the race for Governor, was special legislative counsel in the writing of the Earl Long-McKeithen avalanche of tax-hiking bills in 1948.

It has just been brought to my attention that our wonderful (sic) police jury has found another way to waste our money.

Not being satisfied with having obtained from the Legislature permission to hold 52 paid meetings per year at $30 per member per meeting; and also, just recently having voted themselves $125. each for the entire crowd, including engineers and office help, to go to a Baton Rouge convention, it now appears that they have found a new way to squander our money. This latest move is voting to send a delegation all the way to Hawaii at our expense to attend a convention.

I feel that it is time to call a halt to this waste of our tax money, and am wondering if a few new faces after election would not help matters.

Power Is Centralized

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

To the people of West Monroe the abridgment of their liberties by a law that does not permit their voice in public affairs related to sale of their own belonging, there is surprise and even fear of what's next.

The people's properties collectively ought to be held inviolate as is private ownership from harm that may hurt collectively or privately. Not so as it concerns operation at City Hall. The city hall people may sell the new city hall without consent of the governed. This is centralized power without restraint.

Valuable property on the Ouachita River bank, just opposite the old city hall, including the Pine street area, may be sold without specific authority from the people of West Monroe who own the property? The courts may look askance at the action of delegated authority when such large sums are involved in the sale and little or no appraisal is made of the possibilities of how it affects the public interest later. Precedents may be shown.

It may be stated here our investments there, in lands equipment and the fact it affords the beach head for water lines spreading all over town, has more value than the mere price of real estate sought in order to make the deal. And further added that it is our only river bank land and afford s a value for river traffic later.

McKeithen And Longs

The political record of gubernatorial candidate John McKeithen as part and parcel of "The Longs" in Louisiana — politically speaking — is not complete with his tax voting record alone. There also must be consideration of the part he played in Governor Earl Long's attempt to establish, during his 1948-1952 term, a dictatorship in Louisiana of a type perhaps never dreamed of before by any politician in any state.

And discussion of this necessarily brings in Gillis Long, too, although he was not around — politically — at the time.

Mr. McKeithen went into the Legislature in the Earl Long landslide of 1948 and promptly was made one of the governor's House floor leaders. He is running now against a background of Earl Longism, for Mrs. Earl K. Long is his state campaign manager and various other Earl Long leaders and followers around the state are supporting him.

Flushed with the victory of his avalanche of tax-hiking in the 1948 Legislature — brought about in part through the efforts and votes of Mr. McKeithen as a House floor leader, and with the bills written under guidance of Senator Russell Long, present sponsor of gubernatorial candidate Gillis Long, Governor Earl Long next attempted a dictatorship "power grab." Mr. McKeithen and other Long leaders pushed through the Legislature a series of constitutional amendments which would have given the governor one-man control over every cent of spending in the state WITHOUT EVEN LEGISLATIVE APPROVAL.

These amendments also would have given the governor complete control over and the opportunity to completely politicalize Louisiana's state university and all of the state's colleges.

These amendments were called the "Nine Earl Long Power Grab Amendments" when submitted to the electorate in the general elections of November, 1948. All of these amendments were defeated overwhelmingly by the people after exposure of their real purpose to the people by the Morning World and the News-Star and the Shreveport Times — as well as by such other newspapers around the state as the New Orleans Times-Picayune and the Baton Rouge State Times.

The defeat of this Earl Long power grab was spectacular in the political sense because Mr. Long and his legislative machine — including floor leader McKeithen — had been in office only six months after a landslide election victory, and had pushed through the Legislature every bill and resolution they desired merely by giving it an okay.

The first of the "Nine Earl Long Power Grab Amendments" would have removed the existing limits on the amount of state funds that could be appropriated between sessions of the Legislature by the board of liquidation of state debt of which the governor, his lieutenant governor and other administration machine officials were members. This board has authority to appropriate moderate sums between sessions of the Legislature for emergencies which may arise in various departments, thus making it possible to meet these emergencies — minor in their total dollar volume — without calling a special session of the Legislature.

What Governor Long and floor leader McKeithen and others of the Long regime proposed was that the limit on the amount of money the board could appropriate between sessions of the Legislature be removed so that this board could usurp the Constitutional appropriation powers of the Legislature and pass tens of millions of dollars of state money around in any way the board saw fit without action of the Legislature itself.

Another of the "Nine Earl Long Power Grab Amendments" would have reduced the terms of members of the L.S.U. board of supervisors from 14 years to seven years so as to enable Governor Long to pack it with his own appointees and thus to establish complete Long political control over Louisiana's biggest and most important educational institution.

Still another of the "Nine Earl Long Power Grabs" would have created a new state board to be appointed in full by the governor and to serve at his will, to control all of the state's colleges.

Thus, Governor Long would have been, in effect, the president and administrator of every state college — and of L.S.U. as well.

To all of this, John McKeithen gave full and earnest support. Senator Russell Long, now the sponsor of Gillis, was a guiding power behind the dictatorship power grab which Governor Earl Long attempted to set up with Mr. McKeithen's assistance.

So, a vote for Mr. McKeithen on the basis of his record — is a vote to re-establish Earl Longism in control of the government of Louisiana, and a vote for Gillis Long is a vote to expand Russell Longism into control of the government of Louisiana.

What's the difference?

Commission Gives Details On Farm Plan

By BASCOM TIMMONS

The National Agricultural Advisory Commission has just come out with a ringing endorsement of the "family farm" and its role in the American economy but there is some disagreement on what to do about the hired hand in such operations.

Some members of the 24-man commission part company, however, with the prevailing opinion that minimum wages and working conditions for hired agricultural labor should be established.

So far no one has been able to draw a clear line defining a family farm and a larger-than-family farm. For statistical purposes the Department of Agriculture considers a family farm one whose hired labor which on the average farm is about 1.5 man-years.

At its last meeting the commission set forth nine recommendations "for a healthy family farm agriculture" and there was dissent only on the one dealing with better wages and working conditions for the hired hand.

"Concern about the welfare of farm people surely includes, in a democratic society, the welfare of families who work for farmers," it was noted. "Farm wages and other conditions of employment are at or above industrial minimums in important parts of agriculture but not in all. We recommend that minimum wages and improved working conditions, in terms adapted to agricultural production, be extended, by stages, to hired farm workers on a national basis until comparability with industrial minimums is attained."

One of the dissenters was commission member William V. Rawlings, a Virginia peanut and hog producer, who opposed the recommendation on this ground:

"I view this problem as a social problem and I do not agree that the economic condition of agriculture is such that will permit agriculture to bear the entire burden of correcting this social problem."

Further, he feels that the necessary working hours during rush periods, the fact that much farm labor is paid a steady wage even through periods of unemployment and partial employment, the wide variance of fringe benefits to many farm laborers such as housing and the like all add up to a most difficult, if not impossible problem in enforcing such legislation should the objectives of the recommendations be enacted into law.

Another Southern member, Charles R. Sayre, head of a cotton cooperative in Mississippi, says flatly proposals for minmum wages in relation to a single target could lead to serious distortions in the rural economy.

Sayre also believes added rural unemployment would be a direct result of a rigid farm wage structure.

A third dissenter, C. D. Dosker of Louisville, Ky., considered it "wishful thinking" to talk about the wage level of farm help attaining that of industrial minimums. The law of supply and demand, he pointed out, is just as effective in agriculture as it is in industry. And over and above that this country can expect to have a large number of subsistence farmers on its hands for years to come.

In many, many instances the family farm survives only because of Federal support programs. It is not likely this help will end at any time soon because of the large number of Congressmen in whose districts these farms are operated.

If the family farmer had to leave his land to find employment he would head for the cities where there is already serious unemployment. And farmers don't become mechanics, tool and die makers or telephone repairmen overnight. Their's is a skill which has applicability nowhere else but on the farm.

For the time being, the family farmer will continue to be praised for his contributions and that will be that.

THE SPIRIT of William Bradford looks out on a scene in Plymouth, Mass., and on a modern American city, in this drawing symbolizing the influence of the Pilgrim governor who proclaimed the first Thanksgiving Day in 1621. With sturdy pioneer fortitude, hard work and sympathy plus discipline, he governed the Pilgrims for 35 years and left an indelible stamp on the country which was to grow up. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Celebration This Week

Pilgrim Day

EDITOR'S NOTE — Almost forgotten in the shrouds of history is a remarkable man, who should be ranked with the great in the founding of the nation we have today. There could hardly be a better occasion than now to remind America anew of the life and times of this notable figure — to whom we owe the idea of a Thanksgiving observance.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Staff Writer

Posterity has dealt indifferently with William Bradford, the Pilgrim governor who proclaimed the first Thanksgiving Day back in 1621.

By all rights of character and accomplishment, of wisdom and courage, of over-all inspired leadership, Bradford should be revered as a great American, a figure on a par with Washington and Lincoln in our national gallery of heroes.

But somehow, dimly viewed through the mists of history, his image has been obscured by the fame of Miles Standish, John Alden and Priscilla Mullin, whom Longfellow ennobled in his fanciful recreation of the Plymouth story; or else he has been confused with the stern, witch-hunting Puritan governors of the neighboring Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Loomed

Bradford certainly loomed larger in the life of Plymouth than Standish, who was his close friend and military adviser for many years, and John Alden and Priscilla Mullin, whom he joined together in a civil marriage ceremony shortly after becoming governor. And he never did burn a witch, although he once had the unhappy duty of sentencing John Billington, a fellow passenger on the Mayflower, to be hanged for murder.

Only 31 at the time of his election, a silk weaver by trade and Pilgrim by rigid choice of conscience, Bradford was to govern Plymouth for 30 of the next 35 years and to put indelibly the stamp of his remarkable character on the new world's first successful experiment in democracy.

It was he who molded Plymouth into what it was to become, a shining symbol of harmonious self-government, of a hard working, God-fearing free society ruled by love and laws, at peace with its neighbors but ever ready to defend itself in case of attack, a symbol that was to have an effect far beyond the boundaries and far beyond the life span of the tiny colony.

Massachusetts Bay eventually swallowed up Plymouth, but Plymouth's way prevailed in shaping the mighty nation that found its seeds in these small beginnings.

Uneducated

Last-born, uneducated, an orphan at 8 and a religious dissenter at 12, Bradford had in him the makings of the first authentic American: the pioneer, the rebel, the independent thinker, the self-made man. Other New England colonies were run by university men. Virginia's governors came from the royal court. But Bradford was homespun and self-taught; neither birth nor wealth assisted him in fulfilling his destiny.

He took over the fortunes of the colony at a desperate time. John Carver, the first governor, fell dead of sunstroke on a balmy April day shortly after the Mayflower sailed home to England. His death climaxed a series of grim tragedies that decimated the colony in the first few months in the new world.

Of the 102 Mayflower passengers who survived the hazardous 65-day ocean voyage to step ashore on that bleak and forbidding coast, only 56 lived through the first winter. Scarcely 20 men were on hand in the Common House to pick the new governor. The young man they chose already knew much of suffering and of sorrow.

Bradford's religious beliefs and opposition to the Romanish practices of the Church of England soon led him to the little village of Scrooby where he came under the sway of postmaster William Brewster, an elder in the separatist movement who was to be his lifelong friend and confident in the new world.

King James' promise to harry all dissenters out of the land was not long in catching up with the little colony at Scrooby. When Brewster and four others were summoned before the Ecclesiastical Commission in York the congregation resolved to flee to Holland. Here young Bradford's adventures began in earnest.

A British sea captain, hired to take them to Amsterdam, betrayed them to the king's troops. Scarcely 18, Bradford was imprisoned in Lincolnshire for a month.

Next a Dutch captain tried to get them across. The men went aboard first, but troops arrived before the women and children could be taken on at another point. In panic, the captain weighed anchor and headed out to sea, oblivious of the frantic wailings of the separated families. After a harrowing storm that drove the ship close to the coast of Norway, the men finally reached Holland but it was nearly a year before their families got over.

A farmer by upbringing, William Bradford settled down with the Scrooby congregation in the lovely city of Leyden to learn the silk weaver's trade and later to become a worker in fustian, a twill cloth. He became fluent in French and Dutch, took out citizenship, bought a house and married Dorothy May, 16, who in time bore him a son.

The Scrooby folk flourished in exile, but with war threatening between Spain and Holland, they determined to seek refuge in the new land that fired their imaginations in the maps and writings of Capt. John Smith.

"So," wrote Bradford, "they left that goodly & pleasante citie, which had been their resting place near 12 years, but they kenw they were pilgrims & looked not much on these things but lift up their eyes to the heavens, their dearest cuntrie and quieted their spirits."

Obstacles beset them on all sides. King James had to be coaxed into letting them go. Elder Brewster had to be smuggled aboard the Mayflower with a price on his head for printing seditious tracts. They started out in two ships, but the Speedwell, which was to have been their fishing boat in the new world, was overmasted and leaked badly and had to be abandoned.

They had hoped to be underway by early summer, but it was Sept. 6 before the high-pooped, deep-bellied, three-master, 180-ton Mayflower set sail from Plymouth with 102 passengers. Some had been aboard for seven weeks. Moving at only two knots, it would be more than two months before the Mayflower dropped anchor again.

"After longe beating at sea," wrote Bradford, "they fell with that land which is called Cape Cod, the which being made and certainly knowne to be it, they were not a little joyful."

In the cold, dark waters off Provincetown, his 23-year-old wife, Dorothy Bradford, lay buried, on a bitter December day, while her husband was off in the long boat on the final expedition that resulted in the discovery of the fine harbor at Plymouth, she had either jumped or fallen from the high deck of the Mayflower.

Whether a suicide or an accident victim, he would never know, but his sleep was tormented by memories of her pining away for the 5-year-old son they had left behind in Holland.

Plymouth was a widowers' world. Miles Standish, Edward Winslow, Isaac Allerton, the men who helped Bradford most in that first trying year, all had lost their wives in the terrible general sickness which the governor so touchingly describes in his remarkable "History of Plimouth Plantation:"

"But it pleased God to vissite us then with death dayly, and with so generall a disease that the living were scarce able to burie the dead, and ye well not in any measure sufficiente to tend ye sick."

But somehow, through sickness and death, through threat of starvation and Indian attack, through the howling storms of winter and the drenching rains of spring, Plymouth endured. The little graveyard on the hill, where bodies were taken by dark of night lest the Indians learn of their weakness, received no new tenants for a while, and the tiny settlement gradually regained its strength.

By fall, the governor could proclaim a day of thanksgiving and invite the local Indians to share in a feast that lasted three days and saw Miles Standish drill his little company up and down Plymouth's main street for the edification of the 90 braves who showed up.

What had Plymouth to be thankful for?

Against the approach of another severe winter, seven one-room houses and four supply buildings stood in a neat row. There was a good harvest of 20 acres of Indian corn, and fish and fowl abounded at their doorstep. Some beginnings had been made in the beaver trade, so they had hopes of paying off their staggering debt to the merchant adventurers in London who underwrote the voyage.

And, best of all, they had signed a peace treaty with the local Indians that was to remain unbroken during the life of the colony.

The man who guided them and inspired them in all these pursuits was the son of an English yoeman, the sturdy stock that was to prove the backbone of the commonwealth.

Born at Austerfield in Yorkshire in March 1590, William Bradford lost his father when he was a year old and, upon his mother's remarriage, went to live with his grandfather.

When both his mother and his grandfather died within a few years, he was orphaned to the care of two stern uncles, Robert and Thomas Bradford, who never could fathom his early fascination with separatist preachers in the neighborhood.

From the first landfall, the sighting of the clay bluffs of Truro, Bradford rapidly grew in stature in the eyes of his fellow colonists. He took part in all the hazardous explorations up and down the coast, sloshing through snow on those long night marches, falling into an Indian deer trap, chasing after "slavages" who watched them furtively from the woods but seldom ventured closer, finding their cache of corn and an old iron kettle, and finally exchanging musket fire for a shower of arrows in that famous first encounter, which fortunately drew no blood but left each side with a healthy respect for the other.

These adventures steeled Bradford for even tougher trials in the years ahead. After that first grim winter, the first Thanksgiving Day proved only a brief respite from the dangers and misfortunes that constantly beset the colony.

The harvest had hardly been gathered in, when the Fortune sailed into Plymouth Harbor with 35 more hungry mouths to feed. Worse still, loaded with otter, beaver, clapboard and other fruits of the Pilgrims' labor, she was hijacked by French pirates on the way back to England. Her cargo of furs alone would have paid off half the colony's debt, but her loss and similar tragedies left the Pilgrims wallowing in financial difficulties for another 25 years.

HE RULED

Bradford ruled Plymouth with an almost instinctive blend of tolerance and firmness. His straightforward nature is nowhere shown to better advantage than in an incident that took place in Christmas of the same year, when the colony was busy building a mile-long, 11-foot-high palisade around the town as a defense against attack.

EYEWITNESS TO HISTORY

Reporter Gives Shooting Details

EDITOR'S NOTE: Merriman Smith, UPI White House reporter who now is covering his fifth president, was riding several cars behind President Kennedy in a Dallas, Tex., motorcade Friday when an assassin struck. Smith followed the President's car to the hospital. He was there for the announcement of death and he witenssed President Johnson's oath-taking as the only news service reporter aboard the plane back to Washington. This is his eyewitness story of history.

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It was a balmy, sunny noon as we followed President Kennedy's car through downtown Dallas. Then, suddenly, we heard three almost painfully loud cracks.

The first sounded as if it might have been a large firecracker. But the second and third were unmistakable. Gunfire.

I was riding in the White House press "pool" car, equipped with a radio-telephone. I was in the front seat between a telephone company driver and Malcolm Kilduff, acting White House press secretary. Three other pool reporters were wedged in the back seat.

As we heard the shots the President's car, possibly as much as 150 or 200 yards aheads, seemed to falter. There was a flurry of activity in the Secret Service car behind the President's open limousine.

CAR STOPS

Our car stopped for probably only a few seconds, but it seemed like a lifetime. Even for a trained observer there is a limit to what one can comprehend.

I could not see the President or Gov. John Connally of Texas in their car. I thought I saw a flash of pink which would have been Mrs. Kennedy.

Everybody in our car began shouting at the driver to pull up closer to the President's car. But at this moment, we saw the limousine and a motorcycle escort roar away at high speed.

We careened around Vice President Lyndon Johnson's car and its escort and set out down the highway, barely able to keep in sight of the President's car.

We cleared a curve and saw Parkland Hospital, a large brick structure to the left of the highway. We spilled out of the pool car as it entered the hospital driveway.

I ran to the side of the limousine.

LIES FACE DOWN

The President lay face down on the back seat. Mrs. Kennedy made a cradle of her arms around the President's head and bent over him as if she were whispering to him.

Gov. Connally was on his back on the floor of the car, his head and shoulders resting in the arms of his wife, Nellie, who kept shaking her head and shaking with dry sobs.

Clint Hill, the Secret Service agent in charge of the detail assigned to Mrs. Kennedy, was leaning over into the rear of the car.

"How badly was he hit, Clint?" I asked.

"He's dead," Hill replied curtly.

I recall a babble of anxious voices, tense voices — "Where in ---- are the stretchers . . . get a doctor out here . . . he's on the way . . . Come on, easy there." And from somewhere, nervous sobbing.

I raced down a short stretch of sidewalk into a hospital corridor. The first thing I spotted was a small clerical office. Inside, a bespectacled man stood shuffling what appeared to be hospital forms. I spotted a telephone on the shelf.

It took two shaky tries before I successfully dialed the Dallas UPI number. I dictated a bulletin saying the President had been seriously, perhaps fatally, injured by an assassin's bullets while driving through the streets of Dallas.

LITTERS PASS BY

Litters bearng the President and the governor then rolled by as my back was turned.

I knew they had passed, however, from the horrified expression that suddenly spread over the face of the clerk.

I watched a swift and confused panorama sweep before me.

Kilduff raced up and down the hall. Police captains barked at each other. Two priests hurried in behind a Secret Service agent. A police lieutenant ran down the hall with a large carton of blood for tranfusions. A doctor came in and said he was responding to a call for "all neurosurgeons."

Then Kilduff and Wayne Hawks of the White House staff ran by me, shouting that Kilduff would make a statement shortly at the far end of the hospital.

We reached the door of the conference room and there were loud cries of "Quiet!" Fighting to keep his emotions under control, Kilduff said "President John Fitzgerald Kennedy died at approximately one o'clock."

After calling my office I ran back through the hospital to the conference room where a White House aide grabbed me and said Kilduff wanted a pool of three newsmen immediately to fly back to Washington.

I ran down the stairs and into the driveway, only to discover Kilduff had just pulled out in our telephone car.

HOP POLICE CAR

Charles Roberts of Newsweek Magazine, Sid Davis of Westinghouse Broadcasting and I got a police officer to take us to the airport in his squad car.

As we piled out of the car about 200 yards from the presidential aircraft, Kilduff spotted us and said the plane could take two pool men to Washington; that Johnson was about to take the oath of office aboard the plane and would take off immediately thereafter.

I saw a bank of telephone booths beside the runway and asked if I had time to call in the news. "For God's sake, hurry," he said.

All circuits were busy to the Dallas office and even Washington. I finally called the New York bureau of UPI and told them about the impending inauguration of a new president aboard the airplane.

Aboard Air Force One on which I had made so many trips as a press association reporter covering President Kennedy, all of the shades of the larger main cabin were drawn and the interior was hot and dimly lighted. The plane sat on the ground throughout the ceremony.

Kilduff propelled us to the President's suite two-thirds of the way back in the plane. The room normally could accommodate eight to ten people seated.

ROOM IS JAMMED

Johnson waited for Mrs. Kennedy, who was composing herself in a small bedroom in the rear of the plane. She soon appeared alone, dressed in the same pink wool suit she had worn in the morning when she appeared so happy shaking hands with airport crowds at the side of her husband.

"Hold up your right hand and repeat after me," the woman jurist said to Johnson.

Outside, a jet could be heard droning as if landing.

TAKES OATH

Judge Hughes held out the Bible and Johnson covered it with his large left hand. His right arm went slowly into the air and the jurist began to intone the Constitutional oath. "I do solemnly swear I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States."

The brief ceremony ended when Johnson in a deep, firm voice, repeated after the judge, "...And so help me God."

Johnson turned first to his wife, hugged her about the shoulders and kissed her on the cheek. Then he turned to Kennedy's widow, put his left arm around her and kissed her cheek.

The two - minute ceremony concluded at 3:38 p.m. EST and a second later, the President said firmly, "Now, let's get airborne."

Several persons, including Sid Davis of Westinghouse, left the plane at that time. The White House had room for only two pool reporters on the return flight and these posts were filled by Roberts and me.

WALKS TO CASKET

Mrs. Kennedy went into the rear lounge and took a chair beside the coffin. There she remained throughout the flight. Her vigil was shared at times by staff members close to the slain Chief Executive.

Johnson walked back into the main compartment.

"I'm going to make a short statement in a few minutes and give you copies of it" he said. "Then when I get on the ground, I'll do it over again."

When the plane was about 45 minutes from Washington, the new President got on a radio-telephone and placed a call to Mrs. Rose Kennedy, the late President's mother.

"I wish to God there was something I could do," he told her. "I just wanted you to know that."

"We feel like the heart has been cut out of us," Mrs. Johnson told the elder Mrs. Kennedy. Then she broke down for a moment and began to sob. Recovering in a few seconds, she added, "Our love and our prayers are with you."

WASHINGTON EXPERIENCE

Johnson Is Well-Trained For Presidential Tasks

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Chief, World Capital Bureau

WASHINGTON — Lyndon B. Johnson, who came to Washington in December, 1931, as a 23-year-old secretary to a Texas congressman, came back to Washington Friday as the 36th President of the United States.

At 55 he became occupant of the mightiest office in the world at an unprecedently dangerous time as the fourth President in this nuclear era.

No other President came to that office after so long a preparation for it. He has been on the Washington scene for 32 years well more than half of his life.

I remember especialy a day in April, 1937, after he had been chosen representative from the 10th Texas congressional district in a special election to succeed a veteran member of Congress who had died in office.

He had been stricken ill almost immediately after his election and had a close brush with death. Still ill, he boarded the special train brining President Franklin D. Roosevelt through Austin on a return from a fishing trip to the Texas Gulf coast. The young congressman-elect came to the compartment of this writer, rested awhile and went back to the President's car for a long visit with the President.

Whatever ambition Lyndon B. Johnson had before that day, I do not know. I do not doubt that from the talk he had with Roosevelt on that day, he began to prepare himself to be President of the United States.

He became a congressional lieutenant of Franklin D. Roosevelt almost from the first day of his service in the House of Representatives.

He was a relatively new United States Senator when he became Democratic leader and won acclaim as the most powerful occupant of that role in his party's history.

He gave up that powerful place to become Vice President — an office in itself of feeble powers. But in it he had training for the presidency approached by only his predecessor, Richard M. Nixon.

What kind of a President will Lyndon B. Johnson be? That question is being asked by a nation stunned by the assassination of John Fitzgerald Kennedy. It is being asked in the capitals of a hundred nations.

Certainly every writer in this news capital of the world is asking it. This writer who has covered the national scene while nine presidents left office, three of them in sudden death, and who has known Lyndon Johnson for more than 30 years, asks himself the question.

And the best answer is the statement of the new President. "I will do my best. That is all I can do."

That best of Lyndon Johnson I think guarantees the nation a competent President — I believe a great one.

That he will be nominated to succeed himself at Atlantic City next August is unquestioned. No President since Chester A. Arthur has been denied nomination by his party.

Johnson must go before the voters sooner than any President who has come to the office from the vice presidency although, Calvin Coolidge was in the White House from August, 1923, until he again faced the voters in November.

Theodore Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman had most of the McKinley and F. D. Roosevelt four-year terms to finish out.

The new President is in his middle 50's the age at which the nation customarily thinks of a President coming to the White House. He is the sixth vice president who became President about that age level, the exceptions being Theodore Roosevelt at 43 and Harry S. Truman at 60.

HEALTH GOOD

Despite his heart attack a few years ago, he is apparently in excellent health. He could conceivably be elected and re-elected and serve a little more than nine years, longer than any President other than Franklin D. Roosevelt.

That is something for the future to tell, and some things having a bearing on events, will be told very quickly.

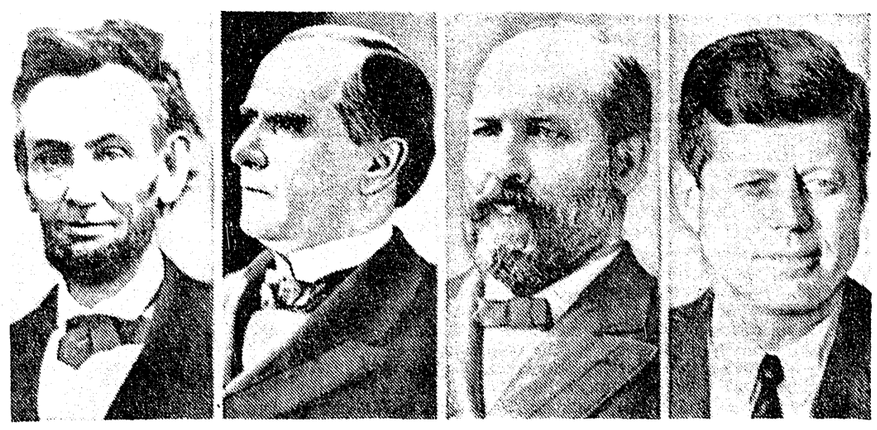
When this week began, people were talking of major party realignments especialy in the South in 1964. But who in either major political party would feel like speculating on such things today?

Of the 19 presidents since the Civil War, only the two Johnsons, Andrew and Lyndon, came to the office as a resident of a Southern State.

Wilson was Virginia-born but governor of an eastern seaboard state at the time of his election. Eisenhower, born in Texas, lived his young manhood in Kansas and most of his mature years in military service.

But Lyndon Johnson, the southern-born, has long been a national figure. In his legislative tasks where he made his great reputation, his careful judgment of the pros and cons of the national problems accounted for his success.

He brings to his executive tasks a thorough knowledge of his country.



THESE ARE THE four U.S. Presidents who have been assassinated while in office. From left: Abraham Lincoln, died April 15, 1865 after he was shot in a Washington theater. Celebration This Week

Pilgrim Day

EDITOR'S NOTE — Almost forgotten in the shrouds of history is a remarkable man, who should be ranked with the great in the founding of the nation we have today. There could hardly be a better occasion than now to remind America anew of the life and times of this notable figure — to whom we owe the idea of a Thanksgiving observance.

Posterity has dealt indifferently with William Bradford, the Pilgrim governor who proclaimed the first Thanksgiving Day back in 1621.

By all rights of character and accomplishment, of wisdom and courage, of over-all inspired leadership, Bradford should be revered as a great American, a figure on a par with Washington and Lincoln in our national gallery of heroes.

But somehow, dimly viewed through the mists of history, his image has been obscured by the fame of Miles Standish, John Alden and Priscilla Mullin, whom Longfellow ennobled in his fanciful recreation of the Plymouth story; or else he has been confused with the stern, witch-hunting Puritan governors of the neighboring Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Loomed

Bradford certainly loomed larger in the life of Plymouth than Standish, who was his close friend and military adviser for many years, and John Alden and Priscilla Mullin, whom he joined together in a civil marriage ceremony shortly after becoming governor. And he never did burn a witch, although he once had the unhappy duty of sentencing John Billington, a fellow passenger on the Mayflower, to be hanged for murder.

Only 31 at the time of his election, a silk weaver by trade and Pilgrim by rigid choice of conscience, Bradford was to govern Plymouth for 30 of the next 35 years and to put indelibly the stamp of his remarkable character on the new world's first successful experiment in democracy.

It was he who molded Plymouth into what it was to become, a shining symbol of harmonious self-government, of a hard-working, God-fearing free society ruled by love and laws, at peace with its neighbors but ever ready to defend itself in case of attack, a symbol that was to have an effect far beyond the boundaries and far beyond the life span of the tiny colony.

Massachusetts Bay eventually swallowed up Plymouth, but Plymouth's way prevailed in shaping the mighty nation that found its seeds in these small beginnings.

Uneducated

Last-born, uneducated, an orphan at 8 and a religious dissenter at 12, Bradford had in him the makings of the first authentic American: the pioneer, the rebel, the independent thinker, the self-made man. Other New England colonies were run by university men. Virginia's governors came from the royal court. But Bradford was homespun and self-taught; neither birth nor wealth assisted him in fulfilling his destiny.

He took over the fortunes of the colony at a desperate time. John Carver, the first governor, fell dead of sunstroke on a balmy April day shortly after the Mayflower sailed home to England. His death climaxed a series of grim tragedies that decimated the colony in the first few months in the new world.

Of the 102 Mayflower passengers who survived the hazardous 65-day ocean voyage to step ashore on that bleak and forbidding coast, only 56 lived through the first winter. Scarcely 20 men were on hand in the Common House to pick the new governor. The young man they chose already knew much of suffering and of sorrow.

Bradford's religious beliefs and opposition to the Romanish practices of the Church of England soon led him to the little village of Scrooby where he came under the sway of postmaster William Brewster, an elder in the separatist movement who was to be his lifelong friend and confident in the new world.

King James' promise to harry all dissenters out of the land was not long in catching up with the little colony at Scrooby. When Brewster and four others were summoned before the Ecclesiastical Commission in York the congregation resolved to flee to Holland. Here young Bradford's adventures began in earnest.

A British sea captain, hired to take them to Amsterdam, betrayed them to the king's troops. Scarcely 18, Bradford was imprisoned in Lincolnshire for a month.

Next a Dutch captain tried to get them across. The men went aboard first, but troops arrived before the women and children could be taken on at another point. In panic, the captain weighed anchor and headed out to sea, oblivious of the frantic wailings of the separated families. After a harrowing storm that drove the ship close to the coast of Norway, the men finally reached Holland but it was nearly a year before their families got over.

A farmer by upbringing, William Bradford settled down with the Scrooby congregation in the lovely city of Leyden to learn the silk weaver's trade and later to become a worker in fustian, a twill cloth. He became fluent in French and Dutch, took out citizenship, bought a house and married Dorothy May, 16, who in time bore him a son.

The Scrooby folk flourished in exile, but with war threatening between Spain and Holland, they determined to seek refuge in the new land that fired their imaginations in the maps and writings of Capt. John Smith.

"So," wrote Bradford, "they left that goodly & pleasante citie, which had been their resting place near 12 years, but they kenw they were pilgrims & looked not much on these things but lift up their eyes to the heavens, their dearest cuntrie and quieted their spirits."

Obstacles beset them on all sides. King James had to be coaxed into letting them go. Elder Brewster had to be smuggled aboard the Mayflower with a price on his head for printing seditious tracts. They started out in two ships, but the Speedwell, which was to have been their fishing boat in the new world, was overmasted and leaked badly and had to be abandoned.

They had hoped to be underway by early summer, but it was Sept. 6 before the high-pooped, deep-bellied, three-master, 180-ton Mayflower set sail from Plymouth with 102 passengers. Some had been aboard for seven weeks. Moving at only two knots, it would be more than two months before the Mayflower dropped anchor again.

"After longe beating at sea," wrote Bradford, "they fell with that land which is called Cape Cod, the which being made and certainly knowne to be it, they were not a little joyful."

In the cold, dark waters off Provincetown, his 23-year-old wife, Dorothy Bradford, lay buried, on a bitter December day, while her husband was off in the long boat on the final expedition that resulted in the discovery of the fine harbor at Plymouth, she had either jumped or fallen from the high deck of the Mayflower.

Whether a suicide or an accident victim, he would never know, but his sleep was tormented by memories of her pining away for the 5-year-old son they had left behind in Holland.

Plymouth was a widowers' world. Miles Standish, Edward Winslow, Isaac Allerton, the men who helped Bradford most in that first trying year, all had lost their wives in the terrible general sickness which the governor so touchingly describes in his remarkable "History of Plimouth Plantation:"

"But it pleased God to vissite us then with death dayly, and with so generall a disease that the living were scarce able to burie the dead, and ye well not in any measure sufficiente to tend ye sick."

But somehow, through sickness and death, through threat of starvation and Indian attack, through the howling storms of winter and the drenching rains of spring, Plymouth endured. The little graveyard on the hill, where bodies were taken by dark of night lest the Indians learn of their weakness, received no new tenants for a while, and the tiny settlement gradually regained its strength.

By fall, the governor could proclaim a day of thanksgiving and invite the local Indians to share in a feast that lasted three days and saw Miles Standish drill his little company up and down Plymouth's main street for the edification of the 90 braves who showed up.

What had Plymouth to be thankful for?

Against the approach of another severe winter, seven one-room houses and four supply buildings stood in a neat row. There was a good harvest of 20 acres of Indian corn, and fish and fowl abounded at their doorstep. Some beginnings had been made in the beaver trade, so they had hopes of paying off their staggering debt to the merchant adventurers in London who underwrote the voyage.

And, best of all, they had signed a peace treaty with the local Indians that was to remain unbroken during the life of the colony.

The man who guided them and inspired them in all these pursuits was the son of an English yoeman, the sturdy stock that was to prove the backbone of the commonwealth.

Born at Austerfield in Yorkshire in March 1590, William Bradford lost his father when he was a year old and, upon his mother's remarriage, went to live with his grandfather.

When both his mother and his grandfather died within a few years, he was orphaned to the care of two stern uncles, Robert and Thomas Bradford, who never could fathom his early fascination with separatist preachers in the neighborhood.

From the first landfall, the sighting of the clay bluffs of Truro, Bradford rapidly grew in stature in the eyes of his fellow colonists. He took part in all the hazardous explorations up and down the coast, sloshing through snow on those long night marches, falling into an Indian deer trap, chasing after "slavages" who watched them furtively from the woods but seldom ventured closer, finding their cache of corn and an old iron kettle, and finally exchanging musket fire for a shower of arrows in that famous first encounter, which fortunately drew no blood but left each side with a healthy respect for the other.

These adventures steeled Bradford for even tougher trials in the years ahead. After that first grim winter, the first Thanksgiving Day proved only a brief respite from the dangers and misfortunes that constantly beset the colony.

The harvest had hardly been gathered in, when the Fortune sailed into Plymouth Harbor with 35 more hungry mouths to feed. Worse still, loaded with otter, beaver, clapboard and other fruits of the Pilgrims' labor, she was hijacked by French pirates on the way back to England. Her cargo of furs alone would have paid off half the colony's debt, but her loss and similar tragedies left the Pilgrims wallowing in financial difficulties for another 25 years.

HE RULED

Bradford ruled Plymouth with an almost instinctive blend of tolerance and firmness. His straightforward nature is nowhere shown to better advantage than in an incident that took place in Christmas of the same year, when the colony was busy building a mile-long, 11-foot-high palisade around the town as a defense against attack.

EYEWITNESS TO HISTORY

Reporter Gives Shooting Details

EDITOR'S NOTE: Merriman Smith, UPI White House reporter who now is covering his fifth president, was riding several cars behind President Kennedy in a Dallas, Tex., motorcade Friday when an assassin struck. Smith followed the President's car to the hospital. He was there for the announcement of death and he witenssed President Johnson's oath-taking as the only news service reporter aboard the plane back to Washington. This is his eyewitness story of history.

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It was a balmy, sunny noon as we followed President Kennedy's car through downtown Dallas. Then, suddenly, we heard three almost painfully loud cracks.

The first sounded as if it might have been a large firecracker. But the second and third were unmistakable. Gunfire.

I was riding in the White House press "pool" car, equipped with a radio-telephone. I was in the front seat between a telephone company driver and Malcolm Kilduff, acting White House press secretary. Three other pool reporters were wedged in the back seat.

As we heard the shots the President's car, possibly as much as 150 or 200 yards aheads, seemed to falter. There was a flurry of activity in the Secret Service car behind the President's open limousine.

CAR STOPS

Our car stopped for probably only a few seconds, but it seemed like a lifetime. Even for a trained observer there is a limit to what one can comprehend.

I could not see the President or Gov. John Connally of Texas in their car. I thought I saw a flash of pink which would have been Mrs. Kennedy.

Everybody in our car began shouting at the driver to pull up closer to the President's car. But at this moment, we saw the limousine and a motorcycle escort roar away at high speed.

We careened around Vice President Lyndon Johnson's car and its escort and set out down the highway, barely able to keep in sight of the President's car.

We cleared a curve and saw Parkland Hospital, a large brick structure to the left of the highway. We spilled out of the pool car as it entered the hospital driveway.

I ran to the side of the limousine.

LIES FACE DOWN

The President lay face down on the back seat. Mrs. Kennedy made a cradle of her arms around the President's head and bent over him as if she were whispering to him.

Gov. Connally was on his back on the floor of the car, his head and shoulders resting in the arms of his wife, Nellie, who kept shaking her head and shaking with dry sobs.

Clint Hill, the Secret Service agent in charge of the detail assigned to Mrs. Kennedy, was leaning over into the rear of the car.

"How badly was he hit, Clint?" I asked.

"He's dead," Hill replied curtly.

I recall a babble of anxious voices, tense voices — "Where in - - - - are the stretchers . . . get a doctor out here . . . he's on the way . . . Come on, easy there." And from somewhere, nervous sobbing.

I raced down a short stretch of sidewalk into a hospital corridor. The first thing I spotted was a small clerical office. Inside, a bespectacled man stood shuffling what appeared to be hospital forms. I spotted a telephone on the shelf.

It took two shaky tries before I successfully dialed the Dallas UPI number. I dictated a bulletin saying the President had been seriously, perhaps fatally, injured by an assassin's bullets while driving through the streets of Dallas.

LITTERS PASS BY

Litters bearng the President and the governor then rolled by as my back was turned.

I knew they had passed, however, from the horrified expression that suddenly spread over the face of the clerk.

I watched a swift and confused panorama sweep before me.

Kilduff raced up and down the hall. Police captains barked at each other. Two priests hurried in behind a Secret Service agent. A police lieutenant ran down the hall with a large carton of blood for tranfusions. A doctor came in and said he was responding to a call for "all neurosurgeons."

Then Kilduff and Wayne Hawks of the White House staff ran by me, shouting that Kilduff would make a statement shortly at the far end of the hospital.

We reached the door of the conference room and there were loud cries of "Quiet!" Fighting to keep his emotions under control, Kilduff said "President John Fitzgerald Kennedy died at approximately one o'clock."

After calling my office I ran back through the hospital to the conference room where a White House aide grabbed me and said Kilduff wanted a pool of three newsmen immediately to fly back to Washington.

I ran down the stairs and into the driveway, only to discover Kilduff had just pulled out in our telephone car.

HOP POLICE CAR

Charles Roberts of Newsweek Magazine, Sid Davis of Westinghouse Broadcasting and I got a police officer to take us to the airport in his squad car.

As we piled out of the car about 200 yards from the presidential aircraft, Kilduff spotted us and said the plane could take two pool men to Washington; that Johnson was about to take the oath of office aboard the plane and would take off immediately thereafter.

I saw a bank of telephone booths beside the runway and asked if I had time to call in the news. "For God's sake, hurry," he said.

All circuits were busy to the Dallas office and even Washington. I finally called the New York bureau of UPI and told them about the impending inauguration of a new president aboard the airplane.

Aboard Air Force One on which I had made so many trips as a press association reporter covering President Kennedy, all of the shades of the larger main cabin were drawn and the interior was hot and dimly lighted. The plane sat on the ground throughout the ceremony.

Kilduff propelled us to the President's suite two-thirds of the way back in the plane. The room normally could accommodate eight to ten people seated.

ROOM IS JAMMED

Johnson waited for Mrs. Kennedy, who was composing herself in a small bedroom in the rear of the plane. She soon appeared alone, dressed in the same pink wool suit she had worn in the morning when she appeared so happy shaking hands with airport crowds at the side of her husband.

"Hold up your right hand and repeat after me," the woman jurist said to Johnson.

Outside, a jet could be heard droning as if landing.

TAKES OATH

Judge Hughes held out the Bible and Johnson covered it with his large left hand. His right arm went slowly into the air and the jurist began to intone the Constitutional oath, "I do solemnly swear I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States."

The brief ceremony ended when Johnson in a deep, firm voice, repeated after the judge, "..And so help me God."

Johnson turned first to his wife, hugged her about the shoulders and kissed her on the cheek. Then he turned to Kennedy's widow, put his left arm around her and kissed her cheek.

The two - minute ceremony concluded at 3:38 p.m. EST and a second later, the President said firmly, "Now, let's get airborne."

Several persons, including Sid Davis of Westinghouse, left the plane at that time. The White House had room for only two pool reporters on the return flight and these posts were filled by Roberts and me.

WALKS TO CASKET

Mrs. Kennedy went into the rear lounge and took a chair beside the coffin. There she remained throughout the flight. Her vigil was shared at times by staff members close to the slain Chief Executive.

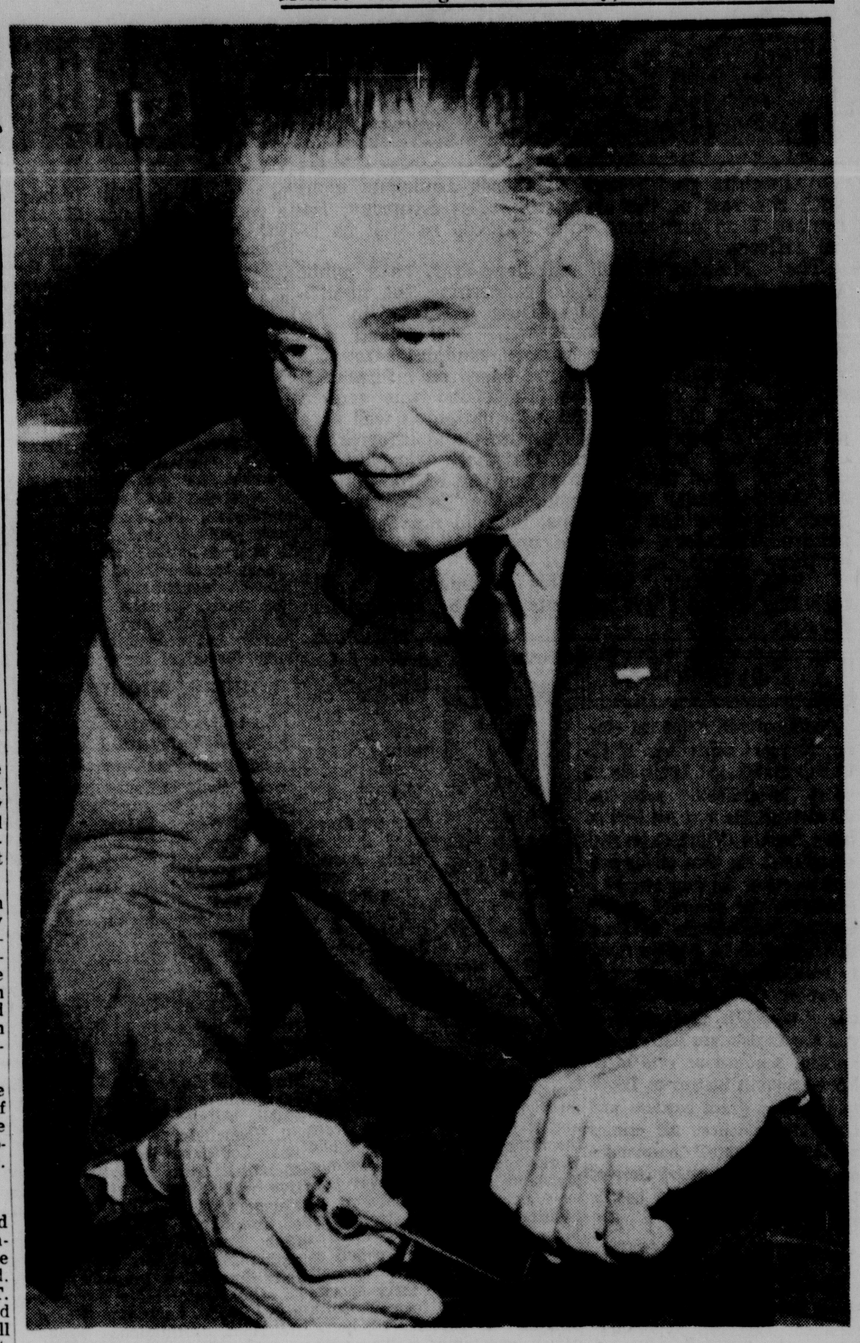
Johnson walked back into the main compartment.

"I'm going to make a short statement in a few minutes and give you copies of it" he said. "Then when I get on the ground, I'll do it over again."

When the plane was about 45 minutes from Washington, the new President got on a radio-telephone and placed a call to Mrs . Rose Kennedy, the late President's mother.

"I wish to God there was something I could do," he told her. "I just wanted you to know that."

"We feel like the heart has been cut out of us," Mrs. Johnson told the elder Mrs. Kennedy. Then she broke down for a moment and began to sob. Recovering in a few seconds, she added, "Our love and our prayers are with you."



THIS IS A closeup study of President Johnson as he took the mighty machinery of government on his first full day as Chief Executive. He was catapulted into the highest office by bullets of an assassin which took the life of John Fitzgerald Kennedy in Dallas (AP Wirephoto)

WASHINGTON EXPERIENCE

Johnson Is Well-Trained For Presidential Tasks

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Chief, World Capital Bureau

WASHINGTON — Lyndon B. Johnson, who came to Washington in December, 1931, as a 23-year-old secretary to a Texas congressman, came back to Washington Friday as the 36th President of the United States.

At 55 he became occupant of the mightiest office in the world at an unprecedently dangerous time as the fourth President in this nuclear era.

No other President came to that office after so long a preparation for it. He has been on the Washington scene for 32 years well more than half of his life.

I remember especialy a day in April, 1937, after he had been chosen representative from the 10th Texas congressional district in a special election to succeed a veteran member of Congress who had died in office.

He had been stricken ill almost immediately after his election and had a close brush with death. Still ill, he boarded the special train brining President Franklin D. Roosevelt through Austin on a return from a fishing trip to the Texas Gulf coast. The young congressman-elect came to the compartment of this writer, rested awhile and went back to the President's car for a long visit with the President.

Whatever ambition Lyndon B. Johnson had before that day, I do not know. I do not doubt that from the talk he had with Roosevelt on that day, he began to prepare himself to be President of the United States.

He became a congressional lieutenant of Franklin D. Roosevelt almost from the first day of his service in the House of Representatives.

He was a relatively new United States Senator when he became Democratic leader and won acclaim as the most powerful occupant of that role in his party's history.

He gave up that powerful place to become Vice President — an office in itself of feeble powers. But in it he had training for the presidency approached by only his predecessor, Richard M. Nixon.

What kind of a President will Lyndon B. Johnson be? That question is being asked by a nation stunned by the assassination of John Fitzgerald Kennedy. It is being asked in the capitals of a hundred nations.

Certainly every writer in this news capital of the world is asking it. This writer who has covered the national scene while nine presidents left office, three of them in sudden death, and who has known Lyndon Johnson for more than 30 years, asks himself the question.

And the best answer is the statement of the new President. "I will do my best. That is all I can do."

That best of Lyndon Johnson I think guarantees the nation a competent President — I believe a great one.

That he will be nominated to succeed himself at Atlantic City next August is unquestioned. No President since Chester A. Arthur has been denied nomination by his party.

Johnson must go before the voters sooner than any President who has come to the office from the vice presidency although, Calvin Coolidge was in the White House from August. 1923, until he again faced the voters in November.

Theodore Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman had most of the McKinley and F. D. Roosevelt four-year terms to finish out.

The new President is in his middle 50's the age at which the nation customarily thinks of a President coming to the White House. He is the sixth vice president who became President about that age level, the exceptions being Theodore Roosevelt at 43 and Harry S. Truman at 60.

HEALTH GOOD

Despite his heart attack a few years ago, he is apparently in excellent health. He could conceivably be elected and re-elected and serve a little more than nine years, longer than any President other than Franklin D. Roosevelt.

That is something for the future to tell, and some things having a bearing on events, will be told very quickly.

When this week began, people were talking of major party realignments especialy in the South in 1964. But who in either major political party would feel like speculating on such things today?

Of the 19 presidents since the Civil War, only the two Johnsons, Andrew and Lyndon, came to the office as a resident of a Southern State.

Wilson was Virginia-born but governor of an eastern seaboard state at the time of his election. Eisenhower, born in Texas, lived his young manhood in Kansas and most of his mature years in military service.

But Lyndon Johnson, the southern-born, has long been a national figure. In his legislative tasks where he made his great reputation, his careful judgment of the pros and cons of the national problems accounted for his success.

He brings to his executive tasks a thorough knowledge of his country.

State Governor's Race Is Jarred By Assissination

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP) —The assassination of President Kennedy sent a shock wave through Louisiana Saturday and jarred the 10-man Democratic race for governor.

Loud drumbeats of political oratory were stilled suddenly. Many candidates quickly announced a halt in their campaigns out of respect for the dead president.

But the halt will be only a brief one, for the first primary is Dec. 7 — just two short weeks away.

For more important to the candidates themselves is the possible upset in their campaign tactics. The late President —because of his civil rights drive— had kindled a bitter opposition and the campaign showed it.

Attacks on the President and his program flared into a big issue in a state where politics is seldom mild.

What happens in the renewed contest for governor may be affected by what happens in Washington in the next several days. A southern Democrat, Lyndon B. Johnson, is President.

In the view of some politicians, President Kennedy's death might install in the state campaign a strong potential for change — but not necessarily so.

There is another current view in the Capital City that the dramatic end of attacks on the President will help those candidates who have attempted mostly to stick to state issues.

A third view is that voters of Louisiana may still be stunned when the election time comes around — with their reaction highly uncertain.

There seems to be little doubt it's an awkward situation for those who have most strongly assailed the President. But it must be remembered political candidates often reflect only what they sense the people are thinking.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis cannot succeed himself.

Among the major candidates for governor, deLesseps Morrison, who was Kennedy's U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, departed for Washington to join mourners.

The onetime New Orleans mayor in a recent campaign speech said some candidates seem to believe the criteria for selecting a governor should be "who can hate President Kennedy the most." He called for election of a governor now and the President next year.

Morrison, however, argued just because he had filled a federal post did not mean he had the Kennedy label on him.

Rep. Gillis Long has been attacked by some rivals as an assistant House whip for the Kennedy administration. But Gillis, backed by Sen. Russell Long, flared back he "owed nothing to the Kennedy administration." Sen. Long was a personal friend of the President, although he has voiced political differences.

U. S. Rep. Edwin E. Willis, who endorsed Gillis Long, told an Arnaudville audience—while on a platform with Gillis—fighting the Kennedys and the Democratic party in the governor's race was "nonsense."

Former Gov. Robert Kennon, who was an Eisenhower Democrat, tagged Morrison, Gillis Long and a third candidate, John McKeithen, "the Kennedy triplets." His platform called for opposition to the nomination or re-election of President Kennedy.

Earlier this week, Leander Perez, strong segregationist and free elector leader, spoke up for Kennon, asserting "his record as governor, . . .and his solid, unswerving stand against the Kennedys" justified the voters' vote and confidence.

Public Service Commissioner McKeithen, who had supported Kennedy in 1960, jumped on the Kennedy civil rights program and later proclaimed:

"All the power that the Kennedys can muster, all the federal patronage that can be brought into play, is being sent into Louisiana in an effort to elect Ambassador Morrison or assistant whip Gillis Long."

Shelby M. Jackson, a strong States Rights advocate, said at Bunkie recently the Kennedys were pouring money into the governor's race and that "the people are not going to elect a governor supported by the national administration."

Claude Kirkpatrick, an independent who styles himself "a moderate conservative Democrat," has placed his emphasis on ways to promote state growth. While Kirkpatrick once said, "I will not support President Kennedy," he has spent more time on other questions.

State Rep. Louis Michot of Lafayette told the Louisiana Chamber of Commerce in a gubernatorial panel session here several weeks ago he would back Sen. Barry Goldwater—if it became a question of Kennedy or Goldwater.

Michot has been aiming most of his blows at what he calls bad government in this state.

What Creates An Assassin?

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — What leads an assassin to squeeze the trigger?

Can more assassinations be prevented?

Prominent psychiatrists gave these views in telephone interviews with The Associated Press.

Dr. Karl Menninger of the Menninger Foundation, Topeka, Kan.: "We must each ask ourselves, what was our own responsibility in this terrible tragedy?

"There is no single, simple cause for violence. Whatever becomes known about the man who pulled the trigger, the danger is that in our anger and anguish we will seek a scapegoat.

"I don't think we have ever taken the problem of crime seriously enough. Crime is a great problem in this country, in big form and little form.

"We assume that violence in human beings is under pretty good control most of the time. It isn't.

"Every president has been assassinated one thousand times by words. Bitter, scathing and hostile things have been said about each president.

"Personal vituperation of the president tends to influence people who are suggestible, who will displace to the person of the president all the feelings they have against other people, all their animonisites and hates and fears.

"It is an easy step from phantasy to action for some people. Hate, frustration, hurt pride and bitter feelings lead them on to pull the trigger."

Dr. Sandor Lorand, New York City: "Whatever the assassin's obsession was, he was a "father' murderer.

"Many normal people are full of violence. We learn to control it. When the controls break down, a person can want to attack the whole community and everyone he thinks is mistreating him. He thinks of himself as a figurehead saving the world.

"The responsibility lies in all of us to maintain and strengthen the controls over our violence. It lies particularly with those leaders, whoever they be, ment of individuals by preachwho disrupt the normal adjusting violence, who encourage the view that rebellion and opposition are all right even if carried to the point of violence. Then violence has to break through.

"We must not be led by those who try to disrupt, who express violence. President Kennedy was far from challenging people to violence. He believed in compromise."

Dr. Kenneth Apple, Philadelphia, past president of the American Psychiatric Association: "We have had a lot more assassinations than England. Whether this goes with high emphasis on individuality and aggressiveness and a high crime rate and lack of respect for authority, as compared with England, needs to be thought through. Encouraging the idea that a person can do anything he wants to do is unwise.

"In England, there is more tolerance, more respect for authority, and more of a feeling for gradual change."

Compared with the usual murderer, Appel said, the assassin "has more background of grandiosity. Hitler suffered from a great deal of personal frustration and severe inferiority. He had friends shot. It is the same sort of personality."

Dr. Daniel Blain of Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, former medical director of the American Psychiatric Association: "There are fanatics, superpatriots and delusional paranoids who transfer their own inner problems to others, particularly to people of prominence, such as world leaders.

"They make the leaders the victims of rumor, especially of a slanderous nature, or physical violence in seeking revenge.

"It is logical to believe that assassins, and people who join unwieldy mobs, feel themselves to be members of a persecuted group. They go beyond reason or logic.

"A main defense is against any form of extremism. By theory, this type of action stems from unsolved anxieties among masses of people. A defense is to get their confidence. We need more study of how we can sublimate or substitute for their antisocial drives.

"Current stresess in the nation are apt to breed more people like this than at times when there is less national anxiety and phenomena of rapid change. Reactions to change bring out the vulnerable people who are frightened.

ON MONDAY

State, Federal Offices To Close

All federal and state offices in the Twin Cities will be closed Monday in observance of a national day of mourning for the late President John Kennedy who was killed Friday.

Some municipal offices may close for part of the day, but most businesses will remain open, although several businessmen said they would close between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., the hours of the late chief executive's funeral in Washington.

Both the Central Savings Bank and Trust Co., and the Ouachita National bank will be closed all day. However, the First National Bank of West Monroe and the Sterlington Bank had not finalized plans for Monday by late Saturday night.

Monroe Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard said he would meet with the city council at 8 a.m. Monday and recommend that City Hall offices be closed down at 10 a.m.

West Monroe Mayor J. Allan Norris said he would issue a statement "sometime today" on what action would be taken there.

"I haven't issued any orders that they be closed," he said.

Monroe Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn said that all postal functions will be closed Monday except for certain essential services such as special deliveries, dispatches and the placing of mail in boxes. A skeleton crew is scheduled to be on duty at the postoffice, but no windows will be open. A similar statement was issued by Homer Roark, West Monroe postmaster.

In a joint statement, Lee Vanderpool, president of the Ouachita National Bank, and Conway Crossland, president of the Central Savings Bank, said: "Out of respect for the late President and in observance of the national day of mourning we believe it fitting to not open for business on Monday and will remain closed the entire day."

Comptroller James J. Saxon gave his approval to the closing of all banks throughout the nation on Monday and urged that all do so where the law allows it.

In Louisiana, Gov. Jimmie H. Davis also set aside Monday as a day of mourning in the state. He directed that all functions of state government, except those indispensable to the public health and safety, be "put aside out of reverence to the late President."

He also directed that all flags over all public buildings throughout the state continue to fly at half mast for a period of 30 days from last Friday.

At Northeast Louisiana State College a special memorial to the late President will be observed when all offices will be closed and classes suspended during the funeral hours. The cafeteria and snack bar will remain open noted college officials. They said this would permit faculty members and students to participate in various memorial services there.

Other colleges and universities in the state to be closed include Louisiana State University and the University of Southwestern Louisiana. LSU president Dr. John A. Hunter said that all classes will be cancelled Monday. At Southwestern also all classes and offices will be closed.

UNAPPRECIATED HEROICS

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — When Police Lt. W. T. Nelson spotted an apartment house fire and ran inside to rouse its sleeping occupants, not everybody appreciated his efforts.

New President's Health Excellent, Doctors Say

NEW YORK (UPI) —President Lyndon B. Johnson has completely recovered from the heart attack he suffered eight years ago and will be a vigorously healthy chief executive, according to heart specialists here.

They pointed to the active life Johnson has led since his months - long recuperation in 1955, including the 1960 election campaign as President Kennedy's running mate.

"You could have no better proof of his complete recovery," said one professor of medicine who for reasons of medical ethics spoke anonymously. He and other specialists deferred to Johnson's own physician, Dr. J. Willis Hurst of Emory University, Atlanta, who was en route from New York to Washington.

They could speak of what medical science knows in general about recoveries from heart attacks. Each week, each month and each year the victim survives his personal disaster, his heart muscle is healing itself and ridding itself of scar tissue.

SOME REMAINS

Some scar tissue always remains as a residue but it need not interfere with healthy heart function, they said. In the unanimous opinion of three specialists, a man who has had a complete recovery of years-long duration can face up to the most exacting tasks, including that of being president.

They pointed to the example of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who suffered a heart attack during his first term, went on to win re-election and still is vigorously healthy.

To be sure, the man who has had one heart attack has demonstrated "susceptibility," one specialist said. But, after he has recovered, this "susceptibility can be minimized to zero by proper living."

Johnson's physician, Dr. Hurst, has told colleagues that his patient "has devoted himself unstintingly to his recovery." At the time of his attack he weighed well over 200 pounds. Now his weight is around 180 pounds which is considered an "optimum" weight for a man who is six feet three inches tall with heavy bone structure.

SHOCK NOTION

The specialists rejected the layman's idea that a sudden emotional shock — such as the assassination of a beloved superior and being elevated in a flash into the nation's highest office — was "bad for the heart."

It is not "bad" for the healthy heart, they said. The healthy heart adjusts itself to all the situations of living without any damage to itself. They were convinced on the evidence available to them that Johnson has a healthy heart since his attack occurred on July 2, 1955, and he has had many shocks since then, even though none could be in any way comparable to the shock he had Friday.

NEVER-ENDING STREAM

Grieving Nation Paying Tributes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grieving nation and a sympathetic world poured out a never-ending stream of tributes Saturday to President Kennedy.

From almost everywhere — Red China was a lone exception —came words of regret and grief and condolences for Kennedy's young widow.

Messages of shared sorrow came, too, to the slain President's mother and father.

It was not until Saturday that Joseph P. Kennedy, ill at the family home in Massachusetts, was told of the death of this son in whom he took such pride.

In high places and low the sadness—and some burning anger—carried over from the feeling of stunned shock that came from the first, almost incredible news that America's brilliant young president had been assassinated.

In Rome Pope Paul VI prayed for Kennedy's soul, gave him absolution, and expressed "prayerful wishes that his death may not hinder the cause of world peace."

In a message from Moscow, Premier Khrushchev cabled Jacqueline Kennedy of his deep personal grief and said: "All people who knew him greatly respected him, and I shall always keep the memory of my meetings with him.

"Accept my most sincere condolences and expressions of wholehearted sympathy with your grievous bereavement."

In Communist China, where Kennedy often had been called a warmonger, the assassination was reported matter of fact, without comment.

There was one unfortunate incident in England. After broadcasting the news of Kennedy's death, the British Broadcasting Corp. put a comedy on television. Angry complaints deluged BBC immediately, and the network went back to church music and tributes to Kennedy.

Queen Elizabeth II's husband, Prince Philip, will represent the British crown at the funeral Monday, it was announced. He will fly from London Sunday with Prime Minister Sir Alec and Lady Douglas-Home.

The queen said she had been shocked and horrified by the tragedy.

The prime minister was one of more than 5,000 who attended a Requiem Mass for Kennedy Saturday at the Roman Catholic Cathedral of Westminster.

Representing France at the funeral will be President Charles de Gaulle. De Gaulle said Kennedy had "died like a soldier, under fire, for his duty and in the service of his country."

"As a former comrade in arms, his death kills something in me," MacArthur said in his message to Mrs. Kennedy, sent from New York.

"A great statesman, and a wise and valiant man" was the tribute from Sir Winston Churchill, who had listened in London to television accounts of the assassination.

Former Presidents Herbert Hoover and Dwight D. Eisenhower gave their statements in New York. Hoover said Kennedy "has given his life for his country," and Eisenhower said he had shared with all Americans a feeling of shock and dismay.

Former President Harry S. Truman, in Independence, Mo., said he was shocked beyond words.

The reaction cut across political and all other lines.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona called the President's death "a profound loss to the nation and the free world." Richard M. Nixon, who ran against Kennedy in 1960, called his death "a terrible tragedy."

Former Vice President John Nance Garner was described as badly shaken by the news. Kennedy had called Garner at Uvalde, Tex., a few hours before the President was killed, to congratulate Garner on his 95th birthday.

Negro leaders compared the loss of Kennedy to the death of Abraham Lincoln, felled by an assassin in 1865.

"The second emancipator of black people from the serfdom of racial segregation has been struck down," said A. Philip Randolph.

And Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the nation and the world, in Kennedy's death, had been deprived of a stalwart leadership "in the ageless struggle for human advancement."

Two southern governors who fought Kennedy's proposals for Negroes, George C. Wallace of Alabama and Ross Barnett of Mississippi, joined in deploring what Barnett called "the cowardly act."

Wallace said the assassin "must be filled with universal malice."

Dallas, where the fatal shots were fired, was grieved and angry, too.

Mayor Earle Cabell said that never before had the city welcomed any guest with the enthusiasm it showered on Kennedy. Yet, he said, everything had been tragically marred by "the irrational act of one man."

A Dallas cab driver told a passenger: "I got a hard knot in my belly. I love Texas. I have been in a lot of places where there are nuts. I never thought we had those kind of nuts in Texas. I'm going home when I drop you. I gotta unwind. Stupid, stupid!"

A Japanese who had a unique spot in Kennedy's career expressed regrets. This was Kohai Hanami, captain of the destroyer that almost killed Kennedy in 1943 when it rammed his torpedo patrol boat.

"The world has lost an irreplaceable man," Hanami said.

3 Previous Assassins Were Killed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Wilkes Booth, who killed Abraham Lincoln in 1865, was pursued and trapped 12 days later in a barn near Bowling Green, Va., where he was shot by a cavalry sergeant.

Charles J. Guiteau, who shot James A. Garfield in a Washington D.C., railroad station on July 2, 1881, was tried, convicted and hanged in Washington one year later.

Leon Czolgosz, who shot William McKinley in Buffalo, N.Y., on Sept. 14, 1901, was tried in New York Supreme Court, convicted and electrocuted six weeks later in Auburn, N.Y., Prison.

All three used pistols at short range. Guiteau and Czolgosz made no attempt to escape.

Booth, a Southern sympathizer, thought he would find asylum in the South. Historians are not in universal agreement about his motives and planning.

Many think he was simply a fanatic. Others find evidence of a plot and hold that Booth was a hired assassin of a group of conspirators.

Three men and a woman were hanged less than three months later for complicity in the assassination. Four others were imprisoned. Juries failed to convict a ninth man.

By a rare coincidence, Lincoln's oldest son, Robert Todd, was at the scene of all three assassinations.

Condition Of Connally Said 'Improved'

By JERRY PILLARD

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Gov. John B. Connally, painfully wounded by the assassin who killed President Kennedy, showed much improvement Saturday.

The possibility arose that Connally may have been an equally deliberate target along with Kennedy.

The man charged with the assassination, Lee Harvey Oswald, 24, wrote Connally when Connally was secretary of the Navy.

Oswald asked a reversal of Oswald's undesirable discharge from the Marine Corps.

Connally replied by noting that he had resigned as secretary of the Navy and had no power to reverse the discharge.

Oswald had written Connally from Minsk in the Soviet Union.

Connally, 46, received the news Saturday that President Kennedy was dead.

"That's what I was afriad of," Connally said.

Dr. Robert Shaw, his attending physician, said the bullet apparently struck Connally in the back, went through his chest into his wrist and then embedded in his thigh.

A late medical bulletin reported Connally's color, pulse and blood pressure good. He is lucid and has talked with members of his staff and Mrs. Connally.

The bullet splintered a rib, causing considerable damage to the surrounding area. He may be in the hospital 10 to 14 days.

State Governor's Race Is Jarred By Assissination

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP) —The assassination of President Kennedy sent a shock wave through Louisiana Saturday and jarred the 10-man Democratic race for governor.

Loud drumbeats of political oratory were stilled suddenly. Many candidates quickly announced a halt in their campaigns out of respect for the dead president.

But the halt will be only a brief one, for the first primary is Dec. 7 — just two short weeks away.

For more important to the candidates themselves is the possible upset in their campaign tactics. The late President —because of his civil rights drive—had kindled a bitter opposition and the campaign showed it.

Attacks on the President and his program flared into a big issue in a state where politics is seldom mild.

What happens in the renewed contest for governor may be affected by what happens in Washington in the next several days. A southern Democrat, Lyndon B. Johnson, is President.

In the view of some politicians, President Kennedy's death might install in the state campaign a strong potential for change — but not necessarily so.

There is another current view in the Capital City that the dramatic end of attacks on the President will help those candidates who have attempted mostly to stick to state issues.

A third view is that voters of Louisiana may still be stunned when the election time comes around — with their reaction highly uncertain.

There seems to be little doubt it's an awkward situation for those who have most strongly assailed the President. But it must be remembered political candidates often reflect only what they sense the people are thinking.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis cannot succeed himself.

Among the major candidates for governor, deLesseps Morrison, who was Kennedy's U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, departed for Washington to join mourners.

The onetime New Orleans mayor in a recent campaign speech said some candidates seem to believe the criteria for selecting a governor should be "who can hate President Kennedy the most." He called for election of a governor now and the President next year.

Morrison, however, argued just because he had filled a federal post did not mean he had the Kennedy label on him.

Rep. Gillis Long has been attacked by some rivals as an assistant House whip for the Kennedy administration. But Gillis, backed by Sen. Russell Long, flared back he "owed nothing to the Kennedy administration." Sen. Long was a personal friend of the President, although he has voiced political differences.

U. S. Rep. Edwin E. Willis, who endorsed Gillis Long, told an Arnaudville audience—while on a platform with Gillis—fighting the Kennedys and the Democratic party in the governor's race was "nonsense."

Former Gov. Robert Kennon, who was an Eisenhower Democrat, tagged Morrison, Gillis Long and a third candidate, John McKeithen, "the Kennedy triplets." His platform called for opposition to the nomination or re-election of President Kennedy.

Earlier this week, Leander Perez, strong segregationist and free elector leader, spoke up for Kennon, asserting "his record as governor. . .and his solid, unswerving stand against the Kennedys" justified the voters' vote and confidence.

Public Service Commissioner McKeithen, who had supported Kennedy in 1960, jumped on the Kennedy civil rights program and later proclaimed:

"All the power that the Kennedys can muster, all the federal patronage that can be brought into play, is being sent into Louisiana in an effort to elect Ambassador Morrison or assistant whip Gillis Long."

Shelby M. Jackson, a strong States Rights advocate, said at Bunkie recently the Kennedys were pouring money into the governor's race and that "the people are not going to elect a governor supported by the national administration."

Claude Kirkpatrick, an independent who styles himself "a moderate conservative Democrat," has placed his emphasis on ways to promote state growth. While Kirkpatrick once said, "I will not support President Kennedy," he has spent more time on other questions.

State Rep. Louis Michot of Lafayette told the Louisiana Chamber of Commerce in a gubernatorial panel session here several weeks ago he would back Sen. Barry Goldwater—if it became a question of Kennedy or Goldwater.

Michot has been aiming most of his blows at what he calls bad government in this state.

What Creates An Assassin?

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — What leads an assassin to squeeze the trigger?

Can more assassinations be prevented?

Prominent psychiatrists gave these views in telephone interviews with The Associated Press.

Dr. Karl Menninger of the Menninger Foundation, Topeka, Kan.: "We must each ask ourselves, what was our own responsibility in this terrible tragedy?

"There is no single, simple cause for violence. Whatever becomes known about the man who pulled the trigger, the danger is that in our anger and anguish we will seek a scapegoat.

"I don't think we have ever taken the problem of crime seriously enough. Crime is a great problem in this country, in big form and little form.

"We assume that violence in human beings is under pretty good control most of the time. It isn't.

"Every president has been assassinated one thousand times by words. Bitter, scathing and hostile things have been said about each president.

"Personal vituperation of the president tends to influence people who are suggestible, who will displace to the person of the president all the feelings they have against other people, all their animonisites and hates and fears.

"It is an easy step from phantasy to action for some people. Hate, frustration, hurt pride and bitter feelings lead them on to pull the trigger."

Dr. Sandor Lorand, New York City: "Whatever the assassin's obsession was, he was a "father' murderer.

"Many normal people are full of violence. We learn to control it. When the controls break down, a person can want to attack the whole community and everyone he thinks is mistreating him. He thinks of himself as a figurehead saving the world.

"The responsibility lies in all of us to maintain and strengthen the controls over our violence. It lies particularly with those leaders, whoever they be, ment of individuals by preach- who disrupt the normal adjusting violence, who encourage the view that rebellion and opposition are all right even if carried to the point of violence. Then violence has to break through.

"We must not be led by those who try to disrupt, who express violence. President Kennedy was far from challenging people to violence. He believed in compromise."

Dr. Kenneth Apple, Philadelphia, past president of the American Psychiatric Association: "We have had a lot more assassinations than England. Whether this goes with high emphasis on individuality and aggressiveness and a high crime rate and lack of respect for authority, as compared with England, needs to be thought through. Encouraging the idea that a person can do anything he wants to do is unwise.

"In England, there is more tolerance, more respect for authority, and more of a feeling for gradual change."

Compared with the usual murderer, Appel said, the assassin "has more background of grandiosity. Hitler suffered from a great deal of personal frustration and severe inferiority. He had friends shot. It is the same sort of personality."

Dr. Daniel Blain of Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, former medical director of the American Psychiatric Association: "There are fanatics, superpatriots and delusional paranoids who transfer their own inner problems to others, particularly to people of prominence, such as world leaders.

"They make the leaders the victims of rumor, especially of a slanderous nature, or physical violence in seeking revenge.

"It is logical to believe that assassins, and people who join unwieldy mobs, feel themselves to be members of a persecuted group. They go beyond reason or logic.

"A main defense is against any form of extremism. By theory, this type of action stems from unsolved anxieties among masses of people. A defense is to get their confidence. We need more study of how we can sublimate or substitute for their antisocial drives.

"Current stresess in the nation are apt to breed more people like this than at times when there is less national anxiety and phenomena of rapid change. Reactions to change bring out the vulnerable people who are frightened.

ON MONDAY

State, Federal Offices To Close

All federal and state offices in the Twin Cities will be closed Monday in observance of a national day of mourning for the late President John Kennedy who was killed Friday.

Some municipal offices may close for part of the day, but most businesses will remain open, although several businessmen said they would close between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., the hours of the late chief executive's funeral in Washington.

Both the Central Savings Bank and Trust Co., and the Ouachita National bank will be closed all day. However, the First National Bank of West Monroe and the Sterlington Bank had not finalized plans for Monday by late Saturday night.

Monroe Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard said he would meet with the city council at 8 a.m. Monday and recommend that City Hall offices be closed down at 10 a.m.

West Monroe Mayor J. Allan Norris said he would issue a statement "sometime today" on what action would be taken there.

"I haven't issued any orders that they be closed," he said.

Monroe Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn said that all postal functions will be closed Monday except for certain essential services such as special deliveries, dispatches and the placing of mail in boxes. A skeleton crew is scheduled to be on duty at the postoffice, but no windows will be open. A similar statement was issued by Homer Roark, West Monroe postmaster.

In a joint statement, Lee Vanderpool, president of the Ouachita National Bank, and Conway Crossland, president of the Central Savings Bank, said: "Out of respect for the late President and in observance of the national day of mourning we believe it fitting to not open for business on Monday and will remain closed the entire day."

Comptroller James J. Saxon gave his approval to the closing of all banks throughout the nation on Monday and urged that all do so where the law allows it.

In Louisiana, Gov. Jimmie H. Davis also set aside Monday as a day of mourning in the state. He directed that all functions of state government, except those indispensable to the public health and safety, be "put aside out of reverence to the late President."

He also directed that all flags over all public buildings throughout the state continue to fly at half mast for a period of 30 days from last Friday.

At Northeast Louisiana State College a special memorial to the late President will be observed when all offices will be closed and classes suspended during the funeral hours. The cafeteria and snack bar will remain open noted college officials. They said this would permit faculty members and students to participate in various memorial services there.

Other colleges and universities in the state to be closed include Louisiana State University and the University of Southwestern Louisiana. LSU president Dr. John A. Hunter said that all classes will be cancelled Monday. At Southwestern also all classes and offices will be closed.

UNAPPRECIATED HEROICS

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — When Police Lt. W. T. Nelson spotted an apartment house fire and ran inside to rouse its sleeping occupants, not everybody appreciated his efforts.

One apartment dweller sleepily yelled, "go home, drunk!" Thanks to Nelson, nobody was injured.

New President's Health Excellent, Doctors Say

NEW YORK (UPI) —President Lyndon B. Johnson has completely recovered from the heart attack he suffered eight years ago and will be a vigorously healthy chief executive, according to heart specialists here.

They pointed to the active life Johnson has led since his months - long recuperation in 1955, including the 1960 election campaign as President Kennedy's running mate.

"You could have no better proof of his complete recovery," said one professor of medicine who for reasons of medical ethics spoke anonymously. He and other specialists deferred to Johnson's own physician, Dr. J. Willis Hurst of Emory University, Atlanta, who was en route from New York to Washington.

They could speak of what medical science knows in general about recoveries from heart attacks. Each week, each month and each year the victim survives his personal disaster, his heart muscle is healing itself and ridding itself of scar tissue.

SOME REMAINS

Some scar tissue always remains as a residue but it need not interfere with healthy heart function, they said. In the unanimous opinion of three specialists, a man who has had a complete recovery of years-long duration can face up to the most exacting tasks, including that of being president.

They pointed to the example of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who suffered a heart attack during his first term, went on to win re-election and still is vigorously healthy.

To be sure, the man who has had one heart attack has demonstrated "susceptibility," one specialist said. But, after he has recovered, this "susceptibility can be minimized to zero by proper living."

Johnson's physician, Dr. Hurst, has told colleagues that his patient "has devoted himself unstintingly to his recovery." At the time of his attack he weighed well over 200 pounds. Now his weight is around 180 pounds which is considered an "optimum" weight for a man who is six feet three inches tall with heavy bone structure.

SHOCK NOTION

The specialists rejected the layman's idea that a sudden emotional shock — such as the assassination of a beloved superior and being elevated in a flash into the nation's highest office — was "bad for the heart."

It is not "bad" for the healthy heart, they said. The healthy heart adjusts itself to all the situations of living without any damage to itself. They were convinced on the evidence available to them that Johnson has a healthy heart since his attack occurred on July 2, 1955, and he has had many shocks since then, even though none could be in any way comparable to the shock he had Friday.

NEVER-ENDING STREAM

Grieving Nation Paying Tributes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grieving nation and a sympathetic world poured out a never-ending stream of tributes Saturday to President Kennedy.

From almost everywhere—Red China was a lone exception—came words of regret and grief and condolences for Kennedy's young widow.

Messages of shared sorrow came, too, to the slain President's mother and father.

It was not until Saturday that Joseph P. Kennedy, ill at the family home in Massachusetts, was told of the death of this son in whom he took such pride.

In high places and low the sadness—and some burning anger—carried over from the feeling of stunned shock that came from the first, almost incredible news that America's brilliant young president had been assassinated.

In Rome Pope Paul VI prayed for Kennedy's soul, gave him absolution, and expressed "prayerful wishes that his death may not hinder the cause of world peace."

In a message from Moscow, Premier Khrushchev cabled Jacqueline Kennedy of his deep personal grief and said: "All people who knew him greatly respected him, and I shall always keep the memory of my meetings with him.

"Accept my most sincere condolences and expressions of wholehearted sympathy with your grievous bereavement."

In Communist China, where Kennedy often had been called a warmonger, the assassination was reported matter of fact, without comment.

There was one unfortunate incident in England. After broadcasting the news of Kennedy's death, the British Broadcasting Corp. put a comedy on television. Angry complaints deluged BBC immediately, and the network went back to church music and tributes to Kennedy.

Queen Elizabeth II's husband, Prince Philip, will represent the British crown at the funeral Monday, it was announced. He will fly from London Sunday with Prime Minister Sir Alec and Lady Douglas-Home.

The queen said she had been shocked and horrified by the tragedy.

The prime minister was one of more than 5,000 who attended a Requiem Mass for Kennedy Saturday at the Roman Catholic Cathedral of Westminster.

Representing France at the funeral will be President Charles de Gaulle. De Gaulle said Kennedy had "died like a soldier, under fire, for his duty and in the service of his country."

"As a former comrade in arms, his death kills something in me," MacArthur said in his message to Mrs. Kennedy, sent from New York.

"A great statesman, and a wise and valiant man" was the tribute from Sir Winston Churchill, who had listened in London to television accounts of the assassination.

Former Presidents Herbert Hoover and Dwight D. Eisenhower gave their statements in New York. Hoover said Kennedy "has given his life for his country," and Eisenhower said he had shared with all Americans a feeling of shock and dismay.

Former President Harry S. Truman, in Independence, Mo., said he was shocked beyond words.

The reaction cut across political and all other lines.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona called the President's death "a profound loss to the nation and the free world." Richard M. Nixon, who ran against Kennedy in 1960, called his death "a terrible tragedy."

Former Vice President John Nance Garner was described as badly shaken by the news. Kennedy had called Garner at Uvalde, Tex., a few hours before the President was killed, to congratulate Garner on his 95th birthday.

Negro leaders compared the loss of Kennedy to the death of Abraham Lincoln, felled by an assassin in 1865.

"The second emancipator of black people from the serfdom of racial segregation has been struck down," said A. Philip Randolph.

And Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the nation and the world, in Kennedy's death, had been deprived of a stalwart leadership "in the ageless struggle for human advancement."

Two southern governors who fought Kennedy's proposals for Negroes, George C. Wallace of Alabama and Ross Barnett of Mississippi, joined in deploring what Barnett called "the cowardly act."

Wallace said the assassin "must be filled with universal malice."

Dallas, where the fatal shots were fired, was grieved and angry, too.

Mayor Earle Cabell said that never before had the city welcomed any guest with the enthusiasm it showered on Kennedy. Yet, he said, everything had been tragically married by "the irrational act of one man."

A Dallas cab driver told a passenger: "I got a hard knot in my belly. I love Texas. I have been in a lot of places where there are nuts. I never thought we had those kind of nuts in Texas. I'm going home when I drop you. I gotta unwind. Stupid, stupid!"

A Japanese who had a unique spot in Kennedy's career expressed regrets. This was Kohai Hanami, captain of the destroyer that almost killed Kennedy in 1943 when it rammed his torpedo patrol boat.

"The world has lost an irreplaceable man," Hanami said.

3 Previous Assassins Were Killed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

John Wilkes Booth, who killed Abraham Lincoln in 1865, was pursued and trapped 12 days later in a barn near Bowling Green, Va., where he was shot by a cavalry sergeant.

Charles J. Guiteau, who shot James A. Garfield in a Washington D.C., railroad station on July 2, 1881, was tried, convicted and hanged in Washington one year later.

Leon Czolgosz, who shot William McKinley in Buffalo, N.Y., on Sept. 14, 1901, was tried in New York Supreme Court, convicted and electrocuted six weeks later in Auburn, N.Y., Prison.

All three used pistols at short range. Guiteau and Czolgosz made no attempt to escape.

Booth, a Southern sympathizer, thought he would find asylum in the South. Historians are not in universal agreement about his motives and planning.

Many think he was simply a fanatic. Others find evidence of a plot and hold that Booth was a hired assassin of a group of conspirators.

Three men and a woman were hanged less than three months later for complicity in the assassination. Four others were imprisoned. Juries failed to convict a ninth man.

By a rare coincidence, Lincoln's oldest son, Robert Todd, was at the scene of all three assassinations.

Condition Of Connally Said 'Improved'

By JERRY PILLARD

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Gov. John B. Connally, painfully wounded by the assassin who killed President Kennedy, showed much improvement Saturday.

The possibility arose that Connally may have been an equally deliberate target along with Kennedy.

The man charged with the assassination, Lee Harvey Oswald, 24, wrote Connally when Connally was secretary of the Navy.

Oswald asked a reversal of Oswald's undesirable discharge from the Marine Corps.

Connally replied by noting that he had resigned as secretary of the Navy and had no power to reverse the discharge.

Oswald had written Connally from Minsk in the Soviet Union.

Connally, 46, received the news Saturday that President Kennedy was dead.

"That's what I was afriad of," Connally said.

Dr. Robert Shaw, his attending physician, said the bullet apparently struck Connally in the back, went through his chest into his wrist and then embedded in his thigh.

A late medical bulletin reported Connally's color, pulse and blood pressure good. He is lucid and has talked with members of his staff and Mrs. Connally.

The bullet splintered a rib, causing considerable damage to the surrounding area. He may be in the hospital 10 to 14 days.

Mail Renewal Deadline Nears

Only three days remain in the advance renewal by mail program for purchase of 1964 automobile license plates, but the mail order registration will continue throughout the formal tag sale, according to Fred Ussery Jr., manager of the Monroe district office of the Louisiana Department of Revenue.

In an effort to process as many renewals as possible before the starting date of the official registration period, the local revenue office has been pushing the advance program.

Since the office will be closed on Thanksgiving Day and the following Friday, advance applications will be accepted only through Wednesday.

Ussery stressed the convenience of the renewal by mail program, both for the public and for his office staff. He urged Ouachita Parish residents to continue to utilize this system of tag renewal throughout the formal registration period.

After all the advance orders are processed and ready for mailing, Ussery said that he and one of his staff probably will take them to the post office Saturday so that car owners will receive them on Monday, Dec. 2, the first day of the registration period.

The district manager estimated that more than 1,200 orders will be processed by the end of the advance sales, thus relieving the clerks of that many applications during the two-month official registration period.

Persons desiring to take advantage of this early registration can pick up the necessary application forms at the revenue office at 611 N. 3rd St., or at certain service stations throughout the Twin Cities.

After completing the form in triplicate, the motorist should enclose the 1963 (pink) registration form and a check or money order for $6.20 and mail the order to: Louisiana Department of Revenue, P.O. Box 2897, Monroe.

GI's Shaken By News Of JFK's Death

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — The assassination of their commander-in-chief at home hit American GI's along the Communist border like a stab in the back.

"I couldn't believe it. I called home to make sure," said Airman 1.C. Albert W. Irons, 33, of Bennington, Vt.

"Here we are, serving all around the world, trying to show the world our way of life, and then this happens back home . . . back home . . ." he said.

In West Berlin, encircled 11 miles deep inside Communist territory, Army Doctor John Hitchcock of 1025 Fifth Ave., New York City, felt a taps-like silence move through his hospital.

"When we first heard the news, we did not believe it. It took some time before it sank in Then a pall came over the hospital," Hitchcock said.

"It's a damn shame. It happened only 20 miles from where I live," said Spec 3 Ronald Whitford of Ennis, Tex., stationed here.

Whitford said he had to drink something quick — "to wash down the rotten taste in my mouth."

Sgt. Albert B. Carter, 46, of Albuquerque, N. M., said the news hit the non-commissioned officers club at Thein-Main Air Force Base "like an invisible bombshell."

"Suddenly someone yelled 'Shut up at the bar.' Only the radio spoke," he said. "Nobody said a word. Most of the boys put down their drinks. One went over and told the band to pipe down. A few minutes later I closed up the club. Nobody felt like drinking anyway. It was kind of awful."

It was Friday night — "The happy hour" — along the neon-spangled night club streets in Frankfurt that cater to the GI's. The lights went out about 8:30 p.m., a half hour after the word got around. Even the girls went home.

Fair Play For Cuba Group Is Red-Backed

NEW YORK (AP)—The Fair Play for Cuba Committee, in which Lee Harvey Oswald claimed membership, is a pro-Castro organization denounced in the U. S. Senate as financed and dominated by Communists.

In a New Orleans radio interview last Aug. 21, Oswald claimed to be New Orleans secretary of the committee.

But Vincent Theodore Lee, national director of the organization, said in Buffalo, N.Y.:

"We have never issued a charter in that area. I don't know if Oswald is a member. He could be. . . There is no one, however, named Oswald who is an official of the committee anywhere in the United States."

Lee went from New York City to Buffalo for a speaking engagement.

New York police, fearing possible reprisal from outraged citizens after news of Oswald's association with the committee became public, sent 11 men to guard the committee headquarters — third-floor offices at Broadway and 11th St. During the night the force was reduced to six, who still stand guard.

HENRY GERSON, owner of Henry's Furniture and appliances says, "Make this a stereo Christmas for your family." At Henry's, now in a new location at 607 North 18th Street, you will find one of this area's largest selections in RCA Victor Stereos, both portable and console. Gerson invites you to come in and look over the selection soon. In addition to the complete RCA Victor and RCA Whirlpool lines, the new Henry's Furniture and Appliances features a large selection of fine furniture.

Mail Renewal Deadline Nears

Only three days remain in the advance renewal-by-mail program for purchase of 1964-65 auto license plates, but the mail order registration will continue throughout the formal tag sale, according to Fred Ussery Jr., manager of the Monroe district office of the Louisiana Department of Revenue.

In an effort to process as many renewals as possible before the starting date of the offical registration period, the local revenue office has been pushing the advance program.

Since the office will be closed on Thanksgiving Day and the following Friday, advance applications will be accepted only through Wednesday.

Ussery stressed the convenience of the renewal-by-mail program, both for the public and for his office staff. He urged Ouachita Parish residents to continue to utilize this system of tag renewal throughout the formal registration period.

After all the advance orders are processed and ready for mailing, Ussery said that he and one of his staff probably will take them to the post office Saturday so that car owners will receive them on Monday, Dec. 2, the first day of the registration period.

The district manager estimated that more than 1,200 orders will be processed by the end of the advance sales, thus relieving the clerks of that many applications during the two-month official registration period.

Persons desiring to take advantage of this early registration can pick up the necessary application forms at the revenue office at 611 N. 3rd St., or at certain service stations throughout the Twin Cities.

After completing the form in triplicate, the motorist should enclose the 1963 (pink) registration form and a check or money order for $6.20 and mail the order to: Louisiana Department of Revenue, P.O. Box 2897, Monroe.

GI's Shaken By News Of JFK's Death

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — The assassination of their commander-in-chief at home hit American GI's along the Communist border like a stab in the back.

"I couldn't believe it. I called home to make sure," said Airman 1.C. Albert W. Irons, 33, of Bennington, Vt.

"Here we are, serving all around the world, trying to show the world our way of life, and then this happens back home ... back home ..." he said.

In West Berlin, encircled 11 miles deep inside Communist territory, Army Doctor John Hitchcock of 1025 Fifth Ave., New York City, felt a taps-like silence move through his hospital.

"When we first heard the news, we did not believe it. It took some time before it sank in. Then a pall came over the hospital," Hitchcock said.

"It's a damn shame. It happened only 20 miles from where I live," said Spec 3 Ronald Whitford of Ennis, Tex., stationed here.

Whitford said he had to drink something quick — "to wash down the rotten taste in my mouth."

Sgt. Albert B. Carter, 46, of Albuquerque, N. M., said the news hit the non-commissioned officers club at Thein-Main Air Force Base "like an invisible bombshell."

"Suddenly someone yelled 'Shut up at the bar.' Only the radio spoke," he said. "Nobody said a word. Most of the boys put down their drinks. One went over and told the band to pipe down. A few minutes later I closed up the club. Nobody felt like drinking anyway. It was kind of awful."

It was Friday night — "The happy hour" — along the neon-spangled night club streets in Frankfurt that cater to the GI's. The lights went out about 8:30 p.m., a half hour after the word got around. Even the girls went home.

Fair Play For Cuba Group Is Red-Backed

NEW YORK (AP)—The Fair Play for Cuba Committee, in which Lee Harvey Oswald claimed membership, is a pro-Castro organization denounced in the U. S. Senate as financed and dominated by Communists.

In a New Orleans radio interview last Aug. 21, Oswald claimed to be New Orleans secretary of the committee.

But Vincent Theodore Lee, national director of the organization, said in Buffalo, N.Y.:

"We have never issued a charter in that area. I don't know if Oswald is a member. He could be. . . There is no one, however, named Oswald who is an official of the committee anywhere in the United States."

Lee went from New York City to Buffalo for a speaking engagement.

New York police, fearing possible reprisal from outraged citizens after news of Oswald's association with the committee became public, sent 11 men to guard the committee headquarters — third-floor offices at Broadway and 11th St. During the night the force was reduced to six, who still stand guard.

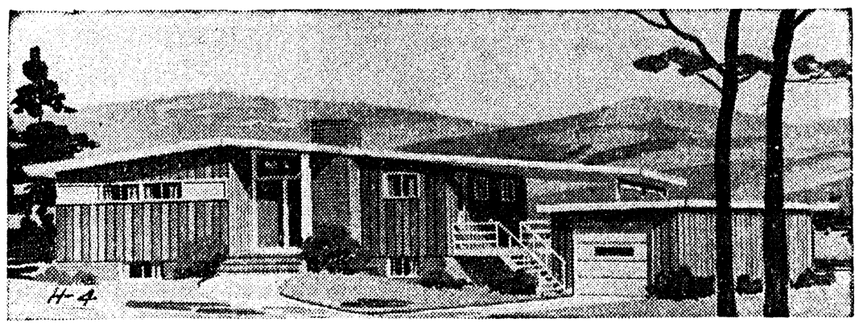
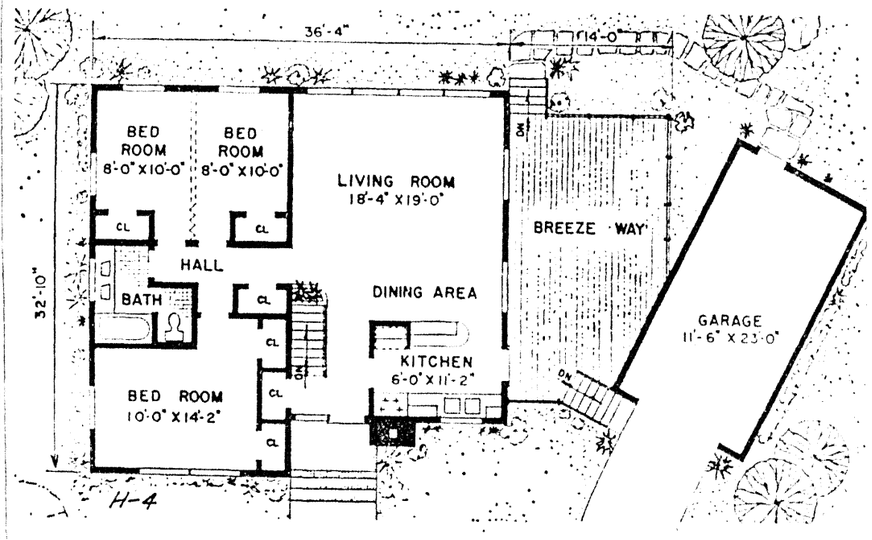
THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK

For Suburbia, Lakeside Or Retirement, A Fine Ranch



CONTEMPORARY STYLING: A free and uncluttered exterior facade is in perfect harmony with the open floor plan of this elegant little two or three bedroom home. The breezeway between house and garage could be screened or enclosed if desired.



FLOOR PLAN: The basic area of this house is a modest 1,100 square feet. Optional wall divides the two family bedrooms, or else designates one of the rooms as a den. Basement is located beneath the entire living area of the house.

This stylish little ranch type home was designed especially for modest sized families with modest sized incomes, but its contemporary design and straightforward room arrangement make it ideal for two other uses as well.

The house would make an excellent second home — a lakeside or mountain retreat suitable for any time of year and any type of climate. Or it would be ideal for retirement; not so large it would burden a housekeeper, but with plenty of room when the grandchildren come to visit.

A key feature of the design is an optional wall which would convert it from a two-bedroom to a three-bedroom home. If a master bedroom and a small second bedroom is all that a family requires, the wall still could be built and the additional room converted into a den.

The house is design H-4 in the weekly series, a product of architect William G. Chirgotis. Its basic area is 1,000 square feet not counting the breezeway and garage; dimensions are 32'-10" deep by 50'4" wide including the 14' breezeway, and the angled garage projects another 16'.

The architect's treatment of the garage and breezeway deserve special mention. The breezeway is at the level of the main floor, a few steps above grade level, and can be screened or enclosed as an extension of the living area.

Placed at an angle, the garage adds interest to the contemporary facade of the house, becoming a part of the design rather than merely an appendage.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

The free and uncluttered exterior of the house is in perfect harmony with the open living pattern within — a pattern characterized by maximum use of every square foot of floor space.

A cathedral ceiling, which follows the roof line, increases the feeling of spaciousness in the combination living room and dining area. This is further enhanced by floor to ceiling four-sectional picture windows with bottom ventilating hinged sashes at the rear of the living room.

The kitchen is located at the front of the house, an ideal arrangement which puts both the main entry foyer and a side service entrance only a few steps away. An excellent feature and fine example of Chirgotis' spacesaving skill is the kitchen serving counter. It provides handy access to the dining room, gives additional countertop work area, and can be used as a built - in breakfast bar.

The house contains a full basement — but it isn't just another dreary cellar; far from it. This basement has sliding glass windows above grade level, allowing plenty of natural light and air so that it becomes, in effect, bonus living area. The area can be developed to the owner's taste for recreation, storage and laundry facilities.

The garage is single-car width but it also has built-in storage space because of its extra length. A separate door at the rear is handy for putting away garden tools, lawn chairs and the like.

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK c o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La. and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-4.

Over-all dimensions are 50'4" wide by 32'10" deep; angled garage projection adds 16'.

No Evidence Reds Involved

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department authorities said Saturday they have no evidence indicating involvement of the Soviet Union or any other foreign power in the assassination of President Kennedy.

Lee Harvey Oswald, a former Marine who spent three years in the Soviet Union, has been charged with the shooting in Dallas, Tex., Friday.

When Oswald, 24, went to Russia he announced his intention to renounce his American citizenship. He told the U. S. Embassy in Moscow he was a Marxist.

After having a change of mind and returning to the United States last year, Oswald reportedly became an active sympathizer of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cuba.

State Department authorities said they also know of no evidence that Cuba was involved in the assassination.

Property Tax Returns Coming In 'Very Well'

Ouachita Parish property tax returns are continuing to come in very well, reported C. D. Meredith, chief civil deputy for the Sheriff's Department tax division.

As of Nov. 21, a total of $178,568.66 had been received so far this month.

No large corporation taxes have been paid to date, Meredith said, with the exception of the homestead exemption.

"We appreciate the early response," continued the deputy, "especially on these small individual amounts. Prompt payment of these taxes lessens the responsibility of our office to the public toward the end of December."

"The public is urged to attend to the payment of these taxes as soon as possible, especially those people who have not received tax notices through the mail," Meredith said.

"We also urge all mailing checks in to attach the yellow notice to the payment to help facilitate the handling of the accounts," he added.

Total collectable taxes for this year amount to $4,708,549.30, according to Meredith. Deadline for payment is December 31.

Family Breaks News Of Death To JFK's Father

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) —A heart-sick family broke the sad news Saturday to ailing Joseph P. Kennedy that his son was assassinated.

A doctor was in the family midst for fear disclosure of the tragedy might worsen the condition of the 75-year-old patriarch of the Kennedy clan.

The older Kennedy's reaction was not known outside the sprawling white house overlooking Nantucket Sound where he and President Kennedy sailed and frolicked in happier days.

LIKE A LOG

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (AP) — When Janet Faith Ballinger, 1, goes to sleep, she stays asleep. The baby was asleep in the back seat of her mother's parked car when it rolled down a 12-foot bank. Mrs. J. C. Ballinger, her mother, rushed up to the car — to find the baby sleeping peacefuly and unhurt.

Traffic Counts Keep Lawmen Busy Saturday

Traffic violations topped police activities in the Twin Cities Saturday when both city departments logged numerous driving counts.

At 12:50 a.m., John D. Guillory, 19, Box 452, Northeast Louisiana State College, was booked for DWI and reckless driving and released under a $435 bond. He was apprehended in the 400 block of Jackson Street.

Otis Dean Washington, 31-year-old Bosco Negro, was booked at 1:10 a.m. for DWI, reckless driving, no driver's license and improper mufflers. He was taken into custody in the 2600 block of Renwick Street and released under bonds totaling $543. At 3 a.m., Harold L. Tademy, 20, Negro, of 903 Burrough St., was booked for DWI, reckless driving and speeding after being arrested at S. 12th and Orange Street. Bond was set at $455. Another Negro, Colie Bud Marzett, 63, 510 Jack McHenry St., was booked for DWI and reckless driving at 3:25 p.m. Saturday. He was taken into custody in the 2500 block of South Grand Street after being involved in a collision with three other cars.

West Monroe police booked an 18-year-old Negro, Jimmie Earl Goff, Dunlap Street, Monroe, for DWI at 11 p.m. late Friday. He was taken into custody on North 4th street on the charge.

The West Monroe department was also probing a theft report late Saturday. Maurice H. Pearson, 1303 N. 2nd St., reported that a 7.65 mm-Mauser pistol, blue steel with wood grips, was taken from his residence along with a hunting knife and scabbard and toy pistol and scabbard.

Billy Hargiss To Head State Beauty Pageant

The past president of the Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce, Billy Hargiss, will be general chairman and director of the Miss Louisiana Pageant for 1964, announced Monroe Jaycee president Jack Murphy.

Hargiss, manager of a local advertising firm, and past president of the local Jaycees, made the following statement upon acceptance of the job:

"Hosting the Miss Louisiana Pageant for 1964 is an honor for the City of Monroe and the people of this entire area.

"Sponsoring it is one of the greatest responsibilities ever undertaken by the Monroe Jaycees. With the encouragement, help and cooperation of the people of Monroe, as we have experienced in the past with such projects as the 1960 Air Show, the Ole Fashioned 4th of July and the Oral Polio Vaccine Project, the Monroe Jaycees will be able to produce a pageant of which Monroe and Louisiana can be justly proud."

The pageant director said that a meeting has been scheduled for Monday night to set a date for the pageant. He announced the following Jaycees as members of the pageant committee:

Guy Jones, executive secretary; Ira Phillips, treasurer; Jake Coon, legal counsel; Jimmy Terry, business agent for Miss Louisiana of 1963; and committee members Andy Anders, John Birdsong, Stan Boggs, Morris Blumenthal, Luke Daniel, Pete Dowd, Nick Lassiter, Joe Maggio, David Masur, Jack Murphy, Joe Rabun, David Russell, Buddy Tolson, Louis Whitfield, Phil Fishman, Billy Vaughn, Chuck Morgan, Rocky Robin, Bob Chabot, Jeff Walters and Jimmy Rivers.

Also participating with the committee in an advisory capacity will be Mrs. Lou Fleeman of Lake Providence, a member of the Miss America Advisory Board and a national coordinator for the Miss Louisiana Pageant.

DE GAULLE IN D.C.

PARIS (AP) — President Charles de Gaulle will attend the funeral services for President Kennedy in Washington Monday, it was announced Saturday night.

ALL THE BEAUTY of Packard - Bell workmanship is shown in the wide array of television and stereophonic models now being shown at Gibson's Discount store on Louisville in Monroe. This new line of handsomely styled models has only recently been put on exhibit at prices in keeping with the policy of Gibson's in the Twin Cities. There is a design for practically any home styling in the large selection.

Family Breaks News Of Death To JFK's Father

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) —A heart-sick family broke the sad news Saturday to ailing Joseph P. Kennedy that his son was assassinated.

A doctor was in the family midst for fear disclosure of the tragedy might worsen the condition of the 75-year-old patriarch of the Kennedy clan.

The elder Kennedy's reaction was not known outside the sprawling white house overlooking Nantucket Sound where he and President Kennedy sailed and frolicked in happier days.

Running the Scales

By JOHN CALE

Tennessee Williams and Guiseppe Verdi are in the news this week. The former's "Glass Menagerie" will open at Strauss Playhouse here Friday for a split six-day run, a Little Theatre of Monroe production.

If you want Verdi, both Shreveport and Dallas are running operas by him — "Trovatore" in Shreveport and "Masked Ball" in Dallas.

The Shreveport production will open the 15th season of the city's Civic Opera Tuesday at 8 p.m. Apparently, it's a one-night-only affair at the Municipal Auditorium following a free Act II preview for children and students at 3 p.m. today.

Reports from the Red River city say that stage director Rexford Harrower of Amsterdam, Holland, has already arrived with the Italian - designed scenery. There are eight scene changes. Harrower said this was part of a new venture for him and his associate, N. G. Fiore, of the Casa D'Arte Fiore costume company of Italy.

The company is trying to bring a "La Scala" atmosphere to America where such full - scale production of opera is generally unknown. The "Trovatore" settings cover 4,000 yards of material which will extend into the upper reaches of the Shreveport stage. It will require stage hands three days to mount on over 50 lines.

As for the music, those who recall the old Marx Brothers movie, "Night at the Opera" would feel right at home with "Trovatore." The boys had a wonderful time with that one, dropping a fruit stand smack beside Azucena the gypsy as she crooned some evil prophecy.

Dallas

Farther to the West, Verdi's onstage again in the Dallas Civic Opera's presentation of "The Masked Ball." The production today will wind up the civic opera season for the Texas city, although there will be a presentation of Handel's "Messiah" by the organization in December.

By the way, Dallas will also be the location for regional auditions for the Juilliard School of Music, according to Dr. Peter Mennin, president of the school. Scholarship auditions will be held January 8-9 for orchestral instruments: violin, viola, cello, string bass, oboe, English horn, bass clarinet, bassoon, trumpet, trombone, bass trombone, tuba and French horn.

Auditions for scholarships in opera theatre will be held February 12. High school graduates of next spring are eligible to participate in these auditions as well as performers on the college and graduate levels. Complete information may be obtained from Mrs. Betty Lief Sims, Juilliard Association of North Texas, 6420 Prestonshire Lane, Dallas.

Value of Art

Suddenly, the art world has been shaken by the emergence of Andrew Wyeth. He painted a picture and collected money for it. He got $65,000 for one painting. This might be the greatest sum paid a living American artist for one effort.

Now and then, someone raises the question of how much a certain work of art is worth. It's a query which defies every reasonable attempt to give a straight answer.

Unlike rare coin collecting, art collecting requires investment capital and at least a degree of intelligence to understand how the collectors reach their decisions as to the value of certain paintings.

Scarcity has something to do with it, for example. Picasso realizes this, and therefore keeps many of his paintings off the market for fear of driving down his own fabulous prices.

For the past 10 years, Jackson Pollack's drippings and streamings have yielded big money. But the value climbed only after Pollack was dead.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

How To Build Up Book Collection

By FRANCIS FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Building up a Library Collection is a matter of adding to the subject fields, which patrons of the Library need as well as providing the latest books for home reading. This week we have a wide variety in the non-fiction field and there are books which are certain to interest everyone. "A Guide to Mushrooms and Toadstools' by Lange is an interesting and informative book. Many people in this area are interested in horses and complain that they do not find information when they come to the Library. We do have a number of books on the subject, but not enough to meet the demand. We are working to build up this collection and this week there are three new titles. "The Quarter Horse Breeder" by M. H. Lindeman is the basic text and reference on the American Quarter Horse. "The Horse, it's Action and Anatomy" by Lowes D. Lurad should be very valuable for a person who wants to paint or draw pictures of horses. "Light Horse Breeds" by John W. Patton discusses the origin, characteristics and principal uses of the different light horse breeds. Another book of interest to sportsmen is "Companion Dogs: How to Choose, Train and care for Them" written by Arthur Liebers. Cookbooks enthusiasts will welcome a new book by Craig Claiborne called "An Herb and Spice Cook Book."

Books about far - away places are always interesting and there are a number of such books in this week's category. "A Guide to Crete" by John Bowman would be invaluable to the traveller, planning to visit this interesting island. "Turkey" by Miroslav Zikmund is a beautifully illustrated and fascinating book. The same author has also done one on "Kurdistan" a land about which most of us know very little. Bernard Lewis is the author of "Istanbul and the Civilization of the Ottoman Empire, a most enlightening book. "Asia A to Z" is the latest book by Robert S. Kane and is a gold mine of information about countries of Asia.

Black Peasants and Voodoo' is the sub-title of Alfred Metraux's volume on Haiti and gives a good description of it's contents.

Biographies are always in demand and there is an interesting variety from which the reader can choose this week. "Andrew Johnson" is the title of the biography by Margaret, Shaw Royall, which sheds much new light on the reconstruction period and which will be very valuable to students of American history. "Robert E. Lee" by Philip Van Doren Stern is an excellent biography of the man and the soldier and it too should be useful to students of American history. Biographies of two literary figures should be useful. One is "The Early Years of Alec Waugh" written by Mr. Waugh himself. The other is "From Pampas to Hedgegrows and Downs" by Richard E. Haymaker. This is the study of the life and work of W. H. Hudson. "338171 TE" by Victoria Ocampo is an account of the activities of Lawrence of Ariabia. It is a true story, but reads like a spy thriller. "Men of the Contrail Country" by Ed Mack Miller is a collection of accounts of famous air pilots. "Earnest Victorians" by Robert A. Rosenbaum contains informations about six of the outstanding Victorian figures who molded the thought and life of England of that period.

BUS WITH THE BETA

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There s at least one big reason for the popularity of Beta Theta Pi fraternity men with coeds at Ohio State University — a 30-passenger bus.

The fraternity purchased the one-time school bus during the summer, and it's sent out each school day at lunch time to circle the campus and bring the Betas back to their house to eat.

Each week, they also select a sorority to transport, and the bus stops also for coeds from that house.

Stretch Lace On Lingerie Is Luxury

The age - old conflict between comfort and practicality seems to be solving itself in the instance of ladies' lingerie even before it has gotten a good start.

Perfected techniques with stretch cottons promised non-cutting shoulder straps, as well as bras and slips that give with body expansion and still retains its shape.

However, these dandy features seemed to rule out any asthetic treatments, such as lace. Recently the lace industry corrected this impression by announcing that it has also found a way to put a little give and take in its fancy fabric.

Still, the stretch lace on stretch lingerie will require a stretched budget for the woman who wants it. The lace itself costs twice as much as the already old fashioned non-stretch kind.

Betz-Dollar Vows Read In Candlelight Setting

White chrysanthemums, palms and lighted white tapers in branched and altar candelabra formed a background for the ceremony Friday, November 22 at Trinity Lutheran Church which united in marriage Miss Peggy Faye Dollar and Robert Edward Betz.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Dollar, Arkansas Road, West Monroe and parents of the bridegroom are the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Betz, 603 Filhiol, Monroe.

The bridegroom's father performed the double ring ceremony at 8 p.m. following a program of nuptial music by Dr. Fiehler, organist and Mrs. Tommie Sue Johnson, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a regal two-piece gown of white peau de soie. The fitted bodice, with black button enclosure, featured long sleeves tapered to points over the wrists. Rose designs of hand cut lace embroidered with pearls embellished the bodice and extended down the front panel of the floor length skirt, with pleated back ending in a chapel train. Her waist length veil of illusion was held in place by a large crushed rose of the peau de soie. She carried a white bridal bouquet of stephanotis centered with a yellow-throated orchid.

Attending the bride were her sisters, Mrs. Lester Ann Zeigler, as matron of honor and Miss Judy Gail Dollar, junior bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns of Copenhagen blue peau de soie, styled with circular back trains, accented by three small bows. Their pixie style hats of matching peau de soie with face veils were also adorned by three small bows. Both carried bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Dollar wore for her daughter's wedding a blue brocade satin suit with matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Betz chose a peacock blue crepe gown with accessories to match and both mothers wore corsages of white chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy N. Lubke, 4002 Bon Air Drive, which was decorated throughout with white chrysanthemums. The bride's table, covered with white satin, overlaid with a white lace cloth, held a central arrangement of yellow and white chrysanthemums, flanked by three-branched candelabra holding yellow tapers. The tiered yellow and white wedding cake was served by Mrs. Elna Trimble while Miss Toni Hubka served yellow punch. Miss Brenda Sue Cobb presided at the guest book.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to New Orleans the bride changed into a beige wool suit accented by two large mink buttons with accessories of dark brown suede and hat of dark brown felt with beige border trim. The couple will establish a home at 205 Harn Street in Monroe.

Mrs. Betz graduated from West Monroe high school and attended Louisiana Tech. Mr. Betz graduated from Hattiesburg high school and from Northeast Louisiana State College.

BUS WITH THE BETA

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There's at least one big reason for the popularity of Beta Theta Pi fraternity men with coeds at Ohio State University — a 30-passenger bus.

The fraternity purchased the one-time school bus during the summer, and it's sent out each school day at lunch time to circle the campus and bring the Betas back to their house to eat.

Each week, they also select a sorority to transport, and the bus stops also for coeds from that house.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"4,076 people died of gas last year.
"29 inhaled it.
"47 put a match to it.
"4,000 stepped on it."

Stretch Lace On Lingerie Is Luxury

The age - old conflict between comfort and practicality seems to be solving itself in the instance of ladies' lingerie even before it has gotten a good start.

Perfected techniques with stretch cottons promised non-cutting shoulder straps, as well as bras and slips that give with body expansion and still retains its shape.

However, these dandy features seemed to rule out any asthetic treatments, such as lace. Recently the lace industry corrected this impression by announcing that it has also found a way to put a little give and take in its fancy fabric.

Still, the stretch lace on stretch lingerie will require a stretched budget for the woman who wants it. The lace itself costs twice as much as the already old fashioned non-stretch kind.

Roominess Is Big News In Handbags For Fall

There's a "big story" in leather handbag fashions this fall. In every shape, with every costume and for every occasion, women will be carrying large, spacious leather bags.

Hundreds of bags in luxurious leather textures, rich fall hues and smart shapes will be found this year. From the long, slim envelope to the tall, broadbased tote, this season's handbags are elegant to the eye, light in hand and practical in use.

The swing to bigger bags originates with the trend to fashions keyed to casual living. A larger, wider bag completes the custom look of the costume — as it finishes off the simple yet graceful lines of a tailored coat or suit.

The extra roominess of the new bags won't be exactly unwelcome to women who must carry so much whenever they leave home base. And handbag designers have given free rein to their imaginations, producing a huge variety of bags in grained, smooth, brushed and suede leathers.

This season's deep leather colors enhance the oversize bag image. Oblongs and squares in darkened greens, vintage hues, deep reds make a big splash against plaids, woolens and leather coats. In handbags and other leather accessories this season, it is equally smart to mix colors as to coordinate.

For dressy daytime costumes, grain and smooth leather bags look deceptively slender and streamlined. Envelopes, barrel-shaped bags and boxes show up well in the big, broad lines.

Casual costumes call for totes, satchels and pouches — again in large but not bulky proportion. Grained, brushed, smooth and antiqued leathers add a simple but smart note to suits and separates. Hardware is subdued, even on casual bags, except for teenage fashions where buckles, initials and fad emblems abound.

WASH BAKSETS

Before putting bread, fruit, or other table foods into new baskets, swish these through warm soap or detergent suds and rinses.

This is a sanitary precaution because most such baskets are made by hand — mainly in foreign countries — and go through countless other hands before reaching your home.

Parker-Corbin Vows Read In First Baptist Church

First Baptist Church, Monroe was scene of the ceremony Friday, November 22 which united in marriage Miss Marilyn Ann Corbin and Charles Irving Parker. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. William Allan Corbin, 3405 Richmond, and Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Parker, 714 South Second, Monroe.

Jardinieres of white gladioli and branched candelabra holding tall white tapers, entwined with Southern smilax formed a setting for the exchange of vows at 7 p.m. with Rev. James T. Horton officiating. Pews were marked with white satin bows and smilax.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a short gown of white peau de soie, fashioned with fitted bodice, scoop neckline, elbow length sleeves and a full gathered skirt. Her veil of illusion fell elbow length from an open crown pillbox of white peau de soie. She wore white wrist length gloves and white satin slippers. Her bouquet comprised a spray of stephanotis centered with a white orchid atop a white Bible. Her only adornment was a single string of pearls.

Mrs. Thomas Edwin Davis, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Mrs. James Morris Parker, sister - in - law of the groom, served as bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns of crimson chromspun taffeta, with fitted bodices, deeply scooped back necklines, brief sleeves and full skirts. Circular nose length veils attached to bows of the crimson taffeta formed their headpieces and they wore strands of pearls, gift of the bride. Matching slippers and short white gloves completed their costumes and they carried nosegays of white chrysanthemums.

James Morris Parker served as best man for his brother. Candles were lighted by Donald Crawford Corbin, brother of the bride and Charles Hill, who with Thomas Edwin Davis and Tommy Poulan also served as ushers. Ring bearer was George M Corbin, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Corbin chose for the occasion a coffee - colored seeded crepe in sheath sytle with accessories of darker tones of coffee and a corsage of bronze chrysanthemums. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Parker, was wearing a sheath of Nile green with nude accessories and a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the social room of the church. All tables were covered with white satin floor length cloths. The guest book table held a white memory candle, encircled with greenery. The bride's bouquet was placed at the base of the tiered wedding cake which centered the round cake table. Crystal punch services were placed at each end of the refreshment table which was centered with an arrangement of white mums and white tapers in a silver footed epergne. Twin arrangements of white gladioli in white jardinieres formed a background for the receiving line.

Mrs. Hubert Trichel and Mrs. Harold Norman served the cake and Miss Jan Reagan and Miss Carolyn Causey poured punch. Miss Judy Atwell presided at the guest book and Miss Dot Rambin and Miss Sally Norman acted as tea girls and also distributed rice bags.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans the couple will be at home in Monroe. For going-away the bride changed into a mink trimmed champagne wool suit with which she wore a mink pillbox and malt patent accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride is a senior at Ouachita Parish high school. Mr. Parker will graduate in January from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute with a degree in industrial engineering. He is a member of Tau Beta Pi honorary fraternity.

Mohair Takes On Many Faces In Fashions

Mohair is everywhere in coats . . . suits . . . dresses. There are stunning solid-colored and printed prebrushed mohair souffle coatings. Many are matched with a companion dress fabric. Mohair takes on many faces. . . loop surfaces . . . plump curls . . . a chinchilla look . . . a furry look . . . and the long shaggy hair mohair.

The mood called "the sportive look" has brought a revival of tweeds. The fall silhouette is so slim and lean that fabrics can show off to advantage. Many tweeds have some of the precious fur fibers of reindeer hair combined with wool. Here again companion tweeds, either brushed or plain, are the designer's delight.

Knits are bigger than ever and also create the sportive look. But even bigger news is the use of knits for cocktail and evening fashions. Many of the knit fabrics take on a formal look through the use of jet, gold and silver yarns.

Suedes and simulated suedes run rampant in coats, vests, skirts, jumpers, dresses. They are combined in every conceivable design with tweeds and knitted fabrics.

Designers are doing themselves proud this year.

Necklines Are Lowdown This Season

Anybody who has the lowdown on Christian Dior designer Mark Bohan's low-low down necklines is aware that no young lady dares lean over to pick up her own handkerchief this season.

In New York the celebrities are making the rounds of American designers in search of bosom - revealing cocktail and dinner gowns, and with good luck.

Besides plunging V's and deep U's, are also necklines that slash to the midriff, sending male blood pressure soaring.

PREVENT CUP STAINS

You can prevent your plastic cups from developing tea and coffee stains if you add a couple of teaspoons of baking soda to the wash water regularly. If minor staining has already occurred, it can often be erased by applying the soda dry with a damp sponge. This will not scratch the finish of the cups.

MISS MYRON CECILLE MOORE

Myron Cecille Moore To Wed Paul L. Bradley

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Myron Cecille Moore to Paul Lawrence Bradley is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Moore of Oak Grove. The future bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Helen Bradley of Oak Grove and John Bradley of Lewisville, Miss.

The wedding is planned for Sunday, December 22 at 4 p.m. in Sacred Heart Catholic Church at Oak Grove, with Father Germaine performing the ceremony.

A graduate of Oak Grove high school, Miss Moore is at present a student at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston.

Mr. Bradley was graduated from Oak Grove high school and is presently attending Northeast Louisiana State College. Following their marriage the couple will reside in Monroe where both will continue studies at Northeast.

Parker-Corbin Vows Read In First Baptist Church

First Baptist Church, Monroe was scene of the ceremony Friday, November 22 which united in marriage Miss Marilyn Ann Corbin and Charles Irving Parker. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. William Allan Corbin, 3405 Richmond, and Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Parker, 714 South Second, Monroe.

Jardinieres of white gladioli and branched candelabra holding tall white tapers, entwined with Southern smilax formed a setting for the exchange of vows at 7 p.m. with Rev. James T. Horton officiating. Pews were marked with white satin bows and smilax.

Mrs. Thomas Edwin Davis, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Mrs. James Morris Parker, sister - in - law of the groom, served as bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns of crimson chromspun taffeta, with fitted bodices, deeply scooped back necklines, brief sleeves and full skirts. Circular nose length veils attached to bows of the crimson taffeta formed their headpieces and they wore strands of pearls, gift of the bride. Matching slippers and short white gloves completed their costumes and they carried nosegays of white chrysanthemums.

James Morris Parker served as best man for his brother. Candles were lighted by Donald Crawford Corbin, brother of the bride and Charles Hill, who with Thomas Edwin Davis and Tommy Poulan also served as ushers. Ring bearer was George M Corbin, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Corbin chose for the occasion a coffee - colored seeded crepe in sheath sytle with accessories of darker tones of coffee and a corsage of bronze chrysanthemums. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Parker, was wearing a sheath of Nile green with nude accessories and a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the social room of the church. All tables were covered with white satin floor length cloths. The guest book table held a white memory candle, encircled with greenery. The bride's bouquet was placed at the base of the tiered wedding cake which centered the round cake table. Crystal punch services were placed at each end of the refreshment table which was centered with an arrangement of white mums and white tapers in a silver footed epergne. Twin arrangements of white gladioli in white jardinieres formed a background for the receiving line.

Mrs. Hubert Trichel and Mrs. Harold Norman served the cake and Miss Jan Reagan and Miss Carolyn Causey poured punch. Miss Judy Atwell presided at the guest book and Miss Dot Rambin and Miss Sally Norman acted as tea girls and also distributed rice bags.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans the couple will be at home in Monroe. For going-away the bride changed into a mink trimmed champagne wool suit with which she wore a mink pillbox and malt patent accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride is a senior at Ouachita Parish high school. Mr. Parker will graduate in January from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute with a degree in industrial engineering. He is a member of Tau Beta Pi honorary fraternity.

Mohair Takes On Many Faces In Fashions

Mohair is everywhere in coats . . . suits . . . dresses. There are stunning solid-colored and printed prebrushed mohair souffle coatings. Many are matched with a companion dress fabric. Mohair takes on many faces. . . loop surfaces . . . plump curls . . . a chinchilla look . . . a fury look . . . and the long shaggy hair mohair.

The mood called "the sportive look" has brought a revival of tweeds. The fall silhouette is so slim and lean that fabrics can show off to advantage. Many tweeds have some of the precious fur fibers of reindeer hair combined with wool. Here again companion tweeds, either brushed or plain, are the designer's delight.

Knits are bigger than ever and also create the sportive look. But even bigger news is the use of knits for cocktail and evening fashions. Many of the knit fabrics take on a formal look through the use of jet, gold and silver yarns.

Suedes and simulated suedes run rampant in coats, vests, skirts, jumpers, dresses. They are combined in every conceivable design with tweeds and knitted fabrics.

Designers are doing themselves proud this year.

Well, Its's face it. For your true Louisianian, rainy weather is homey and nice. And after what we've had the past several months, a misty, moisty morning is something to glory in. Take Wednesday and Thursday - - - - - weren't they lovely? A slow, steady gentle rain: fun to walk in; fit setting for Christmas shopping; good to come in out of.

(And how's that for ending a sentence with a preposition? Did you hear the classic with the five prepositions at the end? The little boy was sick in bed and his mother came upstairs with a book to read a story. His comment: "What did you bring that book I didn't want to be read to out of up for?")

But we digress.

A steaming cup of coffee and cheery company was a double delight on Wednesday and Thursday. Several morning parties around town provided the needed glow after a ride through the rain.

On Wednesday morning, JUDY TURPIN and VELMA WILLEY entertained at Bayou DeSiard country club between the hours of ten and twelve. The party was held in the ballroom, where three refreshment tables, all covered with green, were placed the length of the room. On the round center table was a tall brass compote filled with yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, Bird of Paradise blooms, and not - quite - turned berries from the Burford holly.

Two long tables at each side were each decorated with one tall brass candlestick holding a golden candle tied with chrysanthemums. Copper coffee urns were placed at one end of each table. Those who poured were BARRIE SPENCER, GEORGIE TOUCHSTONE, ALMA NICHOLS, DOLLY DAWKINS, and VIRGINIA GUERRIERO. All who assisted wore corsages of copper colored chrysanthemums.

Opposite the coffee urns were copper chafing dishes holding cheese dip and hot crab dip. Trays of hot spiced tomato juice were passed. Other goodies included rum cakes, dainty sandwiches, cheese-wrapped almonds, several kinds of cookies.

On the porch, the refreshment table was centered with a foliage arrangement incorporating pine boughs, tallow tree branches, wheat stalks, and Buford holly berries. Others who assisted at the party were MARY ANN JOHNSTON, MARY FRANCES PERRY, DOT AMMAN, HUGH TOUCHSTONE, MARY EMMA WILSON, SNOOKY GODWIN, and MAE WALSWORTH.

Two of Monroe's most gifted hostesses combined their talents when MARY ELLEN WALKER and ELISE MAPP entertained at luncheon on Thursday. The party was held in the Walker home, which was decorated throughout in a harvest motif. In the living room, a pineapple - shaped form was completely covered with yellow chrysanthemums, with natural foliage at the top. First course for luncheon, hot Canadian cheese soup in demi - tasse cups, was served in this room before guests were invited to the table.

Red button chrysanthemums were used with fall foliage on the dining room table. The buffet held a candelabra with yellow candles and yellow chrysanthemums garlanded with natural oak leaves and gilded nuts.

Two other tables were set up in the family room. These held similar arrangements of bronze mums, yellow pompoms, wheat stalks and autumn leaves. Natural linen cloths covered all three tables, and placecards were tied with autumn leaves.

Decorations, of course, are Elise's department, while Mary Ellen is an inspired cook. The menu prepared for Thursday's party included, in addition to the above-named cheese soup: boned chicken breasts stuffed with ham and cheese and served with sherry sauce; asparagus with dill; and hot curried fruit. For dessert, grasshopper pie and coffee. Twenty-five ladies attended.

On Tuesday, KITTY TALBOT and JACKIE CHAPMAN honored Virginia at a farewell luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club. The table in the main dining room was covered with a green cloth and centered with bronze chrysanthemums.

Wives of men in the new project engineering department at Olin were invited for luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club by ELAINE SHOUDY on Friday. The twenty - eight guests included a number of ladies who have moved to the Twin Cities in the past year and several who have lived here for a longer period. Three tables on the porch were each covered with a green cloth and appointed with green cyrstal. Centerpieces, each different, incorporated yellow candles with asters and fall foliage. At the center table, a ceramic duck highlighted an arrangement of dried flowers.

And speaking of newcomers, BETTY and WALTER HASTINGS have returned here after several years residence in Lake Charles. Betty was welcomed home with a luncheon given by BETTY MOORE Tuesday at Bayou DeSiard country club. A horizontal arrangement of pink chrysanthemums in a silver Revere bowl centered the table where six guests were seated.

BERNICE BARTLETT prepared a special menu Friday when she entertained at bridge-luncheon. Guests were members of a club with which Bernice is a frequent substitute. Lunch included devilled crab beans with almonds and spiced fruit, with pumpkin pie for dessert. There were twelve guests.

Members of Bayou DeSiard country club are anticipating two special treats at the club this week. On Thursday, the traditional Thanksgiving buffet featuring turkey and all the trimmings will be served from noon until two - thirty . . . Saturday night is set aside for the season's first oyster roast. These affairs, vey popular with club members, feature oysters prepared in several ways; boiled shrimp; barbecued ribs; assorted salads; baked beans and draught beer, on an all-you-can-eat basis.

There's nothing like a trip out of town to celebrate a birthday. And for a growing up thirteen year old girl, what could top a trip to Dallas with birthday lunch at Neiman Marcus and lots of window shopping? This was the treat for ANN ALLEMAN on her thirteen birthday last weekend. She was accompanied by her friend MIMI PEAT. The girls, who went with grown up ALICE ALLEMAN, JEAN M'CALL, and ALICE PEAT, visited Ann's grandparents, MR. and MRS. E. O. SCOGGIN.

On her ninth birthday Monday, BETTY COLE invited ten little girls for al fresco supper at home. After Bingo games, hot dog supper was served, with cake and ice cream for dessert.

A circus party honored DEDE FRAZIER on her eighth birthday last Friday afternoon. Fifteen guests attended the party in the young people's room at Bayou DeSiard country club. The table was decorated with a large cut-out of a clown at one end; a sheriff at the other. Centerpiece was the birthday cake, a merry-go-round with a canopy and plastic animals. Tiny walking animals were favors at each place. A sandwich supper was served, with birthday cake and ice cream.

Always fun is a surprise party, shch as that given JIMMY BRIGHT last Saturday night. On his fourteenth birthday, Jimmy had a quiet family dinner and went out with his father to buy some new records. When they returned, fourteen friends had gathered for the surprise. There were games and dancing to the hi-fi. Refreshments included dips, bottled soft drinks, and birthday cake.

For our Thanksgiving poem, here are a few lines on "Pilgrims and Puritans" from Stephen Vincent Benet's "Book of Americans":

The Pilgrims and the Puritans were
Were English to the bone
But didn't like the English Church
And wished to have their own
And, so, at last they sailed away
To settle Massachusetts Bay.
The stony fields, the cruel sea
They met with resolution
And so developed, finally,
An iron constitution
And, as a punishment for sinners,
Invented boiled New England dinners.
They didn't care for Quakers but
They loathed gay cavaliers
And what they thought of clowns and plays
Would simply burn your ears
While merry tunes and Christmas revels
They deemed contraptions of the Devil's.
But Sunday was a gala day
When, in their best attire,
They'd listen with rejoicing hearts,
To sermons on Hell Fire,
Demons I've Met, Grim Satan's Prey,
And other topics just as gay.
And so they lived and so they died,
A stern but hardy people.
And so their memory goes on
In school house, green and steeple,
In elms and turkeys and Thanksgiving
And much that still is very living.
And when we face a bitter task
With resolute defiance,
And cope with it, and never ask
To fight with less than giants
And win or lose, but seldom yell
Why, that's the Puritan as well.

HOSTESSES FOR COFFEE on Wednesday morning were Mrs. Felix Willey Jr., and Mrs. Corbin Turpin, here pictured awaiting their guests in the ballroom of Bayou DeSiard country club. Centering the table was a tall brass compote overflowing with bronze mums, Birds of Paradise blooms, and Buford holly berries. Approximately two hundred guests called between the hours of ten and twelve.

Opposite the coffee urns were copper chafing dishes holding cheese dip and hot crab dip. Trays of hot spiced tomato juice were passed. Other goodies included rum cakes, dainty sandwiches, cheese-wrapped almonds, several kinds of cookies.

On the porch, the refreshment table was centered with a foliage arrangement incorporating pine boughs, tallow tree branches, wheat stalks, and Buford holy berries. Others who assisted at the party were MARY ANN JOHNSTON, MARY FRANCES PERRY, DOT AMMAN, HUGH TOUCHSTONE, MARY EMMA WILSON, SNOOKY GODWIN, and MAE WALSWORTH.

Two of Monroe's most gifted hostesses combined their talents when MARY ELLEN WALKER and ELISE MAPP entertained at luncheon on Thursday. The party was held in the Walker home, which was decorated throughout in a harvest motif. In the living room, a pineapple - shaped form was completely covered with yellow chrysanthemums, with natural foliage at the top. First course for luncheon, hot Canadian cheese soup in demi - tasse cups, was served in this room before guests were invited to the table.

Two other tables were set up in the family room. These held similar arrangements of bronze mums, yellow pompoms, wheat stalks and autumn leaves. Natural linen cloths covered all three tables, and placecards were tied with autumn leaves.

Decorations, of course, are Elise's department, while Mary Ellen is an inspired cook. The menu prepared for Thursday's party included, in addition to the above-named cheese soup: boned chicken breasts stuffed with ham and cheese and served with sherry sauce; asparagus with dill; and hot curried fruit. For dessert, grasshopper pie and coffee. Twenty-five ladies attended.

On Tuesday, KITTY TALBOT and JACKIE CHAPMAN honored Virginia at a farewell luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club. The table in the main dining room was covered with a green cloth and centered with bronze chrysanthemums.

Wives of men in the new project engineering department at Olin were invited for luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club by ELAINE SHOUDY on Friday. The twenty - eight guests included a number of ladies who have moved to the Twin Cities in the past year and several who have lived here for a longer period. Three tables on the porch were each covered with a green cloth and appointed with green cyrstal. Centerpieces, each different, incorporated yellow candles with asters and fall foliage. At the center table, a ceramic duck highlighted an arrangement of dried flowers.

And speaking of newcomers, BETTY and WALTER HASTINGS have returned here after several years residence in Lake Charles. Betty was welcomed home with a luncheon given by BETTY MOORE Tuesday at Bayou DeSiard country club. A horizontal arrangement of pink chrysanthemums in a silver Revere bowl centered the table where six guests were seated.

BERNICE BARTLETT prepared a special menu Friday when she entertained at bridge-luncheon. Guests were members of a club with which Bernice is a frequent substitute. Lunch included devilled crab, beans with almonds, and spiced fruit, with pumpkin pie for dessert. There were twelve guests.

Members of Bayou DeSiard country club are anticipating two special treats at the club this week. On Thursday, the traditional Thanksgiving buffet featuring turkey and all the trimmings will be served from noon until two - thirty . . . Saturday night is set aside for the season's first oyster roast. These affairs, vey popular with club members, feature oysters prepared in several ways; boiled shrimp; barbecued ribs; assorted salads; baked beans and draught beer, on an all-you-can-eat basis.

There's nothing like a trip out of town to celebrate a birthday. And for a growing up thirteen year old girl, what could top a trip to Dallas with birthday lunch at Neiman Marcus and lots of window shopping? This was the treat for ANN ALLEMAN on her thirteen birthday last weekend. She was accompanied by her friend MIMI PEAT. The girls, who went with grown up ALICE ALLEMAN, JEAN M'CALL, and ALICE PEAT, visited Ann's grandparents, MR. and MRS. E. O. SCOGGIN.

On her ninth birthday Monday, BETTY COLE invited ten little girls for al fresco supper at home. After Bingo games, hot dog supper was served, with cake and ice cream for dessert.

Always fun is a surprise party, shch as that given JIMMY BRIGHT last Saturday night. On his fourteenth birthday, Jimmy had a quiet family dinner and went out with his father to buy some new records. When they returned, fourteen friends had gathered for the surprise. There were games and dancing to the hi-fi. Refreshments included dips, bottled soft drinks, and birthday cake.

For our Thanksgiving poem, here are a few lines on "Pilgrims and Puritans" from Stephen Vincent Benet's "Book of Americans":

The Pilgrims and the Puritans were
Were English to the bone
But didn't like the English Church
And wished to have their own
And, so, at last they sailed away
To settle Massachusetts Bay.
The stony fields, the cruel sea
They met with resolution
And so developed, finally,
An iron constitution
And, as a punishment for sinners,
Invented boiled New England dinners.
They didn't care for Quakers but
They loathed gay cavaliers
And what they thought of clowns and plays
Would simply burn your ears
While merry tunes and Christmas revels
They deemed contraptions of the Devil's.
But Sunday was a gala day
When, in their best attire,
They'd listen with rejoicing hearts,
To sermons on Hell Fire,
Demons I've Met, Grim Satan's Prey,
And other topics just as gay.
And so they lived and so they died,
A stern but hardy people.
And so their memory goes on
In school house, green and steeple,
In elms and turkeys and Thanksgiving
And much that still is very living.
And when we face a bitter task
With resolute defiance,
And cope with it, and never ask
To fight with less than giants
And win or lose, but seldom yell
Why, that's the Puritan as well.

HOSTESSES FOR COFFEE on Wednesday morning were Mrs. Felix Willey Jr., and Mrs. Corbin Turpin, here pictured awaiting their guests in the ballroom of Bayou DeSiard country club. Centering the table was a tall brass compote overflowing with bronze mums, Birds of Paradise blooms, and Buford holly berries. Approximately two hundred guests called between the hours of ten and twelve.

Cocktail Table Defined An American Institution

To Americans, basic furniture apparently includes something to sleep on, something to eat on, something to sit on, and a cocktail table.

Actually American aren't exclusive in their preference for this useful and decorative piece of furniture. Its ancestry is at least as old as ancient Greece. Drawings show that tables similar to our modern cocktail table were in abundance, often used next to a couch for serving food and drink.

Today the range of cocktail tables includes every imaginable size, shape, color and design. Because of their relative smallness, expensive veneers are often used. Materials and embellishments such as leather, inlaid bandings, marble, and centered medallions are frequently seen in furniture lines that generally offer several choices within one group.

In selecting a cocktail table, the Home Furnishings Industry Committee recommends that you consider several points.

The lines, not the size, of the cocktail table should be compatible with other furniture. A long slender sofa may have a large total size, but the slender lines, rather than the overall bigness, should guide you in selecting a complimentary table.

Ski Clothes Are Worn On Slopes Or Off

Ski looks are fashion news this year. And designers are making fashion news with a new and spirited line of ski clothes that are A-OK off the slopes and on. They're young, they're fun and the colors are loud and clear.

In choosing ski wear, whether you're planning to improve your slalom or off to build a snowman, the outfit is much the same.

Start with stretch pants — they're the cornerstone of any ski outfit and should be your first consideration. Tapered for figure flattery and in a variety of weights, they also come in proportioned lengths to insure that thoroughbred look.

Add color-coordinated tops to your taste from a giddy selection of textures and shapes — bright patterned knit sweaters with Scandinavian and Tyrolean motifs — easy and comfortable parkas and racing shells — fuzzy - warm tow coats and the exciting new fake furs. There are even "walkjankers" the popular "boiled" jackets. And to wear with them all — for a snap of contrasting color — the universal ski undergarment, the turtleneck sweater.

Memorial Methodist Church, Monroe, was scene of the ceremony Saturday, November 23 which united in marriage Miss Judith Ann Harrison, of this city and Paul Richard Rogers of Houma. Rev. Loyd E. Williams performed the double ring vows at 7 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lavelle Harrison of Monroe and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Rogers of Kingston, Tenn.

Twin gold candelabra holding white lighted tapers and fan shaped arrangements of white gladioli in pedestal baskets formed a setting at the altar for the exchange of vows. Lighted tapers and greenery decorated the windows.

Mrs. Irene Nelson, organist, played traditional wedding marches and accompanied Miss Betty Lou Arnett, as she sang, "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee."

Mr. Harrison gave his daughter in marriage. Her floor length gown of white peau de soie, was designed with portrait neckline and three - quarter sleeves. Appliques of pearl-encrusted Alencon lace embellished the bodice and were repeated down the front of the bell shaped skirt. A detachable train fell from a bow above the back waistline. Her veil of illusion fell waist length from a peau de soie pillbox, also encrusted with Alencon lace and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of fleur d-amour encircling a white orchid.

Miss Carol McKinley, Shreveport, served as maid of honor and bridesmaid was Miss Betty Hines of Houma. They wore identical street - length gowns of cranberry wool crepe, featuring fitted bodices, portrait necklines and three - quarter sleeves. Their headpieces were veiled pillboxes of matching wool crepe and they carried bouquets of large white chrysanthemums and pompons with matching velvet ribbon.

Serving as best man was William Rich of Houma and groomsman was Edgar Lavelle Harrison Jr. Ushers were Ray Barksdale Harrison Jr. and David Mark Harrison, who also served as candlelighters, Sidney L. Williams Jr. and John Bentley, Bastrop.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church parlor. For the occasion Mrs. Harrison wore a two-piece wool knit costume of royal blue with accessories to match. Receiving with the bridal party and parents of the bride was Miss Mary Rogers, Kingston, Tenn., sister of the bridegroom.

Openwork linen cloths, covered the two reception tables, one of which held the tiered wedding cake, decorated with wedding bells and white roses, crested with a bride and groom. The refreshment table held a crystal bowl of cranberry punch at one end with a silver candelabra holding white chrysanthemums and white tapers opposite. Mrs. Dalvis Crain served the cake and Mrs. Ray Barksdale Harrison presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Edgar Lavelle Harrison Jr. presided at the guest book table, which was graced with a memory candle. Tea girls were Miss Madelyn Crain, Clair Crain, of Bastrop; Miss Debbie Harrison and Miss Sandra Castleberry.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to New Orleans the bride was wearing a two piece blue wool ensemble with matching satin trim, white fur hat and matching accessories. Mrs. Rogers, who teaches at Minnie Ruffin school here, was graduated from Neville high school and from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston and is a member of Phi Kappa Phi honorary fraternity. The bridegroom graduated from Sylvia high school, Sylvia, North Carolina.

Ski Clothes Are Worn On Slopes Or Off

Ski looks are fashion news this year. And designers are making fashion news with a new and spirited line of ski clothes that are A-OK off the slopes and on. They're young, they're fun and the colors are loud and clear.

In choosing ski wear, whether you're planning to improve your slalom or off to build a snowman, the outfit is much the same.

Start with stretch pants—they're the cornerstone of any ski outfit and should be your first consideration. Tapered for figure flattery and in a variety of weights, they also come in proportioned lengths to insure that thoroughbred look.

Add color-coordinated tops to your taste from a giddy selection of textures and shapes — bright patterned knit sweaters with Scandinavian and Tyrolean motifs — easy and comfortable parkas and racing shells — fuzzy - warm tow coats and the exciting new fake furs. There are even "walkjankers" the popular "boiled" jackets. And to wear with them all — for a snap of contrasting color — the universal ski undergarment, the turtleneck sweater.

Vows were read at 4 p.m. by Rev. Leon Ivey against a background arch of greenery and white camellias flanked by baskets of white gladioli. Mrs. Philip Kulcke, organist, played traditional wedding marches and accompanied the soloist, Don Hern.

Mr. Barlow gave his daughter in marriage. The bride wore a white wool suit with mink collar, matching mink hat and brown accessories. She carried a white Bible crested with a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Cherryl Ann Barlow attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a brown wool suit with matching pillbox hat and beige accessories and carried a single large bronze chrysanthemum.

Serving as best man was Nickie Mirza and ushers were Billy and Kenneth Miley, brothers of the bridegroom.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a blue wool suit with matching hat and black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother chose a cranberry wool ensemble with black accessories and white carnation corsage.

The church social room was scene of the reception which followed. Centerpiece for the bride's table, covered with a white lace cloth over yellow, was of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. Mrs. L. C. McCaskill presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Don DeVille served the colonaded wedding cake. Miss Dee Miley was tea girl and Miss Edna Dean presided at the guest book.

The couple has established a home in Monroe where both are employed. They are graduates of Ouachita Parish high school.

Enliven Room With Bright Accessories

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: We have an old Victorian style house and the furniture I brought with me is contemporary. Sofa is burnt orange, two chairs are covered in a black, brown and white tweed. Rug is also tweed in these colors. Walls are autumn beige. There is a marble fireplace in the room as well as a bay window and two windows on another wall. I have not brought draperies as yet and would like to know how to treat the windows. Also, what should be the focal point of the room and how can I bring life into what is now an uninteresting room? Would gold draperies for two windows and white for the bay be all right?

A: Treat all the windows alike and in a beige, somewhat lighter than walls. Make the fireplace the center of interest by furniture arrangement and by a strong interest over and around the fireplace, such as handsome painting above the mantel and good fireplace accessories. Enliven the room with other attractive objects and paintings. Use bright orange for some accessories and for pillows.

FORTHCOMING marriage of Miss Joy Fae Dowdle to Bobby O'Neal McLemore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Odell McLemore of Huttig, Ark., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Dowdle of Delight, Ark. The wedding will take place December 6 in the home of the bride-elect's sister, Mrs. M. C. Canterberry at 7:30 p.m. After a short wedding trip the couple will reside in El Dorado, where both are employed.

Review Club Has Study On Civil War

The bi-monthly meeting of the Review Club was held in the new home of Mrs. Thomas Dansby at 3703 Gouville Drive, Monday, November 18.

Mrs. W. T. Davis, president, called the meeting to order and lead the members in repeating the club collect. Mrs. L. V. Henderson, Jr. from Duero, Texas was introduced as guest of Mrs. Dansby's.

Observance of Thanksgiving was presented by Mrs. Davis as she gave a short devotion and closed with a prayer. Plans were made to remember honorary members at Christmas.

The Education Chairman, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Jr. announced that information had been received regarding a literary sorority, Epsilon Sigma Omicron. It was noted that the local library would help any interested persons to meet the requirements of membership.

Mrs. Claude Smith, public affairs chairman announced that the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs will meet in New Orleans December 9 and 10 where the slogan "Women's Crusade for Seat Belts" will be used.

Pennies were collected by Mrs. Nat Spencer, fine arts chairman, to be used by Louisiana Federated Womens Clubs to sponsor the annual "Pennies for Art" contest.

The program for the afternoon, "Through Retrospection" was introduced by Mrs. DeWitt Henry. She explained that retrospection is obtained by an accumulation of experiences from the past. With this definition in mind Mrs. Craig Morgan reviewed the book "The Civil War in Louisiana" by John D. Winter. This work gives a complete picture of the military action without losing focus of the other elements involved: politics, economics, and social interaction. It presents a picture of the people of Louisiana during the tramatic experiences of seccession and civil war. Mrs. Morgan had the unique experience of helping type this book from manuscript for which the author included her name in the book. A copy of a newspaper printed in 1925 was shown to the members for it contained a letter written Dec. 23, 1896, by Mrs. Morgan's great grandfather who served on the gunboat, Webb, mentioned in the book.

With this background on the Civil War, Mrs. James Brown, reviewed the book "Judah Benjamin" by S. I. Neiman, a history and discussion of the life and times of Judah Benjamin.

At the conclusion of the afternoon a dessert course was served the members in the formal dining room where Mrs. Davis assisted at the coffee service. Members attending were Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. W. T. Davis, Mrs. Thomas Dansby, Mrs. Calvin Folds, Mrs. Herschel Gentry, Jr., Mrs. Allen Givens, Mrs. Prentice Gray Jr., Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Mrs. W. M. Inabnet, Mrs. John Loftin, Mrs. Craig Morgan, Mrs. Claude Smith, Mrs. Sam Smith, Mrs. Nat Spencer, Mrs. George Walker, and the guest.

Scots Complain About Skirts On Women

American men may dislike women in pants, but Scotsmen are complaining about women in skirts, kilts, that is.

Scotsmen have been deserting the kilt because the girls insist on wearing them. At national dance competitions the ladies wear the full Highland regalia, from buckled shoes to sporran and feathered bonnets.

The Scotsmen indignantly point out that this costume is traditional masculine attire. Ladies are supposed to wear the "aboyn": full tartan skirt, white blouse, velvet weskit, bare legs and ballet slippers, a ribbon in the hair.

Swim Suits In Leather On Horizon

Years ago a bathing beauty would have done more sinking than swimming in such a suit. However, recent technological improvements have produced a light weight, malleable leather which kisses off water and retains its (and the wearer's) shape.

Bosoms Back For Evening

By FLORENCE DeSANTIS

Fashion may be all sportswear by day, but evenings this year will be happy hours for girl watchers. Dior has brought back bosoms, figuring that we should go Empire all the way.

That fashion period was one of demure dress lines and startlingly uncovered bosoms. At Dior the idea was developed in dresses that V'd way down to there, square necklines that cut across you-know-where, sweetheart necklines anything but demure in the low cut.

To accent his meaning, Marc Bohan showed his lace dresses with revealing necklines with big pins right where the cleavage ended. No more of this covered look for Mr. B. He's giving men something to look forward to, and girls with decollete something to be proud of. Flat chests are out, and bosoms are back.

MR. AND MRS. ROSCOE (BO) BALLANCE

Miss Strange, Bo Ballance Exchange Vows

Vows uniting Miss Frances Strange, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Strange, West Monroe, and Roscoe (Bo) Ballance, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Ballance of Harrisonburg, were solemnized Thursday, November 14 in Bawcome Apostolic church. Rev. W. T. Hemphill performed the double ring vows at 7 p.m.

An arch decorated with ivy and autumn leaves flanked by candelabra formed a setting for the nuptials. Miss Linda Pace, pianist, accompanied the soloist, Miss Doris Barnette, and also played traditional wedding marches.

Mr. Strange gave his daughter in marriage. For her wedding she wore a gown of white satin, overlaid with lace, featuring a scalloped neckline, etched with pearls. Long sleeves tapered to points over her hands. Her shoulder length veil of silk illusion fell from a pearl headdress and she carried a bouquet of white carnations with ivy and satin streamers.

Miss Carol Strange, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a gown of shrimp satin peau de soie with matching shoes. Her hat was a veiled cartwheel of shrimp satin. Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Pat Jones and Miss Melba Wages.

Flower girl, Miss Marilyn Jones, dressed in satin peau de soie, scattered pink rose petals in the bride's path. Candles were lighted by Miss Janice Strange, sister of the bride, who also wore satin peau de soie, and by Ricky Jones.

Charles Strange, brother of the bride, served as best man. Groomsmen were W. H. Dycus and Glen Strange, brother of the bride and ushers were Ricky Warren and David Hemphill.

The bride's mother chose a gold linen dress with brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Ballace, mother of the groom, wore a blue silk model with matching accessories and white carnation corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Strange entertained with a reception at their home following the ceremony. The tiered cake, decorated in shrimp colored flowers, was served with orange punch from a lace-covered table.

For a wedding trip to Natchez, Miss., the bride wore a shrimp ensemble with tan accessories and a carnation corsage. The couple will be at home at 2203 Jonesboro Road, West Monroe.

Boyswear Sells Out To Girls

By AP Newsfeatures

"Sorry, we don't seem to be able to keep enough small sizes in stock," apologizes the clerk in the menswear department to some disappointed high schoolers. "Our buyer didn't count on you girls keeping us sold out."

While the socalled sportive look is said to be sending many fashion - conscious teen - agers into haberdashery shops, these girls are also there because they are finding bargains.

"We do a big business with the girls selling cotton knit pullovers," says one Westchester county, N.Y., department store clerk. "The ones we carry are a couple of dollars cheaper than those are upstairs," he says, indicating the girls' high school shop.

MRS. ALFRED JAMES RICKMAN, before her marriage November 16 in Gulfport Baptist Church, Gulfport, Miss., was Miss June Arlene Spicer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray B. Spicer, 311 Pecan Drive, Monroe. The bridegroom, airman second class stationed at Keesler air base, Biloxi, Miss., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Back, Billings, Okla. A reception followed in the home of Miss Shirley Blackman at Gulfport. Mrs. Rickman, graduate of Ouachita Parish High School and an x-ray technician at St. Francis Hospital here is now employed at Gulfport Memorial Hospital in Gulfport, Miss., where the couple will reside.

Flower Bedecked Purse Smart Look This Season

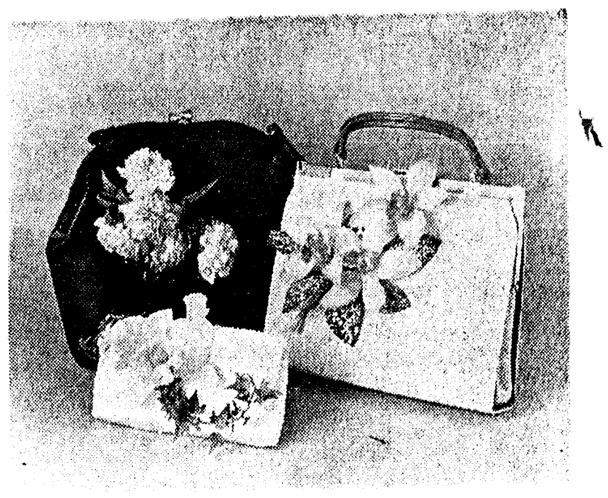
The fragrance of the flowers can be enjoyed, and the appearance of a flower-bedecked purse is very smart this season.

If the bag is of fabric, simply attach the corsage with a pair of long florists' pins, suggests the Society of American Florists. The tiny pin holes won't be visible when the flowers have been removed.

With leather handbags, use strips of transparent plastic tape. These will hold the flowers firmly in place and will do no harm to fine leather.

The same care should be exerted in choosing flowers to be worn on handbags as is taken at any other time. A delicate cattleya orchid is perfect for a dainty satin bag. Carnations, for example, would be more suitable for a leather bag to be worn with a tailored suit. Two or three small orchids of the cymbidium variety are also good on a more sporty bag.

Your imagination and the guidance of your florist can know no bounds when it comes to other variations.



Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

New experiences add zest to life! Every time you hang back and refuse an invitation or a chance to try your wings with a new experience or pass by an opportunity because you are shy, you grow a little older.

Every time you tackle something you were afraid of and make a success of it you feel and look 10 years younger. I think it really makes you younger because it broadens your horizons and increases your feeling of self-confidence and self respect.

Today so many women are active in civic, church, club and school affairs. Many thousands of them are called upon for the first time to make a speech now and then. Don't fail to accept this challenge whether it is to be a group of 20 people or 300. There are tricks which will help you, and you would not have been asked unless everyone feels that you are qualified to do the job or have something worthwhile to say.

Aline MacMahon, one of Hollywood's outstanding character actresses and veteran public speaker said, "It's a revolutionary idea, but I advise anyone who is asked to make a speech to request that they may speak before luncheon or dinner instead of afterwards.

MANY ADVANTAGES

"This has many advantages. The audience is more alert (I might add, so are you) and you will not be speaking to nervous watch - watchers, tired of sitting.' '

Miss MacMahon, who is currently re-creating her original Broadway role in the film "All The Way Home," began making speeches when she was selected president of her sophomore class at Barnard College. Her most recent appearance as a speaker was for the United States Information Service. The following are some more of her first aids, with all of which I thoroughly agree.

Don't read a prepared speech. You might as well pass out typewritten copies and let the audience read it themselves.

If you are going to speak before a microphone, test it ahead of time to be sure it is right for you.

Keep your voice conversational as if you were talking to the person across the table from you. A nervous speaker tends to become shrill. Consciously lower your tone.

TIGHT GIRDLE

If you have notes or statistics to read be sure ahead of time that the lighting is adequate.

When asked how a speaker should dress, Aline MacMahon said, "Dress comfortable. No woman can deliver a smooth speech she have to urge them to talk while a tight girdle pinches her ribs."

Perhaps the most important advice of all is, "Be yourself, and really feel what you are saying and all nervousness will pass."

I can just hear what the men who read this column are saying or thinking: "Women already talk enough. Why, oh why, does more?"

MR. AND MRS. T. J. WILLIAMS

Candlelight Vows Unite Delhi Couple

The wedding of Miss Mary Jean Patrick, daughter of Mrs. Myrtle Patrick and the late E. J. Patrick of Delhi to T. J. Williams, Delhi, son of Mrs. Mildred Williams and the late J. V. Williams of Epps, was solemnized Saturday, November 9 in the First Baptist Church at Epps. Rev. Basil Halbert performed the double ring ceremony at 8 p. m.

Vows were exchanged before an arch entwined with greenery and centered with a white satin bow. Flanking the arch were seven branched candelabra and baskets of white gladioli and pompons.

Gary Miller played traditional wedding music.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Leo Coleman. Her short gown featured a fitted lace bodice and organaz skirt over white satin, with jewel neckline and long tapered sleeves. A bandeau of mock orange blossoms, edged with peau de soie held her shoulder length veil and she carried a bouquet of lily of the valley encircling a white orchid.

Mrs. Betty Treadway, matron of honor, wore a blue satin model with white organza overskirt and carried a bouquet of rose pixie carnations with matching tulle and satin streamers. Bridesmaids were Miss Gwendolyn Patrick and Miss Bobbie Joe Patrick, sisters of the bride, who wore gowns of pink satin with organza overskirts. They carried bouquets of rose pixie carnations with matching tulle and satin streamers.

Rochelle Morris served as best man and ushers were Tommy Morris and Lawrence Perry. Randy Slayter acted as ring bearer.

A reception followed in the church social room, where the bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over blue. The bride's attendants bouquets were placed at the base of a triple branched candelabra, which formed the centerpiece. Miss Linda Copes and Mrs. C. E. Corley served cake and punch and tea girls were Miss Wanda Yeager and Miss Sharon Leggitt. Miss Bonnie McPherson, in charge of the bride's book, sat at a table which held the register, a memory candle and the bride's bouquet.

For a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark., the bride changed into a red wool suit with black accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. They will be at home in Delhi. Mrs. Williams, a graduate of Delhi high school, attended Northeast Louisiana State College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Epps high school.

ENGAGEMENT OF Miss Patricia Jeanette Cockerham, daughter of Mrs. Mary Cockerham and the late Arnold R. Cockerham, to Thomas Albert Herrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Herrington, all of Winnsboro, is announced by her mother. The wedding will be solemnized December 31 at 6 p.m. in Oak Grove Baptist Church near Winnsboro.

DIRT IS COSTLY

When dirt becomes entrenched any where, it costs you plenty in time and money — time for the back-breaking scrubbing that should never have been necessary, and money for the replacements required when things deteriorate from soil. It is never worth while to be negligent, when suds and water are so readily available, and so inexpensive.

Young Holiday Fashions Appear In Elegant Mood

What could be dearer to a teenage female heart than a Holiday Season of datefull days. . . unless, perhaps, it's a season of date-full days and date-wise fashions

And that's just what this year's "Datesetters, U. S. A." colection of pretties takes into consideration. The collection a bevy of beauties with a youthful enthusiasm for looking festive and a very grown-up capacity for looking fashionable.

Since this year's emphasis seems to be on all-out opulence, luxurious fabrics are high on the Holiday agenda and this assemblage spotlights all the festive fabrics that might tickle the teenage fancy for the holly-days . . .beautiful brocades, shimmery metallics, sumptous satins . . . all made with Celanese acetate, "the beauty fiber' that guarantees their first rate look and performance.

MR. AND MRS. T. J. WILLIAMS

Candlelight Vows Unite Delhi Couple

The wedding of Miss Mary Jean Patrick, daughter of Mrs. Myrtle Patrick and the late E. J. Patrick of Delhi to T. J. Williams, Delhi, son of Mrs. Mildred Williams and the late J. V. Williams of Epps, was solemnized Saturday, November 9 in the First Baptist Church at Epps. Rev. Basil Halbert performed the double ring ceremony at 8 p. m.

Vows were exchanged before an arch entwined with greenery and centered with a white satin bow. Flanking the arch were seven branched candelabra and baskets of white gladioli and pompons.

Gary Miller played traditional wedding music.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Leo Coleman. Her short gown featured a fitted lace bodice and organaz skirt over white satin, with jewel neckline and long tapered sleeves. A bandeau of mock orange blossoms, edged with peau de soie held her shoulder length veil and she carried a bouquet of lily of the valley encircling a white orchid.

Mrs. Betty Treadway, matron of honor, wore a blue satin model with white organza overskirt and carried a bouquet of rose pixie carnations with matching tulle and satin streamers. Bridesmaids were Miss Gwendolyn Patrick and Miss Bobbie Joe Patrick, sisters of the bride, who wore gowns of pink satin with organza overskirts. They carried bouquets of rose pixie carnations with matching tulle and satin streamers.

Rochelle Morris served as best man and ushers were Tommy Morris and Lawrence Perry. Randy Slayter acted as ring bearer.

A reception followed in the church social room, where the bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over blue. The bride's attendants bouquets were placed at the base of a triple branched candelabra, which formed the centerpiece. Miss Linda Copes and Mrs. C. E. Corley served cake and punch and tea girls were Miss Wanda Yeager and Miss Sharon Leggitt. Miss Bonnie McPherson, in charge of the bride's book, sat at a table which held the register, a memory candle and the bride's bouquet.

For a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark., the bride changed into a red wool suit with black accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. They will be at home in Delhi. Mrs. Williams, a graduate of Delhi high school, attended Northeast Louisiana State College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Epps high school.

ENGAGEMENT OF Miss Patricia Jeanette Cockerham, daughter of Mrs. Mary Cockerham and the late Arnold R. Cockerham, to Thomas Albert Herrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Herrington, all of Winnsboro, is announced by her mother. The wedding will be solemnized December 31 at 6 p.m. in Oak Grove Baptist Church near Winnsboro.

DIRT IS COSTLY

When dirt becomes entrenched any where, it costs you plenty in time and money — time for the back-breaking scrubbing that should never have been necessary, and money for the replacements required when things deteriorate from soil. It is never worth while to be negligent, when suds and water are so readily available, and so inexpensive.

Young Holiday Fashions Appear In Elegant Mood

What could be dearer to a teenage female heart than a Holiday Season of datefull days. . . unless, perhaps, it's a season of date-full days and date-wise fashions

And that's just what this year's "Datesetters, U. S. A." colection of pretties takes into consideration. The collection a bevy of beauties with a youthful enthusiasm for looking festive and a very grown-up capacity for looking fashionable.

Since this year's emphasis seems to be on all-out opulence, luxurious fabrics are high on the Holiday agenda and this assemblage spotlights all the festive fabrics that might tickle the teenage fancy for the holidays . . .beautiful brocades, shimmery metallics, sumptous satins . . . all made with Celanese acetate, "the beauty fiber' that guarantees their first rate look and performance.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Adopted Children's Origin Can Be Checked

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: This past summer we spent three weeks at a lake resort. Our 17-year-old daughter Camille became infatuated with a young man from Scranton whose family had rented the cottage next to ours. Toward the end of the vacation they were together 18 hours a day.

Now that the love-birds are apart they are burning up the mails. He goes to school at Penn State so naturally she wants to go there next fall.

So what's the problem? Camille is adopted and so is the young man. They look so much alike it is frightening. What if these two are brother and sister?

I haven't mentioned this possibility to Camille but both my husband and I are deeply concerned. Advise us, please. — Q. P. J.

Dear Q. P. J.: The origin of adopted children can be checked by your attorney through the agency which arranged for the adoption. I suggest you discuss this situation with the boy's parents and compare reports.

It's a million to one shot that these two are related but the possibility should be investigated, for your own peace of mind.

Dear Ann Landers: Please set a friend of mine straight. She is a nut who insists that daily dips in a certain little brook near her home have cured her backaches.

She tells everyone that last year at this time her back ached her so badly she could hardly do her housework. She wore a special corset and took three kinds of medicine. Finally her back got so bad she couldn't get a night's sleep, even with pills.

This spring she decided to take a dip in this little stream near her home, just to cool off. The stream is not deep enough to swim in. She just sort of dunked in it and floated around on her back. The woman insists that after the first dip her back showed definite improvement so she kept at it. Now she claims her back is as good as new.

I don't believe in magic and every time I hear her tell about the miraculous cure I boil. I've always found your column to be sane and sensible. Will you please dispose of this loon once and for all? — Irritated

Dear Irritated: It may well be that the soothing action of the current had some therapeutic value, or it may have relieved her of tension and made her feel better. So why don't you go back to whatever it was you were doing before you got so involved in this lady's business?

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married for 20 years and we are still very much in love. He has said over and over that he would never remarry if I should die first. Now, he wants me to promise him that I will never marry again if he goes first and frankly, I don't want to.

He seems to think this is a sign that I don't love him. Right now I feel that if my husband died first I'd probably grieve myself to death, but even so I don't want to make any promises.

Please print this letter and your answer. It's become a serious problem between us. — His and Hers

Dear H and H: It is impossible to predict what you feelings will be in 30 years.

Tell "Hi" that sometimes when a widower refuses to remarry it is because he had such a lousy time of it that he wouldn't risk a second calamity for all the tea in Ceylon. That should get him to change the needle on the broken record.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Leather Fashions Still Big

Country and city clothes are kissin' cousins this fall, as country clothes, with all their casual flavor and marvelous mobility, have taken fashion by storm.

Expressing the insouciant look of town and country clothes to perfection is leather, smooth and suede.

Following this fashion theory, the full - length leather coat takes an important place in the fall wardrobe. Worn belted or loose, it is designed for easy movement. Style details are kept to a minimum — perhaps contrasting binding, novel buttons or unusual cut of a collar or neckline.

For warmth without weight when the frost sets in, leather coats of all lengths — fingertip, full or suburban — offer shearling linings, many of which conveniently zip out.

Last year's pet, the leather shift, is back, sassier than ever, in smooth leather and suede. Brushed with the shades of autumn—deep browns and greens, orange, winey red—this colorful favorite is often combined with a jacket or coat of contrasting leather or fabric for a fashionable costume.

Epitome of the sportive look is the casual leather suit composed of easy A-line skirt with cropped or high-riding jacket, in a rainbow of colors and smooth or suede textures. Late-day leather suits retain simplicity of line but take on the sparkle of jeweling or the softness of fur trim.

In separates, tailored leather jackets and overblouses team jauntily with shifts, skirts and sweaters, whether cashmere, mohair, tweeds or knits.

Schussing into the ski and apres-ski category is an assortment of smart leather outfits. Ski pants of smooth leather pair with smooth or suede parka or jacket, shearling lined. Apres-ski or at-home fashions show leather pants and long skirts partnered with tops of fabrics or leather or combinations of both. Imaginatively printed or embossed leathers make other fun toppings.

For evening are be-furred or be-jeweled leather capes and coats. Bronze and gold smooth leather appears elegantly in full length gowns or pants and top ensembles for the hostess.

SCARED THEM OFF

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP) — Maybe the whole thing was too scary.

An area drive-in theater offered four thriller movies in a single evening's showing. Wind and rain added atmosphere.

Only three cars came in.

EXOTIC JUNGLE LEOPARD is the fashion pattern for this new waterproof reversible raincoat by Dolphin. The smartly spotted "fur" print graces a luxurious taffeta and the coat reverses to a solid color bone in Dolphin's exclusive rain resisting fabric. There are roomy pockets on each side and buttons are self-covered and reversible for added good looks. Complete with an extra large, matching reversible kerchief.

Winter Coat Silhouette Varied

Shopping for coats should be a delight this fall because designers have outdone themselves in creating flattering silhouettes, interesting fabrics — and the most exciting color palette to date. Coat silhouettes in three basic shapes — full, slightly flared and oval — depend on meticulous tailoring, whatever the price level, reports the National Board of the Coat and Suit industry.

Fabrics are brilliant and seemingly endless in inspiration. Bubbled, carved, twisted, blistered — furry, smooth, tight - woven or lush, surfaces are fashions in themselves. Tweeds are ropy or furry — some with mohair — as in a textured tweed of black, charcoal and white.

CHECKS CERTIFIED BY FASHION

Mohairs in solid tones are opulent, as are precious fur fibers and meltons. Worsteds are crisp and are given more body with new surfacing. Checks get fashion certification.

This season's coats look just that because of the numerous style changes. Sleeves are longer and slimmer, some with shirtcuffs. Higher lines are newly emphasized with more subtlety than the full-fledged empire look—a youthful indentation of the bustline. Capes and cape effects show up importantly in the coat picture. Buttons, large and striking, are twisted, gilt, elongated.

To fur or not to fur is every woman's own fashion decision, for there are coats sans fur with scarf or chin-deep collars, no collars — or small, unobtrusive lapel or wing types. When furred, coats lean to collars and cuffs of almost every pelt in the animal kingdom — minks in various tones, sable, nutria and beaver, black or natural; leopard, civet cat. Fox returns with all its flattery.

For elegance and toasty warmth, consider, the fur-liners, leading an inner life with sable for the sophisticated, civet cat for the sportive.

Slated for succes is the citified-sportive look with softly relaxed silhouette in soft, townish tweeds. Sometimes the touch of leather at buttons or trim gives these jauntiness. And all suede or leather is popular this fall for the true country air.

CURTAIN CALL

Can anyone help us locate some miniature glass animals or reasonable facsimiles thereof to augment the collection we need for "The Glass Menagerie?" We thought these would be easy to find, but they have proved very elusive. If you know of any, please call Richard Clark at FA 3-1235.

With "The Glass Menagerie" scheduled to bow on Friday of the coming week, the box office on Lamy Lane will open Wednesday to take reservations. Box office hours will be 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday this week and next week.

The show itself will run Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, November 29, November 30 and December 1 and again the following weekend, December 6, 7 and 8. Members may secure advance reservations by using the form they received in last week's mail.

PARENTS PLAN

With so many students coming home for Thanksgiving weekend, we suggest that parents make plans for them to see "The Glass Menagerie," a play that is on the drama list of most college English departments. Lest it sound like stuffy required reading, let us hasten to add that Tennessee Williams is never dull. In this play he brings to life some unforgettable characters caught in a family situation that will bring flashes of recognition to every parent and grown up offspring.

If "The Glass Menagerie" is not light comedy, neither is it heavy drama. We believe it will prove a rewarding personal experience for each viewer and our sophisticated membership should flock to it.

CAST

The cast consists of Eula Davenport as the mother, Pauline Varino as the daughter, Bob Jones as the son and Claude Fuller as the gentleman caller. Jerilyn Gilstrap is assistant to executive director Richard M. Clark and Lonny Fraze is designer and technical director.

Stage manager Don Ouchley will be signaling to W. J. Haddad and Paul Wank on lights, Stanley Wyatt Jr. on sound and Bruce Jones on stage crew. Costumes have been executed by Nancy Franklin, Ginger Donald, June Sherman, Eva Fuller and Sybil Fuller, while Carolyn Friis is handling wardrobe. Set construction and painting received the helping hands of Juanita McDonald, Val Nichols, Francis Yeldell, Bob Evans, Henry Haas, Bob Jones and Dick Vail.

CHILDREN'S PLAY

Try - outs for the winter children's play have been called for this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 at Strauss Playhouse. Under the direction of Lonny Fraze the show will go into rehearsal at once and open its run right after Christmas.

For this eagerly awaited production, the play reading committee and Lonny have chosen "The Sandalwood Box," adapted from Washington Irving's "Legend of the Moor's Legacy." Colorful Spanish costumes, a candle that seems to possess a will of its own, a wall that opens to reveal hidden treasure and men strangely turned to stone, are but a part of its excitement and mystery.

There are 14 in the cast, most of whom will be drawn from high school students, but there are also parts for two younger girls and a boy. All who want to participate in this intriguing show are urged to attend tryouts today or tomorrow.

This will be a non-membership show for which tickets will be on sale before Christmas, so you can start thinking about putting them in Christmas stockings or organizing a party of youngsters to send to "The Sandalwood Box" as a special holiday treat.

The ranks of future Little Theatre members have been increased by daughters born to Charlene and Dan Slakter and to Kay and Chuck Morgan. If they inherit their parents' talents, the stage beckons them.

"Redskins On Parade" gave Monroe a chance to view the abundance of talent possessed by Northeast students. Director was Bill Wells whose last Little Theatre role was in "Send Me No Flowers." AOPi presented the Telephone Hour number from "Bye Bye Birdie."

FLASH! and you have captured another priceless moment of family life indoors. Watch the background, come in close and anticipate the instant of peak expression or action. Many picture situations like this one need a flash to stop the action or capture it in color.

CAMERA Angles

I met a camera fan who is strictly the outdoor type. His family album had a great set of pictures of their activities — provided they took place out of doors and the sun was somewhere around.

How come he had no birthday party of any other indoor pictures?

"Too much trouble," he argued. "I tried to use flash some years ago and got all messed up. Some of the pictures were so dark you couldn't see anything; others were so light the faces were like spooks. And at some crucial moments, the flash wouldn't go off at all."

NO ADJUSTMENTS

It didn't take too much probing to find out where this chap had gone wrong. He figured the flash, like the sun, provided the light and it made no difference whether he was shooting someone close or far away. He had never made any adjustments for distance. And many months later when he hauled out the flash, it didn't work. No, he never looked at the battery or put in a fresh one. He just put the unit back in a drawer and stuck to the great outdoors ever since.

Nowadays, with simple dependable flash units and small compact speedlights, there's no reason why any camera fan should miss the many picture opportunities of indoor activities. But that same fan should read the instructions, follow the simple rules of exposure based on distance of subject and give the small amount of attention necessary to maintain the unit's efficiency.

Every camera of today is designed for a flash attachment. It is essential in most cases to set an adjustment for either flashbulb (M setting) or electronic flash (X setting) because there is a difference in synchronization. You will get no pictures if your camera is on "X" setting and you use regular flashbulbs, or if it is on "M" setting and you use a speedlight.

The light from your flash has a rated strength or guide number. This will be found on the carton holding the flashbulbs or in the instructions with an electronic flash. It is essential that you set your lens opening according to the distance of your subject by dividing that distance into the guide number. The answer is your lens opening.

Example: A small speedlight has a guide number of 40 for Kodachrome II. The camera is set on "X". At five feet away, with the shutter speed at 1-100th, the lens opening is (40 divided by 5) f-8. The camera shutter speed makes little difference with an electronic flash but it should be fast enough to stop any possible camera motion. With the subject at 8 feet, the lens is set to f-5; at 10 feet, the setting is f-4, etc. If your camera has an f-3.5 lens, the maximum distance for the flash in this case is case is about 11 feet.

MATCH TYPES

CURTAIN CALL

Can anyone help us locate some miniature glass animals or reasonable facsimiles thereof to augment the collection we need for "The Glass Menagerie?" We thought these would be easy to find, but they have proved very elusive. If you know of any, please call Richard Clark at FA 3-1235.

With "The Glass Menagerie" scheduled to bow on Friday of the coming week, the box office on Lamy Lane will open Wednesday to take reservations. Box office hours will be 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday this week and next week.

The show itself will run Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, November 29, November 30 and December 1 and again the following weekend, December 6, 7 and 8. Members may secure advance reservations by using the form they received in last week's mail.

PARENTS PLAN

With so many students coming home for Thanksgiving weekend, we suggest that parents make plans for them to see "The Glass Menagerie," a play that is on the drama list of most college English departments.

Lest it sound like stuffy required reading, let us hasten to add that Tennessee Williams is never dull. In this play he brings to life some unforgettable characters caught in a family situation that will bring flashes of recognition to every parent and grown up offspring.

If "The Glass Menagerie" is not light comedy, neither is it heavy drama. We believe it will prove a rewarding personal experience for each viewer and our sophisticated membership should flock to it.

CAST

The cast consists of Eula Davenport as the mother, Pauline Varino as the daughter, Bob Jones as the son and Claude Fuller as the gentleman caller. Jerilyn Gilstrap is assistant to executive director Richard M. Clark and Lonny Fraze is designer and technical director.

Stage manager Don Ouchley will be signaling to W. J. Haddad and Paul Wank on lights, Stanley Wyatt Jr. on sound and Bruce Jones on stage crew. Costumes have been executed by Nancy Franklin, Ginger Donald, June Sherman, Eva Fuller and Sybil Fuller, while Carolyn Friis is handling wardrobe. Set construction and painting received the helping hands of Juanita McDonald, Val Nichols, Francis Yeldell, Bob Evans, Henry Haas, Bob Jones and Dick Vail.

CHILDREN'S PLAY

Try - outs for the winter children's play have been called for this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 at Strauss Playhouse. Under the direction of Lonny Fraze the show will go into rehearsal at once and open its run right after Christmas.

For this eagerly awaited production, the play reading committee and Lonny have chosen "The Sandalwood Box," adapted from Washington Irving's "Legend of the Moor's Legacy." Colorful Spanish costumes, a candle that seems to possess a will of its own, a wall that opens to reveal hidden treasure and men strangely turned to stone, are but a part of its excitement and mystery.

There are 14 in the cast, most of whom will be drawn from high school students, but there are also parts for two younger girls and a boy. All who want to participate in this intriguing show are urged to attend tryouts today or tomorrow.

This will be a non-membership show for which tickets will be on sale before Christmas, so you can start thinking about putting them in Christmas stockings or organizing a party of youngsters to send to "The Sandalwood Box" as a special holiday treat.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Arranging With Mums

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Welcome back, Dr. John Wright, LouisianaTech horticulture professor and flower arranging artist, and one of Garden Clubbers best friends. Our T.V. and Fifth District Garden Center was blessed with another wonderful program last Wednesday, given by Dr. Wright. "Arrangements with Mums," was the theme for his white cornucopia container used with spider mums in shades of bronze and white, accented with a smaller red mum. For interest, a cluster of red bell peppers was placed in the focal area. Oasis was used to hold the stems of the flowers. It was a very unusual, colorful seasonal design.

Very modern in feeling was the next design, made of castor bean seed pods, for line, combined with a vertical line of red bell peppers that had been individually picked and placed within the primary line of the triangle design. The container was a low, narrow, soft green bowl. At this point the design was very lovely as a line design, then, Dr. Wright added a filler of bronze spray type mums pom pons creating a massed line design — which was very pleasing. The mums had a tendency to soften the line of heavy seed pods and peppers.

SINGLE STALK

Another modern design — A single stalk of castor bean (without foliage or seed pods) formed the line in a low mingled gray pottery container. To this he added three clusters of pink-orange colored spray mums in a zig-zag line completing the vertical design. It was simple and pleasing.

Ultra - modern in feeling was the next design — featuring two large, dried sunflower seed pods placed within a swirling line made of a single branch of dried honeysuckle vine that was anchored into a tall textured (amber and white colored) cylinder vase. The seed pods had been dipped in yellow paint. The same color was sprayed on the curving vine, creating a perfect color blend with the container. It was as simple as that, a beautiful, modern design.

A striking color scheme, black and white, was the feature of the next design. A massed line design using at least 10 white spider mums to form a scalene triangle design in a black usubata container proved very unusual and very pleasing for the modern home setting. As a rule, at least three to five of these mums would be a satisfactory number for a good design, but since these were small spider (Tokyo) mums a greater number could be used. Dr. Wright told that this was a very good variety for our location.

Dr. Wright finished his program by displaying a lovely massed design featuring at least four types of mums, colors of white and yellow. The starburst (spider) softened the outer edges of the large oval design. The central section of the design contained the golden yellow Harvest giant (golden arrow). A filler of the branches of the "burning bush," red Kochia, added interest and contrast. A delightful arrangement for the church altar during the Thanksgiving season.

Dr. Wright has given me a list of the many varieties of mums suitable for our section of the country, some of which I have listed previously. The Gloeckner Chrysanthemums Manual for 1963 lists over 600 varieties. This manual is available at the garden center for those who might be interested in selecting types suitable for their gardens. This manual is the source of information that is recommended by Dr. Wright. From his weekly article, "Garden Diggin's," I have found helpful information that I would like to pass on to you — the grouping of the hundreds of varieties into the following categories with sub-groups as:

I. Standards (large flowers grown one flower per stem)

1. Incurved (petals curve toward top)
2. Reflexed (petals curve downward)
3. Spider (long tubular petals)
4. Fuji (short stiff tubular petals)

II. Spray Types (several flowers per stem -- no disbudding)

1. Single (daisy-like in appearance)
2. Pom pons (globular)
3. Decoratives (blossom flat)
4. Anemones (resemble single, but center is raised)
5. Spoons (flat blossom, tublar petal with end flattened)

III. Disbuds. (A commercial term referring to sprays and small standards that have been disbudded. Several stems are allowed to develop per plant, but only one flower per stem.

Dr. Wright further tells us that if we want to grow mums generally, we should choose some of the garden varieties that are of the spray types. Singles are beautiful, but very susceptible to attacks by sucking insects. Varieties of the pom pon and decorative types do best in the garden. A group referred to as the "cushions" have various blooms types but grow compacted and make a very good garden show. They are poor for cut flowers, however.

The Harvest Giants is a relatively new group of hybrid varieties. The individual blossoms of these are normally large when not disbudded. On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The installation of shelves inside the home is a project that anyone can undertake with reasonable chance of success. There are many different ways in which the shelves can be supported, some of them falling into the adjustable area, so that changes in the location of the shelves can be made with a minimum amount of effort.

In the more or less permanent or fixed category are wooden cleats. These can be ordinary pieces of one by two wood attached to the sides of the wall, cabinet or wherever the shelves are being placed. The side cleats are sufficient for most installations, but where the shelves will cover a long span and will support heavy loads, it is necessary to use additional center supports.

QUARTER ROUND

If the span is not long and the shelves will not be supporting heavy loads, a neat appearance can be obtained by using what is called quarter round, a kind of molding with two flat sides.

Wooden and metal brackets of various sizes and styles are available as shelf supports. Some persons object to their appearance where the shelves will be in open view, but others believe that they enhance the installation — in the same way that some persons like and some do not like exposed ceiling beams. There is no argument, though, about the value of the brackets where strength is concerned. No matter how heavy the books, canned goods or other materials that will be placed on the shelves, there are brackets that will handle the job.

ADJUSTABLE SUPPORTS

If there is a possibility that you may want to vary the heights of the shelves at some future time, then adjustable supports are recommended. One way is to insert small wooden pins or dowels into drilled holes, making extra holes so that the pins can be shifted if necessary. There is a type of metal dowel that also can be used for this purpose. A more modern method of using adjustable supports is that calling for the use of metal uprights into which little metal clips are inserted. The uprights have openings along the entire strip, enabling the metal supports and shelves to be changed to any desired height quickly and easily.

GROOVES

In an original installation, such as a bookcase or cabinet, the do-it-yourselfer can cut grooves or dadoes into which the shelves are placed. These grooves are best cut with a radial or table saw or with a router. No matter how they are made, it is important that they be exactly the right width. If too narrow, the wood might split when the shelves are inserted. If too wide, the shelves will not be secure enough to support any weight. Another point to watch is the depth of the grooves. They should not be more than half the thickness of the wood, although some experienced cabinet makers cut deeper grooves without trouble.

When in doubt, always make shelves stronger than you think they should be. Then if necessary, you can always use them for heavier objects than originally planned.

Camellias Selection Important

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles prepared by members of the Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club on various phases of the growing and showing of camellias in the Monroe area. Various articles discuss the different problems and aspect of camellia propagation.)

The selection of varieties of camellias to plant is a most important factor in successfully growing camellias. The number of varieties is said to run into the thousands. Large numbers of seedlings are being grown and some are named and put on the market each year.

Since the camellia possesses high year - round decorative value, it is desirable to learn all about the growth habits of each variety before committing a plant to a long confinement in a given space. Some varieties are tall, some are squat ,and some are pendulous. The shape of the bush, combined with leaf pattern and relative compactness gives it character. It doesn't pay to leave to chance its final location of the camellia belt.

SEVERAL WINTERS

In Monroe the past two years, growers have experienced severe winters down to zero at times, and then up to 80 and 85 degrees. our summers have been just as severe heat-wise. Camellias not only require less severe winters and summers, but they also require humidity of above 50 per cent. Fortunately there are species that can be found that bloom before the heavy freezes and some that bloom after the heavy freezes. The span of camellia blooms runs from August to April. The "Arejishi" is one of the earliest blooms in August. It is a dark salmon rose, large, peony form with mixed petals and petaloids of fullform. It is vigorous, with open and upright growth.

The "September Morn" starts blooming in September and continues through the complete season. Some bloomed last year in September and remained in bloom until March. It is white to pale pink, medium large bloom, semi-double to peony to anemone form, with medium and compact growth.

MUTATIONS

Some camellias have what is known as "sports" or mutations. Fortunately, there is a "Diakagura" which has several mutations which have adopted the early bloom habits of the "Diak" but have superior blooms. These are the "Ward," "High Hat", and the "Conrad Hilton." There is also an "Indian Summer," which is a seedling of the Diakagura, but much superior. The "High Hat" is a light pink; the "Conrad Hilton" a white, and the "Ward" a variegated.

One late bloomer is the "Blood of China," also known as the "Victor Emmanuel." This is a deep salmon red, large, semi-double to peony form with loose petals. It is a vigorous compact grower and blooms in April.

Between these groups of early and late bloomers are thousands of varieties. Nurseries are forgetting the old stand-bys for the large, beautiful blooms. Here is where the hobbyist should use caution. Pictures are pretty, but all these do not do well in some parts of the country. There are camellias that do well here, but poor in California or on the Atlantic coast. Others do well there, but not here. There is a camellia known as "Mrs. D. W. Davis" which was originated from seedling in Tampa, Florida. Scions were sent to other states for grafting and most of these died. This flower was not acclimated to the colder area and took several years to acclimate itself. Today it is fairly easy to graft.

Adolph Audusson, both solid and variegated, Arrabella, Barbara Woodruff, Bernice Boddy, Brilliant, C. M. Hovey, C. M. Wilson, Charlotte Bradford, Dr. Tinsley, Eleanor Hagood, all of the Chandler Elegans family, Elizabeth Boardman, Emperor of Russia, both solid and variegated, Eugene Lize Finlandia, Governor Mouton, Kumasaka, Lady Clare, Lalifornia, Leucantha, Lindsay Neill, Madge Miller, Magnolia Flora, Marjorie Magnificant, Onijim Pearl Harbor, Pink Champaigne, Prince Eugene Napoleon, Queen Bessie, R. L. Wheeler, Rev. John Bennett, Rose Dawn, Shrio Chan, Tricolore and Pink Perfection.

SEED OF A LARGE variety of pumpkin which averages 100 pounds in weight and up to six feet in circumference, with bright yellow-orange flesh three to four inches thick, are being released for planting for 1964. The variety known as Big Max, is round to flattened-round in appearance, has a pinkish-orange slightly rough skin. It can be used for food or decorative purposes.

Prepare Rose Beds

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Now is the time to prepare planting beds for roses. They require a well drained soil with full sun exposure. Add humus to the soil and elevate the bed if there is a question about drainage. Break the soil to a depth of 12 inches and add peat moss or leaf mold. If existing soil is heavy, add coarse builders sand also. Always group your roses in one location. This will provide for easier cultivation and care.

PECAN TREES

If you, Mrs. Gardener, have plans to add a pecan tree to your landscape, now is the time to do so. According to Warren Meadows, our horticulturist, planting about the middle of November will permit the tree to become established during the winter. Also, if you wait until later you may not get the variety you want. Warren says the best varieties for North Louisiana include the Stuart, Desirable, Success, Schley and Elliott. The Schley has the highest quality, but is extremely susceptible to scab diseases and requires more care and protection than do other varieties next spring in grafting. This can be done when the trees are in full leaf and up until the middle of May.

CRANBERRIES

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are watching those calories you will do well to include cranberries in your menu for they are very low in calories. One fourth cup of berries will yield only 12 calories. Addition of sugar though will boost the calorie count. If you want a quick and easy cranberry sauce for that dinner Thursday, then try this one from our assistant nutrition specialist, Joan Blondin: one pound or 4 cups fresh cranberries, 2 cups sugar, and 2 cups water. Combine cranberries, sugar and water in a saucepan and heat to boiling point stirring until sugar dissolves. Boil rapidly about five minutes or until berries pop open. This makes one quart. If you desire a thicker sauce, reduce amount of water to one cup.

H.D. CLUB WINNERS

Last Friday was awards day for the Home Demonstration Clubs in Ouachita. The Better Homemakers Club placed first in the Best Score for the year. Mrs. Pat Wright, president of the club, received the coveted award of a silver tea service from our good friend George Tyner. Second place went to Modern Homemakers with Mrs. J. B. Arrant, president, and third Thrifty Homemakers with Mrs. David Mahoney, president. The Best Attendance award at Council meeting during the year was presented to the Thrifty Homemakers Club.

Mrs. David Mahoney, president of the club, accepted the $10 cash prize from John Birdsong, secretary - manager of the Parish Fair. Second place went to McGuire Home Demonstration Club, president, Mrs. R. L. Ingram, and third to McClendon, president of the club, Mrs. Melvin Riser. The last award presented was won by the Drew Home Demonstration Club for having the best scrapbook during the year. Mrs. Fred Riser, president of the council, presented Mrs. J. R. Agin, president of the Drew Club with a $5 cash award. Second place in the scrapbook division was won by Okaloosa. Mrs. T. A. Fuller is president of this club. Third place to Claiborne with Mrs. D. L. Bryan, president.

Twenty four of the 25 clubs were represented at the parish meeting.

To store coconut after the package has been opened, place it in the refrigerator in its tightly reclosed package or a covered container. It will retain its moistness and delicate flavor much longer than if stored on a shelf.

Store chocolate in a cool place (under 75 degrees) to prevent it from turning white.

Soggy biscuits are the result of too much liquid, too little fat or baking at too low an oven temperature.

One of the cheapest forms of health insurance a person can buy is in the form of a bag of enriched flour, corn meal or a box of enriched cereal. The enrichment process adds three B vitamins: Thiamine B1, niacin and riboflavin, plus minerals iron and calcium. By selecting four or more servings of bread and cereal each day you make a generous contribution of these important nutrients to your family's basic food requirement.

CHANGE OF PACE

NEW YORK (AP) — Helmut Qualtinger, leading Austrian satirist, is planning a change of pace by enacting Henry VIII in Maxwell Anderson's "Anne of the 1,000 Days."

Here for a limited German-language engagement in his "Herr Karl" sketches, Qualtinger said he would tackle the dramatic role in December at Hamburg. He is also writing a play called "The Execution."

The entertainer said it would shock Vienna more than some of his "Herr Karl" lampoons, but declined to reveal the plot.

Evergreens Need Water Against Cold

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Do your evergreens and other shrubs a big favor. Water them thoroughly before severe cold weather sets in. This is especially important in areas that suffered autumn drought.

Many plants, especially in the Northeast, did not get enough rain during their late growing season — the time of year when many gardeners become lax about watering and depend on nature. These plants are likely to go into the winter under unhealthy conditions.

Water your ornamental and foundation plants well before deep freeze. Then, after the freeze, provide a protective mulch. Give your broadleaf evergreens a windbreak of plastic or wax spray or shelter them with wooden structures.

DRY BLIGHT

The death of your evergreens is more likely to be from drying out than from the cold. The less moisture there is in the ground around your shrubs, the more will have to come from the foliage.

Our annual gift of bulbs from Holland, where my brother Henry is principal of the International High School, arrived early this year and were in the bulb garden late in October.

Because of the extremely dry weather, we watered the bed thoroughly before we set out the bulbs. Before covering the fat tulip and other spring flowering bulbs, we added a generous dose of peat moss to help hold the moisture and to break down the clay soil.

LEAF PROBLEM

Drought also adds to the problem of what to do with the falling leaves that increase fire hazard and mess up your grounds.

Rake the leaves into shallow windrows and go at them with your lawn mower. This will chew the leaves into valuable mulch for your garden and lawn. It takes too long for your whole leaves to become good compost and a thick layer of wet, frozen leaves is not good mulch because this will prevent air from reaching the roots.

Seventy - year - old John P. Ogsbury, who has been mulching leaves this way for many years, says you must do it slowly, raising the cutting blade or blades of your machine a bit.

This mulching operation is fine when the leaves are dry. Your mower will have a tough time with wet leaves.

Here's The Answer

QUESTION: I recently dropped a heavy cast iron object on our bathroom floor and cracked several pieces of the ceramic tile. Can these be replaced?

The house is more than 20 years old and somebody told me it is probably impossible to match the particular tiles. If they can be replaced, can I do the job myself?

ANSWER: Nobody can answer the question of whether those particular tiles can be duplicated. You'll have to take a couple of them to a dealer. Even if he doesn't have them in stock, he may be able to get them from a manufacturer. Or he may be able to get so close a match that the repair will be almost unnoticeable.

The cracked tiles can be removed with a prying bar or an old screwdriver that has otherwise outlived its usefulness. The old concrete base then should be made level with a cold chisel. Be careful not to hit any near by tiles.

When you get the replacement tiles, obtain a small amount of special adhesive. Apply enough adhesive so that the new tiles are level with the surrounding ones.

PINWHEEL is a new variety of Gloriosa Daisy with five inch blooms in a pattern of mahogany and gold. Plants grow about two and one-half feet tall, and will bloom the first year if planted early. The plants are described as long-lasting and able to withstand zero weather as well as hot summers. The flowers stand up well when cut for bouquets.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Bulb Planting Special Art

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

There are at least two good reasons why tulips do not last long in some gardens. The first reason is that the soil is too poor. The second is that they are planted too shallow.

It takes good rich soil to keep tulips going from year to year. Just sticking them into any old soil will, of course, give good bloom the first year because the bulb people have taken several seasons to store up a fine bud and a lot of plant food in the bulbs they sell us. As we have said in the column before, however, tulips have small delicate root systems that do not fend very far, so the gardener has to plant tulips right in the middle of rich soils if the bulbs are to keep going from season to season.

DEEP PLANTING

Even if your soil is very rich, the planting of tulips less than five inches deep will cause the bulbs to break up into many smaller ones every season. The wild tulips of Persia, Turkey and Greece grow at surprising depths. They are the bane of plant collectors who have to practically mine for the bulbs down through rocks and tough soil.

Some years back, when the Tulip Society began trying to get gardeners to plant their tulips between five and eight inches deep for permanent performance, a few people planted bulbs at these depths in pure red clay, so the flowers never made it to the top. This was hardly a test case!

Planted below five inches in really good soil, tulips are out of the way and other plants can be set right over them. What we have to remember is that the soil must be rich enough and must be fertilized often enough to support both bulbs and plants. A good fertilizing must be done in fall or winter so that it will get down to the bulbs. If bone meal was incorporated in the lower soil when the tulips were planted, it will support the bulbs for at least four or five seasons, but they still need fertilizer.

CROCUSES

Crocuses are such small corms that it is difficult to get gardeners to set them in the ground as deep as five inches. In good soil, they do not even mind eight! Again, they are out of the way of digging and transplanting operations on the upper level of beds. Crocuses do not break up at the rate of tulips in the upper levels of the soil; they manage to pull themselves down each year a little until they are quite deep. If the soil at lower levels is not good, they simply play out and disappear.

Once squirrels ever learn how good crocuses and tulips are, they will dig up every single one they can reach. The Dutch had to eat tulips during the last war. They said they did not like them very much, but squirrels delight in tulips and crocuses. In some city gardens where squirrels abound, both kinds of bulbs have to be planted in baskets of half - inch mesh "rat wire."

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Arranging With Mums

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Welcome back, Dr. John Wright, LouisianaTech horticulture professor and flower arranging artist, and one of Garden Clubbers best friends. Our T.V. and Fifth District Garden Center was blessed with another wonderful program last Wednesday, given by Dr. Wright. "Arrangements with Mums," was the theme for his white cornucopia container used with spider mums in shades of bronze and white, accented with a smaller red mum. For interest, a cluster of red bell peppers was placed in the focal area. Oasis was used to hold the stems of the flowers. It was a very unusual, colorful seasonal design.

Very modern in feeling was the next design, made of castor bean seed pods, for line, combined with a vertical line of red bell peppers that had been individually picked and placed within the primary line of the triangle design. The container was a low, narrow, soft green bowl. At this point the design was very lovely as a line design, then, Dr. Wright added a filler of bronze spray type mums pom pons creating a massed line design — which was very pleasing. The mums had a tendency to soften the line of heavy seed pods and peppers.

SINGLE STALK

Another modern design — A single stalk of castor bean (without foliage or seed pods) formed the line in a low mingled gray pottery container. To this he added three clusters of pink-orange colored spray mums in a zig-zag line completing the vertical design. It was simple and pleasing.

Ultra - modern in feeling was the next design — featuring two large, dried sunflower seed pods placed within a swirling line made of a single branch of dried honeysuckle vine that was anchored into a tall textured (amber and white colored) cylinder vase. The seed pods had been dipped in yellow paint. The same color was sprayed on the curving vine, creating a perfect color blend with the container. It was as simple as that, a beautiful, modern design.

A striking color scheme, black and white, was the feature of the next design. A massed line design using at least 10 white spider mums to form a scalene triangle design in a black usubata container proved very unusual and very pleasing for the modern home setting. As a rule, at least three to five of these mums would be a satisfactory number for a good design, but since these were small spider (Tokyo) mums a greater number could be used. Dr. Wright told that this was a very good variety for our location.

Dr. Wright finished his program by displaying a lovely massed design featuring at least four types of mums, colors of white and yellow. The starburst (spider) softened the outer edges of the large oval design. The central section of the design contained the golden yellow Harvest giant (golden arrow). A filler of the branches of the "burning bush," red Kochia, added interest and contrast. A delightful arrangement for the church altar during the Thanksgiving season.

Dr. Wright has given me a list of the many varieties of mums suitable for our section of the country, some of which I have listed previously. The Gloeckner Chrysanthemums Manual for 1963 lists over 600 varieties. This manual is available at the garden center for those who might be interested in selecting types suitable for their gardens. This manual is the source of information that is recommended by Dr. Wright. From his weekly article, "Garden Diggin's," I have found helpful information that I would like to pass on to you — the grouping of the hundreds of varieties into the following categories with sub-groups as:

I. Standards (large flowers grown one flower per stem)
1. Incurved (petals curve toward top)
2. Reflexed (petals curve downward)
3. Spider (long tubular petals)
4. Fuji (short stiff tubular petals)

II. Spray Types (several flowers per stem — no disbudding)
1. Single (daisy-like in appearance)
2. Pom pons (globular)
3. Decoratives (blossom flat)
4. Anemones (resemble single, but center is raised)
5. Spoons (flat blossom, tublar petal with end flattened)

III. Disbuds. (A commercial term referring to sprays and small standards that have been disbudded. Several stems are allowed to develop per plant, but only one flower per stem.

Dr. Wright further tells us that if we want to grow mums generally, we should choose some of the garden varieties that are of the spray types. Singles are beautiful, but very susceptible to attacks by sucking insects. Varieties of the pom pon and decorative types do best in the garden. A group referred to as the "cushions" have various blooms types but grow compacted and make a very good garden show. They are poor for cut flowers, however.

The Harvest Giants is a relatively new group of hybrid varieties. The individual blossoms of these are normally large when not disbudded. They have proven very satisfactory as a garden type this year Mr. Wright states. A list of these is on file at the center, given by Dr. Wright, giving the flowering dates and color. It is wonderful to be able to grow varieties that have been tried and tested for our area.

One of the cheapest forms of health insurance a person can buy is in the form of a bag of enriched flour, corn meal or a box of enriched cereal. The enrichment process adds three B vitamins: Thiamine B1, niacin and riboflavin, plus minerals iron and calcium. By selecting four or more servings of bread and cereal each day you make a generous contribution of these important nutrients to your family's basic food requirement.

CHANGE OF PACE

NEW YORK (AP) — Helmut Qualtinger, leading Austrian satirist, is planning a change of pace by enacting Henry VIII in Maxwell Anderson's "Anne of the 1,000 Days."

Here for a limited German-language engagement in his "Herr Karl" sketches, Qualtinger said he would tackle the dramatic role in December at Hamburg. He is also writing a play called "The Execution."

The entertainer said it would shock Vienna more than some of his "Herr Karl" lampoons, but declined to reveal the plot.

Evergreens Need Water Against Cold

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Do your evergreens and other shrubs a big favor. Water them thoroughly before severe cold weather sets in. This is especially important in areas that suffered autumn drought.

Many plants, especially in the Northeast, did not get enough rain during their late growing season — the time of year when many gardeners become lax about watering and depend on nature. These plants are likely to go into the winter under unhealthy conditions.

Water your ornamental and foundation plants well before deep freeze. Then, after the freeze, provide a protective mulch. Give your broadleaf evergreens a windbreak of plastic or wax spray or shelter them with wooden structures.

DRY BLIGHT

The death of your evergreens is more likely to be from drying out than from the cold. The less moisture there is in the ground around your shrubs, the more will have to come from the foliage.

Our annual gift of bulbs from Holland, where my brother Henry is principal of the International High School, arrived early this year and were in the bulb garden late in October.

Because of the extremely dry weather, we watered the bed thoroughly before we set out the bulbs. Before covering the fat tulip and other spring flowering bulbs, we added a generous dose of peat moss to help hold the moisture and to break down the clay soil.

LEAF PROBLEM

Drought also adds to the problem of what to do with the falling leaves that increase fire hazard and mess up your grounds.

Rake the leaves into shallow windrows and go at them with your lawn mower. This will chew the leaves into valuable mulch for your garden and lawn. It takes too long for your whole leaves to become good compost and a thick layer of wet, frozen leaves is not good mulch because this will prevent air from reaching the roots.

Seventy - year - old John P. Ogsbury, who has been mulching leaves this way for many years, says you must do it slowly, raising the cutting blade or blades of your machine a bit.

This mulching operation is fine when the leaves are dry. Your mower will have a tough time with wet leaves.

Here's The Answer

QUESTION: I recently dropped a heavy cast iron object on our bathroom floor and cracked several pieces of the ceramic tile. Can these be replaced?

The house is more than 20 years old and somebody told me it is probably impossible to match the particular tiles. If they can be replaced, can I do the job myself?

ANSWER: Nobody can answer the question of whether those particular tiles can be duplicated. You'll have to take a couple of them to a dealer. Even if he doesn't have them in stock, he may be able to get them from a manufacturer. Or he may be able to get so close a match that the repair will be almost unnoticeable.

The cracked tiles can be removed with a prying bar or an old screwdriver that has otherwise outlived its usefulness. The old concrete base then should be made level with a cold chisel. Be careful not to hit any nearby tiles.

When you get the replacement tiles, obtain a small amount of special adhesive. Apply enough adhesive so that the new tiles are level with the surrounding ones.

Home And Garden

PINWHEEL is a new variety of Gloriosa Daisy with five inch blooms in a pattern of mahogany and gold. Plants grow about two and one-half feet tall, and will bloom the first year if planted early. The plants are described as long-lasting and able to withstand zero weather as well as hot summers. The flowers stand up well when cut for bouquets.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Bulb Planting Special Art

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

There are at least two good reasons why tulips do not last long in some gardens. The first reason is that the soil is too poor. The second is that they are planted too shallow.

It takes good rich soil to keep tulips going from year to year. Just sticking them into any old soil will, of course, give good bloom the first year because the bulb people have taken several seasons to store up a fine bud and a lot of plant food in the bulbs they sell us. As we have said in the column before, however, tulips have small delicate root systems that do not fend very far, so the gardener has to plant tulips right in the middle of rich soils if the bulbs are to keep going from season to season.

DEEP PLANTING

Even if your soil is very rich, the planting of tulips less than five inches deep will cause the bulbs to break up into many smaller ones every season. The wild tulips of Persia, Turkey and Greece grow at surprising depths. They are the bane of plant collectors who have to practically mine for the bulbs down through rocks and tough soil.

Some years back, when the Tulip Society began trying to get gardeners to plant their tulips between five and eight inches deep for permanent performance, a few people planted bulbs at these depths in pure red clay, so the flowers never made it to the top. This was hardly a test case!

Planted below five inches in really good soil, tulips are out of the way and other plants can be set right over them. What we have to remember is that the soil must be rich enough and must be fertilized often enough to support both bulbs and plants. A good fertilizing must be done in fall or winter so that it will get down to the bulbs. If bone meal was incorporated in the lower soil when the tulips were planted, it will support the bulbs for at least four or five seasons, but they still need fertilizer.

CROCUSES

Crocuses are such small corms that it is difficult to get gardeners to set them in the ground as deep as five inches. In good soil, they do not even mind eight! Again, they are out of the way of digging and transplanting operations on the upper level of beds. Crocuses do not break up at the rate of tulips in the upper levels of the soil; they manage to pull themselves down each year a little until they are quite deep. If the soil at lower levels is not good, they simply play out and disappear.

Once squirrels ever learn how good crocuses and tulips are, they will dig up every single one they can reach. The Dutch had to eat tulips during the last war. They said they did not like them very much, but squirrels delight in tulips and crocuses. In some city gardens where squirrels abound, both kinds of bulbs have to be planted in baskets of half - inch mesh "rat wire."

On The House

By ANDY LANG

The installation of shelves inside the home is a project that anyone can undertake with reasonable chance of success. There are many different ways in which the shelves can be supported, some of them falling into the adjustable area, so that changes in the location of the shelves can be made with a minimum amount of effort.

In the more or less permanent or fixed category are wooden cleats. These can be ordinary pieces of one by two wood attached to the sides of the wall, cabinet or wherever the shelves are being placed. The side cleats are sufficient for most installations, but where the shelves will cover a long span and will support heavy loads, it is necessary to use additional center supports.

QUARTER ROUND

If the span is not long and the shelves will not be supporting heavy loads, a neat appearance can be obtained by using what is called quarter round, a kind of molding with two flat sides.

Wooden and metal brackets of various sizes and styles are available as shelf supports. Some persons object to their appearance where the shelves will be in open view, but others believe that they enhance the installation — in the same way that some persons like and some do not like exposed ceiling beams. There is no argument, though, about the value of the brackets where strength is concerned. No matter how heavy the books, canned goods or other materials that will be placed on the shelves, there are brackets that will handle the job.

ADJUSTABLE SUPPORTS

If there is a possibility that you may want to vary the heights of the shelves at some future time, then adjustable supports are recommended. One way is to insert small wooden pins or dowels into drilled holes, making extra holes so that the pins can be shifted if necessary. There is a type of metal dowel that also can be used for this purpose. A more modern method of using adjustable supports is that calling for the use of metal uprights into which little metal clips are inserted. The uprights have openings along the entire strip, enabling the metal supports and shelves to be changed to any desired height quickly and easily.

GROOVES

In an original installation, such as a bookcase or cabinet, the do-it-yourselfer can cut grooves or dadoes into which the shelves are placed. These grooves are best cut with a radial or table saw or with a router. No matter how they are made, it is important that they be exactly the right width. If too narrow, the wood might split when the shelves are inserted. If too wide, the shelves will not be secure enough to support any weight. Another point to watch is the depth of the grooves. They should not be more than half the thickness of the wood, although some experienced cabinet makers cut deeper grooves without trouble.

When in doubt, always make shelves stronger than you think they should be.

Louisiana Tech Downs Northeast State By 28-7

Schwab Cracks Ice On Chilly Day To Pace LSU To 20-0 Victory

Bulldogs Revenge Last Year's Loss

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

RUSTON — Louisiana Tech unleashed its explosive version of the Green Bay pro attack to defeat Northeast State, 28-7, in a brutally contested Gulf States Conference game played before an overflow crowd of 8,000 here Saturday night.

The Bulldogs, who strive for balance in their rushing and passing, and pattern their play after the National Football League champions, used both to gain a revenge victory and end the season with a good 6-3 record. Northeast, which whipped the Ruston team 13-6 the year before, ended the season, 4-6.

But the Techmen were forced to go all out in whipping a fired-up young Indian club which grabbed a 7-0 first quarter lead on quarterback Bookie Shillcutt's 52 yard pass play to end Steve Regan.

The Bulldogs could manage only a 7-7 deadlock at the half and that only because of quarterback Billy Laird's crucial fourth down touchdown pass to freshman end Maurice Greer in the second period. The play covered six yards and capped a 61 yard march.

Northeast	7 0 0 0	7
La. Tech	0 7 7 14	28

The Bulldogs went ahead in the third period, marching 97 yards behind the passing of the brilliant Laird who completed seven straight passes in the drive and hti junior end David Lee on a five yarder for the TD with 5:33 left in the stanza.

Tech led only 14-7 going into the four quarter and had to blunt a stiff second half passing by Shillcut with a series of interceptions including one by senior J. R. Williamson which the all-GSC center ran back 87 yards to the Indians' five. In all, the Bulldogs snared four Northeast aerials.

An indication of the Indians' aroused play came when they halted Tech on three plays after Williamson's run giving up only one yard. C. T. Campbell's field goal attempt from the 11 on fourth down was wide and the Bulldogs failed to score.

Northeast, which put a good rush on Laird at times and dropped him for losses totaling 37 yards, weren't as successful halting Tech's potent pro-T in the fourth quarter however.

Halfback Alden Reeves who had a fine night intercepted a Shillcutt pass and returned it five yards to the Tribe's 40. On the next play, the Jonesboro freshman went around right end, cut back and raced 40 yards to up Tech's margin to 21-7 with 14:10 left in the game. Reeves led all rushers with 83 yards on 11 carries.

With 1:10 remaining to play, Laird went back into his own endzone and spotted flankerback Corky Corkern near midfield. Corkern gathered in the ball at the Indian 40 and raced the remaining yardage for a 92-yard touchdown pass play.

Ironically Laird had just hit split end Wayne Davis on a long pass which went from the Tech 22 to the Tribe 36. However, a penalty nullified the play.

After the score, Campbell toed his 20th straight extra point to eclipse the single season total of 19 set by Bud Alexander in 1961. Campbell has now kicked 20 of 23.

For Laird, it was the end of a tremendous sophomore year. In addition to the three touchdown passes, Laird hit 14 of 23 for 236 yards, surpassing the passing yardage record set by Tech's Micky Slaughter last year. Laird this season completed 90 of 157 passes for 1,103 yards. Slaughter, now a quarterback with the Denver Broncos, passed for 932 yards in 1962.

The game was also a milestone for Northeast senior fullback Willie Ragan who gained 22 yards to up his season total to 440 yards in a career mark of 1,193. Fullback Ronnie Graham and halfback R. F. Wilson paced Northeast's rushing with 36 yards apiece.

Shillcutt completed five of 13 passed for 110 yards.

Tech returned the opening kickoff to its own 39 but two plays later, Ronnie Myrick intercepted Laird's pass at the Bulldog 33. The Indians moved to the Canines' 15 where Ragan's 22 yard field goal attempt was wide to the left.

Later in the quarter, Northeast took over on its own 19 and promptly marched 81 yards in seven plays for the first touchdown of the game. Six plays moved the ball to the Indians' 48 where Shillcutt fired his long pass to Regan. Tech's Kenny Tidwell tipped the ball at the Canine 15 and it bounced into the hands of Regan who dashed into the end zone. Ragan kicked good with 3:05 left in the quarter.

On Williamson's interception runback, the big center collared a Shillcut pass at the Bulldog eight and lumbered downfield behind a cordon of blockers. He was hit at the 30, lost his balance and staggered all the way down to the five where he was tackled by Indian guard Joe McClain.

The play which should have broken the Indians' back only seemed to arouse them to stay in the fight to the end.

Scoring summary:
NE-Regan-52 yd pass from Shillcutt (Ragan kick)
Tech: Greer five yard pass from Laird (Campbell kick)
Tech: Lee five yard pass from Laird (Campbell)
Tech: Reeves 40 yard run (Campbell kick)
Tech: Corkern 92 yard pass play from Laird (Campbell kick)

Tigers Cling To Slim Hope For Bowl Tilt

By SAM HANNA
World Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE — Fullback Don Schwab broke the ice on a chilly afternoon Saturday with a 60-yard touchdown blast that paced LSU past Tulane's determined but outmanned Greenies, 20-0.

A topcoat crowd of about 55,000 fans watched the Tigers march up and down the field with an impressive but inconsistent ground attack, netting 314 yards to Tulane's minus one.

After the Game, Coach Charles McClendon, expressing satisfaction with the 7-3 record of his sophomore Tigers, said LSU was being considered by the Gator Bowl and the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Tulane closed the season in its eighth defeat against a lone victory and one tie.

Halfback Danny LeBlanc, who had a rough afternoon, scored LSU's first touchdown in the opening period on a three-yard buck after he was hit three times by would-be Tulane tacklers.

On a third-down situation at the Tiger 34, he ripped through the right side of his line, bulled into a horde of Greenies but suddenly broke for the sidelines, going all the way.

And that pretty much tells the story, although in the fading minutes of the game quarterback Ed Greer came off the LSU bench to throw five passes, completing two but having one intercepted in the end zone moments before the clock ran out.

Dark clouds hovered over Tiger stadium for the first half as the big, silent crowd offered a prayer for the slain president, John F. Kennedy. Dr. John Hunter, LSU president, rendered a commemoration at halftime in Kennedy's honor.

But when the sun broke through in the second half, LSU went to work with a slim 7-0 lead.

The Tigers marched to the Tulane 22 after taking the second half kickoff, but ran out of downs as Moreau came in to kick a 40-yard field goal.

Schwab, workhorse of the afternoon with 20 carries for a net total of 154 yards, and LaBruzzo were the chief ball carriers in the drive that sputtered on the Tulane 22. LaBruzzo carried a total of 17 times during the game for a net yardage of 73.

Actually, LSU didn't have but one sustained drive all afternoon. And that came the second time the Bengals got their hands on the ball.

Later in the period Tulane came back with its deepest penetration of the half, driving to the LSU 32 where senior Robby Hucklebridge threw quarterback Al Burguieres for a five yard loss, killing the threat.

Guard Don Bright had tried a 52-yard field goal minutes earlier, but it fell short.

Burguieres turned in a fine performance for Tulane in a losing effort. He completed eight of 22 passes for Tulane's total net of 88 yards.

But the touch Tiger wall pounded him to the slippery turf all afternoon, throwing him for a net loss of 37 yards on 16 carries. He ended up gaining 29 yards.

LSU set up Moreau's second

HOGS BREAK EVEN

Arkansas Downs Texas Tech Club

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) —Arkansas wrapped a break-even football season Saturday by edging Texas Tech in a Southwest Conference game, 20, on the weight of a 24-yard touchdown run by quarterback Billy Gray.

The Arkansans jumped into the front with three touchdowns, one on an 80-yard punt return by Kenny Hatfield before the Texas Tech Red Raiders hit pay dirt. But then the Raiders unleashed a two-touchdown aerial blast engineered by quarterback Ben Elledge, who scored their third touchdown on a short run.

Jack Brasuell, sophomore running sensation, broke loose for a 34-yard off tackle sprint early in the second quarter after Bobby Nix scored first for the Arkansas Razorbacks near the end of the first period from one yard out after quarterback Fred Marshall had set it up with runs of 22 yards, topped by his 12-yard pass to end Jerry Lamb.

Then suddenly it was Elledge's show. First he executed a 17-yard touchdown pass to end Tommy Doyle and then four minutes later fired a 40-yard scoring heave to end David Parks.

Before Arkansas could find itself, the Raiders tied it up with Elledge's one-yard sneak, which climaxed a 76-yard march with Donny Anderson and fullback Jim Zanois contributing most of the yardage with hard up-the-middle running.

Parks speared four passes for 80 yards and set a Tech season record for passing yardage by an individual. His season total was 499 yards, breaking Robert (Bake) Turner's 1959 mark. Anderson also set a new mark for kickoff returns with 448 yards against 348 by Don Lewis in 1952.

The victory gave Arkansas an even break for its 10-game season, but it was the Razorback's poorest showing under Coach Frank Broyles since his first game here six years ago. In the conference, he finished with three victories against four defeats.

Less than 10 minutes were left when Arkansas pulled the game out of a deadlock. Bobby Reynolds with consistent ground gains, sparked Gray's aerial display on the 85-yard trip which ended with Gray's 24-yard touchdown run and victory.

Florida Defeats Miami By 27-21 Behind Clarke

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A 70-yard touchdown dash by Hagood Clarke shattered a 14-14 deadlock Saturday night and Florida defeated Miami, 27-21, in a traditional football battle dedicated to the memory of the nation's dead president, John F. Kennedy.

In the Orange Bowl Stadium where Kennedy attended New Year's Day games as president-elect and president, 57,773 persons participated in pre-game and halftime ceremonies for the man felled Friday by an assassin's bullet in Dallas.

Florida and Miami considered cancelling or postponing the game, as so many others did throughout the nation, but decided with Gov. Farris Bryant's approval that it should go on so that the spectators could join in a mass service.

The teams were locked in a tight struggle when Clarke accepted a handoff to the weak side, slipped out of the arms of the one tackler and sped to the winning touchdown.

Then, moments later, Alan Poe pounced on a wild Miami lateral at the Hurricane 46 to put the Gators in position for a clinching score. Tom Shannon whipped a 26-yard pass to Poe and later sneaked across from a yard out.

Miami's All-America George Mira, put on a great aerial show, throwing three touchdown passes, and might have guided the Hurricanes to victory if his receivers had not dropped many passes he threw directly into their arms.

Knickerbockers Trounce Over Detroit, 108-99

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Knickerbockers combined a stiff defense with a speedy fast break attack and whipped the Detroit Pistons 108-99 in a National Basketball Association game Saturday night.

With Detroit going more than four minutes without a point midway through the fourth quarter, New York's attack suddenly jelled.

Len Chappell and Bill McGill led the Knick surge with Donnie Butcher and Art Heyman doing the feeding. Heyman led New York's scorers with 23 points and Chappell had 22.

Linville, Calhoun Sweep Trophies In Cage Action

DOWNSVILLE (Special) — The Linville girls and Calhoun boys defeated finalist competition to win the Downsville Invitational basketball tournament here Saturday night.

Huskers Master Sooners; Claim Big 8 Championship

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska won its first Big Eight Conference football championship in 23 years Saturday by mastering Oklahoma's sixth-ranked Sooners 29-20 and moved into the Orange Bowl New Year's Day.

Oklahoma's fumbles, a devastating Nebraska defense and the hard running of Rudy Johnson, Willie Ross, Dennis Claridge and Kent McCloughan turned the victory into a fourth-quarter rout.

The victory rounded out a 9-1 season overall, 7-0 in the Big Eight and automatically put the Cornhuskers in the Orange Bowl at Miami.

Oklahoma, with a wind-up game against Oklahoma State to be played this week stands 7-2 for the season and 5-1 in the conference. The Sooners had won 16 in a row in the conference since 1961.

Holding a slender 3-0 lead at halftime, Nebraska capitalized on Oklahoma's fumble of a Nebraska punt early in the second half, tackle Lloyd Voss recovering on Oklahoma's 15. Johnson made the short drive good on a one-yard plunge and oranges rained onto the field as the near-capacity crowd of 38,485 savored the Orange Bowl prospects.

Nebraska, again using a fumble to advantage, added seven more points in the wild fourth quarter on Claridge's one-yard plunge and tacked on two more touchdowns in the game's closing minutes. The late Nebraska touchdowns were scored by McLoughan and Fred Duda.

Oklahoma packed its three touchdowns into the fourth quarter, mixing passes with runs after finding its ground game strapped.

The Sooners lost a net of five yards in the first quarter and were held to a total offense of 28 yards in the first half.

Oklahoma covered 57 yard on its first touchdown drive, aided by a 35-yard pass from Bobby Page to end John Porterfield. A 22-yard pass from Ronald Fletcher to John Flynn provided the score.

PEOPLE SUFFER SHOCK

Sports Activities At Near Standstill

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sports activity throughout the distraught nation was at a virtual standstill Saturday as the saddened citizens, still in a state of shock, mourned the death of President Kennedy.

Nearly all of Saturday's college football games, the entire Sunday American Football League schedule, the weekend American Soccer League games, National Basketball games, thoroughbred and harness racing, golf, baseball, track meets and other sports were either postponed or canceled altogether.

Only the National Football League, the National Hockey League, several NBA teams, about a dozen college football teams and one major race track decided to go through with weekend sports as scheduled.

Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York suspended all racing in the state until after the President's funeral Monday. As a result Aqueduct and Roosevelt Raceway canceled Saturday and Monday's cards. Both will resume Tuesday.

All scheduled televised weekend sports were canceled by the networks.

"It has been traditional in sports for athletes to perform in times of great personal tragedy," said NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle, in announcing the decision to play the league's seven games. "Football was Mr. Kennedy's game. He thrived on competition."

Among the college football games postponed were the 80th Harvard-Yale contest at New Haven and the Illinois-Michigan State game at East Lansing, Mich.

The Illinois - Michigan State contest, which will settle the Big Ten championship and the conference's entry in the Rose Bowl was rescheduled for Thanksgiving Day at East Lansing. The Harvard-Yale game may be played next Saturday, Nov. 30.

All Big Ten, Big Six and Ivy League games were postponed. Also put off was the Notre Dame-Iowa game.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association left it to the colleges involved to do as they saw fit. Only the Southeastern Conference offered a complete schedule. Most other schools canceled or postponed their games.

The Oklahoma - Nebraska game at Nebraska was the only Big Eight game that was not postponed. The game decided the host team in the Orange Bowl.

Among the major games postponed were Rice at Texas Christian, Penn State at Pitt, North Carolina at Duke, Air Force at Colorado, Washington State at Washington, California at Stanford, UCLA at Southern California, Missouri at Kansas, Kansas State at Oklahoma State, Oregon State at Oregon, Clemson at South Carolina and Iowa State at Drake.

Bulldogs Revenge Last Year's Loss

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

RUSTON — Louisiana Tech unleashed its explosive version of the Green Bay pro attack to defeat Northeast State, 28-7, in a brutally contested Gulf States Conference game played before an overflow crowd of 8,000 here Saturday night.

The Bulldogs, who strive for balance in their rushing and passing, and pattern their play after the National Football League champions, used both to gain a revenge victory and end the season with a good 6-3 record. Northeast, which whipped the Ruston team 13-6 the year before, ended the season, 4-6.

But the Techmen were forced to go all out in whipping a fired-up young Indian club which grabbed a 7-0 first quarter lead on quarterback Bookie Shillcutt's 52 yard pass play to end Steve Regan.

The Bulldogs could manage only a 7-7 deadlock at the half and that only because of quarterback Billy Laird's cruical fourth down touchdown pass to freshman end Maurice Greer in the second period. The play covered six yards and capped a 61 yard march.

The Bulldogs went ahead in the third period, marching 97 yards behind the passing of the brilliant Laird who completed seven straight passes in the drive and hti junior end David Lee on a five yarder for the TD with 5:33 left in the stanza.

Tech led only 14-7 going into the four quarter and had to blunt a stiff second half passing by Shillcut with a series of interceptions including one by senior J. R. Williamson which the all-GSC center ran back 87 yards to the Indians' five. In all, the Bulldogs snared four Northeast aerials.

An indication of the Indians' aroused play came when they halted Tech on three plays after Williamson's run giving up only one yard. C. T. Campbell's field goal attempt from the 11 on fourth down was wide and the Bulldogs failed to score.

Northeast, which put a good rush on Laird at times and dropped him for losses totaling 37 yards, weren't as successful halting Tech's potent pro-T in the fourth quarter however.

Halfback Alden Reeves who had a fine night intercepted a Shillcutt pass and returned it five yards to the Tribe's 40. On the next play, the Jonesboro freshman went around right end, cut back and raced 40 yards to up Tech's margin to 21-7 with 14:10 left in the game. Reeves led all rushers with 83 yards on 11 carries.

With 1:10 remaining to play, Laird went back into his own endzone and spotted flankerback Corky Corkern near midfield. Corkern gathered in the ball at the Indian 40 and raced the remaining yardage for a 92-yard touchdown pass play.

Ironically Laird had just hit split end Wayne Davis on a long pass which went from the Tech 22 to the Tribe 36. However, a penalty nullified the play.

After the score, Campbell toed his 20th straight extra point to eclipse the single season total of 19 set by Bud Alexander in 1961. Campbell has now kicked 20 of 23.

For Laird, it was the end of a tremendous sophomore year. In addition to the three touchdown passes, Laird hit 14 of 23 for 236 yards, surpassing the passing yardage record set by Tech's Micky Slaughter last year. Laird this season completed 90 of 157 passes for 1,103 yards. Slaughter, now a quarterback with the Denver Broncos, passed for 932 yards in 1962.

The game was also a milestone for Northeast senior fullback Willie Ragan who gained 22 yards to up his season total to 440 yards in a career mark of 1,193. Fullback Ronnie Graham and halfback R. F. Wilson paced Northeast's rushing with 36 yards apiece.

Shillcutt completed five of 13 passed for 110 yards.

Tech returned the opening kickoff to its own 39 but two plays later, Ronnie Myrick intercepted Laird's pass at the Bulldog 33. The Indians moved to the Canines' 15 where Ragan's 22 yard field goal attempt was wide to the left.

Later in the quarter, Northeast took over on its own 19 and promptly marched 81 yards in seven plays for the first touchdown of the game. Six plays moved the ball to the Indians' 48 where Shillcutt fired his long pass to Regan. Tech's Kenny Tidwell tipped the ball at the Canine 15 and it bounced into the hands of Regan who dashed into the end zone. Ragan kicked good with 3:05 left in the quarter.

On Williamson's interception runback, the big center collared a Shillcut pass at the Bulldog eight and lumbered downfield behind a cordon of blockers. He was hit at the 30, lost his balance and staggered all the way down to the five where he was tackled by Indian guard Joe McClain.

The play which should have broken the Indians' back only seemed to arouse them to stay in the fight to the end.

Scoring summary:

Tech: Greer five yard pass from Laird (Campbell kick)
Tech: Lee five yard pass from Laird (Campbell)
Tech: Reeves 40 yard run (Campbell kick)

Tigers Cling To Slim Hope For Bowl Tilt

By SAM HANNA
World Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE — Fullback Don Schwab broke the ice on a chilly afternoon Saturday with a 60-yard touchdown blast that paced LSU past Tulane's determined but outmanned Greenies, 20-0.

A topcoat crowd of about 55,000 fans watched the Tigers march up and down the field with an impressive but inconsistent ground attack, netting 314 yards to Tulane's minus one.

After the Game, Coach Charles McClendon, expressing satisfaction with the 7-3 record of his sophomore Tigers, said LSU was being considered by the Gator Bowl and the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Tulane closed the season in its eighth defeat against a lone victory and one tie.

Halfback Danny LeBlanc, who had a rough afternoon, scored LSU's first touchdown in the opening period on a three-yard buck after he was hit three times by would-be Tulane tacklers.

On a third-down situation at the Tiger 34, he ripped through the right side of his line, bulled into a horde of Greenies but suddenly broke for the sidelines, going all the way.

And that pretty much tells the story, although in the fading minutes of the game quarterback Ed Greer came off the LSU bench to throw five passes, completing two but having one intercepted in the end zone moments before the clock ran out.

Dark clouds hovered over Tiger stadium for the first half as the big, silent crowd offered a prayer for the slain president, John F. Kennedy. Dr. John Hunter, LSU president, rendered a commemoration at halftime in Kennedy's honor.

But when the sun broke through in the second half, LSU went to work with a slim 7-0 lead.

The Tigers marched to the Tulane 22 after taking the second half kickoff, but ran out of downs as Moreau came in to kick a 40-yard field goal.

Schwab, workhorse of the afternoon with 20 carries for a net total of 154 yards, and LaBruzzo were the chief ball carriers in the drive that sputtered on the Tulane 22. LaBruzzo carried a total of 17 times during the game for a net yardage of 73.

Actually, LSU didn't have but one sustained drive all afternoon. And that came the second time the Bengals got their hands on the ball.

Later in the period Tulane came back with its deepest penetration of the half, driving to the LSU 32 where senior Robby Hucklebridge threw quarterback Al Burguieres for a five yard loss, killing the threat.

Guard Don Bright had tried a 52-yard field goal minutes earlier, but it fell short.

Burguieres turned in a fine performance for Tulane in a losing effort. He completed eight of 22 passes for Tulane's total net of 88 yards.

But the touch Tiger wall pounded him to the slippery turf all afternoon, throwing him for a net loss of 37 yards on 16 carries. He ended up gaining 29 yards.

HOGS BREAK EVEN

Arkansas Downs Texas Tech Club

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) —Arkansas wrapped a break-even football season Saturday by edging Texas Tech in a Southwest Conference game, 27-20, on the weight of a 24-yard touchdown run by quarterback Billy Gray.

The Arkansans jumped into the front with three touchdowns, one on an 80-yard punt return by Kenny Hatfield before the Texas Tech Red Raiders hit pay dirt. But then the Raiders unleashed a two-touchdown aerial blast engineered by quarterback Ben Elledge, who scored their third touchdown on a short run.

Jack Brasuell, sophomore phenom sensation, broke loose for a 34-yard off tackle sprint early in the second quarter after Bobby Nix scored first for the Arkansas Razorbacks near the end of the first period from one yard out after quarterback Fred Marshall had set it up with runs of 22 yards, topped by his 12-yard pass to end Jerry Lamb.

Then suddenly it was Elledge's show. First he executed a 17-yard touchdown pass to end Tommy Doyle and then four minutes later fired a 40-yard scoring heave to end David Parks.

Before Arkansas could find itself, the Raiders tied it up with Elledge's one-yard sneak, which climaxed a 76-yard march with Donny Anderson and fullback Jim Zanois contributing most of the yardage with hard up-the-middle running.

Parks speared four passes for 80 yards and set a Tech season record for passing yardage by an individual. His season total was 499 yards, breaking Robert (Bake) Turner's 1959 mark. Anderson also set a new mark for kickoff returns with 448 yards against 348 by Don Lewis in 1952.

The victory gave Arkansas an even break for its 10-game season, but it was the Razorback's poorest showing under Coach Frank Broyles since his first game here six years ago. In the conference, he finished with three victories against four defeats.

Less than 10 minutes were left when Arkansas pulled the game out of a deadlock. Bobby Reynolds with consistent ground gains, sparked Gray's aerial display on the 85-yard trip which ended with Gray's 24-yard touchdown run and victory.

Florida Defeats Miami By 27-21 Behind Clarke

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A 70-yard touchdown dash by Hagood Clarke shattered a 14-14 deadlock Saturday night and Florida defeated Miami, 27-21, in a traditional football battle dedicated to the memory of the nation's dead president, John F. Kennedy.

In the Orange Bowl Stadium where Kennedy attended New Year's Day games as president-elect and president, 57,773 persons participated in pre-game and halftime ceremonies for the man felled Friday by an assassin's bullet in Dallas.

Florida and Miami considered cancelling or postponing the game, as so many others did throughout the nation, but decided with Gov. Farris Bryant's approval that it should go on so that the spectators could join in a mass service.

The teams were locked in a tight struggle when Clarke accepted a handoff to the weak side, slipped out of the arms of the one tackler and sped to the winning touchdown.

Then, moments later, Alan Poe pounced on a wild Miami lateral at the Hurricane 46 to put the Gators in position for a clinching score. Tom Shannon whipped a 26-yard pass to Poe and later sneaked across from a yard out.

Miami's All-America George Mira, put on a great aerial show, throwing three touchdown passes, and might have guided the Hurricanes to victory if his receivers had not dropped many passes he threw directly into their arms.

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska won its first Big Eight Conference football championship in 23 years Saturday by mastering Oklahoma's sixth-ranked Sooners 29-20 and moved into the Orange Bowl New Year's Day.

Oklahoma's fumbles, a devastating Nebraska defense and the hard running of Rudy Johnson, Willie Ross, Dennis Claridge and Kent McCloughan turned the victory into a fourth-quarter rout.

The victory rounded out a 9-1 season overall, 7-0 in the Big Eight and automatically put the Cornhuskers in the Orange Bowl at Miami.

PEOPLE SUFFER SHOCK

Sports Activities At Near Standstill

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sports activity throughout the distraught nation was at a virtual standstill Saturday as the saddened citizens, still in a state of shock, mourned the death of President Kennedy.

Nearly all of Saturday's college football games, the entire Sunday American Football League schedule, the weekend American Soccer League games, National Basketball games, thoroughbred and harness racing, golf, baseball, track meets and other sports were either postponed or canceled altogether.

Only the National Football League, the National Hockey League, several NBA teams, about a dozen college football teams and one major race track decided to go through with weekend sports as scheduled.

Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York suspended all racing in the state until after the President's funeral Monday. As a result Aqueduct and Roosevelt Raceway canceled Saturday and Monday's cards. Both will resume Tuesday.

All scheduled televised weekend sports were canceled by the networks.

"It has been traditional in sports for athletes to perform in times of great personal tragedy," said NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle, in announcing the decision to play the league's seven games. "Football was Mr. Kennedy's game. He thrived on competition."

Among the college football games postponed were the 80th Harvard-Yale contest at New Haven and the Illinois-Michigan State game at East Lansing, Mich.

The Illinois - Michigan State contest, which will settle the Big Ten championship and the conference's entry in the Rose Bowl was rescheduled for Thanksgiving Day at East Lansing. The Harvard-Yale game may be played next Saturday, Nov. 30.

All Big Ten, Big Six and Ivy League games were postponed. Also put off was the Notre Dame -Iowa game.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association left it to the colleges involved to do as they saw fit. Only the Southeastern Conference offered a complete schedule. Most other schools canceled or postponed their games.

The Oklahoma - Nebraska game at Nebraska was the only Big Eight game that was not postponed. The game decided the host team in the Orange Bowl.

Among the major games postponed were Rice at Texas Christian, Penn State at Pitt, North Carolina at Duke, Air Force at Colorado, Washington State at Washington, California at Stanford, UCLA at Southern California, Missouri at Kansas, Kansas State at Oklahoma State, Oregon State at Oregon, Clemson at South Carolina and Iowa State at Drake.

Brigham Young Wins Over CSU; Ends Home Tilts

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Brigham Young University salvaged a little for its otherwise dismal 1963 record with a 24-20 intersectional football victory over also dismal Colorado State University Saturday.

In a game played mostly on the ground, the Cougars closed out their home season and posted a 2-7 record to date. The loss left Colorado State, an independent, at 3-7. BYU plays at New Mexico this week.

Brigham Young, playing without 12 players kicked off the squad two weeks ago, displayed for the first time some of its preseason expected form.

Postponed

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Saturday's postponed Los Angeles-San Francisco National Basketball Association game will be played in Los Angeles Sunday, Jan. 26, the Lakers announced Saturday.

Holding a slender 3-0 lead at halftime, Nebraska capitalized on Oklahoma's fumble of a Nebraska punt early in the second half, tackle Lloyd Voss recovering on Oklahoma's 15. Johnson made the short drive good on a one-yard plunge and oranges rained onto the field as the near-capacity crowd of 38,485 savored the Orange Bowl prospects.

Nebraska, again using a fumble to advantage, added seven more points in the wild fourth quarter on Claridge's one-yard plunge and tacked on two more touchdowns in the game's closing minutes. The late Nebraska touchdowns were scored by McLoughan and Fred Duda.

Oklahoma packed its three touchdowns into the fourth quarter, mixing passes with runs after finding its ground game strapped.

The Sooners lost a net of five yards in the first quarter and were held to a total offense of 28 yards in the first half.

Oklahoma covered 57 yard on its first touchdown drive, aided by a 35-yard pass from Bobby Page to end John Porterfield. A 22-yard pass from Ronald Fletcher to John Flynn provided the score.

19-0 VICTORY

Vols Charge By Kentucky With Faircloth, Mitchell

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Tennessee's single-wing power sent tailback Mallon Faircloth and fullback Stan Mitchell crashing through gaping holes in Kentucky's line Saturday, but the Volunteers scored all three of their touchdowns by passes in a 19-0 Southeastern Conference football victory.

Two of the Tennessee touchdowns came on passes by second string tailback Hal Wantland, for five yards, to wingback Bob Petrella in the first period and for 17 yards to wingback Bily Tomlinson in the final period.

In the third period, end Buddy Fisher leaped between two Kentucky defenders near the goalposts to come down with a 26-yard high-lob pass from Faircloth.

Although the touchdowns came on passes, the credit for them belonged to the Tennessee line that let Faircloth, 193-pound senior, and Mitchell, 212 pound sophomore running mate, roam at will into the Kentucky secondary.

Mitchell was the leading ground - gainer for the game, battering for 91 yards in 16 carries. Faircloth picked up 85 yards in 15 trips.

Kentucky had rigged a defense to stop Tennessee's off-tackle power, but even that wasn't much of a success and it left a yawning gap up the middle that Tennessee exploited often.

The Vols drove 39 yards in eight plays for their first score after Kentucky lost a first down on a holding penalty and had to kick into a gusty wind.

A pass from Wantland to Petrella picked up 14 yards and a first down on the Kentucky 11-yard line. Wantland's pass to Petrella in the end zone followed two plays later.

The Vols went 55 yards for their third period touchdown. Mitchell setting it up with a 9-yard smash to the 26-yard line. Faircloth threw one pass incomplete into the end zone, but Fisher came down with the next one.

The final score developed when Wantland returned a punt 10 yards to the Kentucky 35. Mitchell then crashed for two first downs before Wantland notched his second touchdown toss of the day.

Kentucky made only one mild threat, moving against the Vols' second team in the third period, but the Tennessee regulars came in to smother the drive and take over when quarterback Rick Norton's fourth down pass from the 30 - yard line missed connections.

The dreary Kentucky performance sent many in the crowd of 30,000 home early on this grey and somber day as the Wildcats wound up their season with a record of three victories against six defeats and a tie.

For Tennessee, the triumph meant regaining the Old Beer Keg that serves as a trophy in this traditional series, and a chance for an even break on the season by beating Vanderbilt next week. The Vols now have a 4-5 record.

Alex Grammas Inked As Coach

Athletic Director Bob Whitlow said signed contracts from the club's other 12 coaches have been received. Four of them will be assigned to the Cubs for the 1964 season. The others will be sent to the Cubs' farm clubs.

Definite assignments have not yet been made.

Grammas, 36, was given his unconditional release by the Cubs after the past season. He had been with them since June, 1962. In his 10 years in the National League, he also had seen service at Cincinnati and St. Louis.

FLORIDA STATE FALLS

Sidle Is Sensational Again In Auburn Win

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Jimmy Sidle, who may become the nation's No. 1 ball carrier, scored three touchdowns Saturday in pacing ninth-ranked Auburn to a 21-15 victory over the Florida State Seminoles.

Even though he watched part of the game from the bench resting for next week's encounter with Alabama, the Tigers' quarterback picked up 132 yards rushing to strengthen his bid for national championship.

With Sidle in the game, Auburn had the drive needed to turn back the invader and to capitalize on the breaks. Without him, the Tigers were in trouble.

The Seminoles, badly outplayed for the first half, stiffened their defense after the intermission and made it more and more difficult for Auburn to break through. Then a pass interception gave the Indians one scoring opportunity and a 56-yard punt return put them in position for another. They made both of them good.

Sidle got the first score early in the game with an eight-yard sprint, ending an 82-yard drive. The 200-pound junior from Birmingham, who leads the Southeastern Conference in total offense, dived over from the 2 for another touchdown in the second quarter, and bulled his way into the end zone from seven yards out for the final Auburn score.

Woody Woodall booted the three extra points, but missed two field goal attempts after touchdown drives bogged down.

Auburn's defense was marvelous at times, not so good at others. Fullback Doc Griffith hauled down one of FSU quarterback Steve Tensi's passes and gave the Tigers possession of the ball in what became their second touchdown venture. On the next play, Griffith kept the drive going by recovering an Auburn fumble to keep the ball out of Seminole hands.

Tensi threw a 27-yard scoring pass to John Wachtel for one FSU score. Quarterback Ed Pritchett jumped over from the 1 for the final score after Windred Bailey had returned a punt 56 yards to the Auburn 12.

Sidle went into the game needing only 15 yards to overtake Kansas's Gale Sayers for the nation's rushing leadership. Saturdays 132 yards increased Sidle's chances.

Tigers Cling To Slim Hope For Bowl Tilt

field goal in the third period after fullback Mike Vincent covered a Burguieres fumble on the Tulane 27. Quarterback Billy Ezell then picked up his own fumble, racing to the Greenie 16.

From here LaBruzzo carried to the 11 with Schwab going to the 8.

But on fourth down, the Greenies smothered LaBruzzo for a yard loss.

Tulane couldn't move the ball, however, and when quarterback David East kicked poorly to the Greenie 27, LSU found itself in good field position to score.

But the Tigers couldn't after LeBlanc slipped and fell after Schwab was stopped and Ezell threw incomplete. On fourth down, Moreau kicked his second field goal from the 31.

Moreau's two conversions gave him a perfect record of 15 for 15 for the season.

The Greenies got their big chance late in the final period after they took over on their own 27. A pass interference penalty was called against LSU at the 46 and from here the Greenies began to march.

Halfback Ron Chapoton carried it to the 50, then two plays later Burguieres hit him for a 13-yard pass play that carried Tulane to the 45.

Burguieres bit George Smith on the LSU 26 on third down and fullback Larry McIntire bulled his way to the LSU 23. This was the deepest penetration for Tulane in the game.

But senior end Billy Truax, LSU's team captain for the season broke through the Tulane line, throwing Burguieres for a 6-yard loss.

Burguieres threw out - of - bounds and the threat ended.

With the exception of the last three minutes, Ezell, who took over when star Pat Screen was injured against Miami, played the entire ball game for LSU on offense. He had some good moments, throwing 10 times for three completions and net yardage of 39. But the fans gave out with a loud cheer when Greer got into the ball game.

With the clock ticking away, it looked as though Greer would guide the Tigers to a last minute touchdown as he hit fullback Buddy Soefker at the 41.

Schwab was shaken up on the play and taken out of the game.

With Soefker carrying to the Tulane 44, Greer, on fourth down, hit Truax for the first down on the Greenie 31.

Then he hit senior end Danny Numann of Tallulah for a completed pass at the Tulane 15, but a penalty was called against LSU for off sides.

Greer's last-ditch pass to Truax in the end zone was intercepted by Davis. Tulane took over, ran two plays and the game ended.

Southern Gets Big Win Over The Citadel Club

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) —Southern Mississippi used a fumble recovery in the end zone and a 63-yard punt return to break open a tight football game and crush The Citadel 37-12 Saturday night.

Held to a 7-6 margin in the first quarter, the Southerns took control midway in the second.

First, a wild pitchout by Cadet quarterback Wade St. John was recovered behind The Citadel goal by guard Joe Owen. Minutes later, Rabbitt Brown took a Citadel punt and couldn't be caught.

The Citadel's first touchdown came after guard Mel Phillips recovered a fumble on the Southerners 14. Dennis Vincent went over from the one.

The lone sustained march mustered by the Cadets produced their second score in the final period. St. John plunged from the one to cap a 60-yard plunge.

St. Louis Gets Win With Pettit

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Bob Pettit, with fourth quarter help from Cliff Hagan, powered the St. Louis Hawks past the short-handed Cincinnati Royals 133-121 Saturday night in a National Basketball Association game.

Pettit hit 33 points and Hagan 23 as the Hawks moved into a virtual tie for first place in the Western Division, although the Los Angeles Lakers lead by percentage points.

Cincinnati playing without injured Jack Twyman and Tom Hawkins, fell five games behind the leading Boston Celtics in the Eastern Division.

When the Hawks were cementing their lead in the fourth quarter, Pettit scored only three points, but Hagan came to the rescue by scoring 15.

Cincinnati's scoring leaders were Oscar Robertson with 33 and Wayne Embry with 26.

The perfect game, the first this year, was rolled by Teata Semiz, 29, of River Edge, N.J., who got 22 strikes to move into contention after a bad start Friday.

In the third game of his six-game block, Semiz finished with eight strikes for 278, then rolled 12 in a row for his perfect 300 and started the next game with two more strikes before leaving the 2-4-5 on his first ball in the third frame.

NFL OUTLOOK

Tie Is Possible In Both Leagues

By NORMAN MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

It happened only once before in the National Football League, 15 years ago, and it could happen again this season — if the Chicago Bears and New York Giants stumble.

Both conference races could wind up in two-team world series - special playoffs.

In fact, the Eastern Division conceivably could result in an unprecedented three-team deadlock that would push the champion-ship playoff game back to Jan. 5.

Both the Bears and the Giants were involved in the only double conference playoffs back in 1950 and both were beaten. The Cleveland Browns went on to defeat the Los Angele Rams 30-28 in the championship game that year.

To get down to the matter of the moment, the Bears, with a 9-1 record and a one-game lead on the Green Bay Packers in the West, take on the tough Steelers (6-3-1) at Pittsburgh Sunday. The Packers (8-2) face a soft touch in the San Francisco Forty Niners (2-7-1) at Milwaukee.

The Eastern race could be thrown into a three-way tie by sundown Sunday if the St. Louis Cardinals (7-3) upset the Giants (8-2) in New York and the Browns (7-3) beat the Dallas Cowboys (3-7) at Cleveland.

Redskins Seek Win

In Sunday's three NFL games that do not involve division contenders, the Redskins (2-8) seek to snap a seven game losing streak against the Philadelphia Eagles (2-7-1) at Washington, the Minnesota Vikings (3-7) are at home against the Detroit Lions (4-6), and the Los Angeles Rams (3-7) are host to the Baltimore Colts (5-5).

The game against the Steelers could be Chicago's last serious hurdle to the Western Division title. After Sunday, the Bears' opponents are three teams with losing records, Minnesota, San Francisco and Detroit, all to be met in Chicago.

Green Bay's comeback road is tougher. Immediately after Sunday's game, the Packers must go right to work for their nationally - televised Thanksgiving Day scrap with the Lions in Detroit. Green Bay's final two games are at Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The Steelers, who can just about forget about the 1963 title race if they lose to the bears, are aware of the big job ahead.

"The Bears lead the league in nearly every defensive department," observed Coach Buddy Parker of Pittsburgh, "and I don't expect we'll score much."

Fretted Coach George Halas of the Bears: "I don't know whether we can keep the pitch we had last week (in trouncing the Packers (26-7). I've known since I saw the schedule that this game was going to be a toughie for us. And now that it's on us, it's crucial. I hope they the players realize what they're up against."

Casares Injured

Chicago's fleet of running backs was reduced by one because of an ankle injury to Rick Casares.

Coach Vince Lombardi of the Packers said he thought "Bart Starr looks like he's going to be able to play Sunday" against San Francisco. The Packers are three-touchdown favorites.

In the Eastern race, the Giants, with five straight wins, can shake off the Cardinals and perhaps even the staggering Browns, too.

The Giants may have to call on their strong bench once again to replace fullback Alex Webster and defensive back Dick Lynch. And the Cards hope Young Charley Johnson learned a lesson when he was intercepted four times in the game won by the Giants 38-21 three weeks ago.

St. Louis has three key injuries — tight end Taz Anderson, and defensive linemen Don Brumm and Ed Henke.

The Browns, who have lost three of their last four games, face an air bombardment from Don Meredith of the Cowboys. His passes have produced wins in two of the last three games. Frank Ryan should be back at quarterback for the Browns after yielding the job to Jim Ninowski last wek.

FLORIDA STATE FALLS

Sidle Is Sensational Again In Auburn Win

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Jimmy Sidle, who may become the nation's No. 1 ball carrier, scored three touchdowns Saturday in pacing ninth-ranked Auburn to a 21-15 victory over the Florida State Seminoles.

Even though he watched part of the game from the bench resting for next week's encounter with Alabama, the Tigers' quarterback picked up 132 yards rushing to strengthen his bid for national championship.

With Sidle in the game, Auburn had the drive needed to turn back the invader and to capitalize on the breaks. Without him, the Tigers were in trouble.

The Seminoles, badly outplayed for the first half, stiffened their defense after the intermission and made it more and more difficult for Auburn to break through. Then a pass interception gave the Indians one scoring opportunity and a 56-yard punt return put them in position for another. They made both of them good.

Sidle got the first score early in the game with an eight-yard sprint, ending an 82-yard drive. The 200-pound junior from Birmingham, who leads the Southeastern Conference in total offense, dived over from the 2 for another touchdown in the second quarter, and bulled his way into the end zone from seven yards out for the final Auburn score.

Woody Woodall booted the three extra points, but missed two field goal attempts after touchdown drives bogged down.

Auburn's defense was marvelous at times, not so good at others. Fullback Doc Griffith hauled down one of FSU quarterback Steve Tensi's passes and gave the Tigers possession of the ball in what became their second touchdown venture. On the next play, Griffith kept the drive going by recovering an Auburn fumble to keep the ball out of Seminole hands.

Tensi threw a 27-yard scoring pass to John Wachtel for one FSU score. Quarterback Ed Pritchett jumped over from the 1 for the final score after Windred Bailey had returned a punt 56 yards to the Auburn 12.

Sidle went into the game needing only 15 yards to overtake Kansas's Gale Sayers for the nation's rushing leadership. Saturdays 132 yards increased Sidle's chances.

Tigers Cling To Slim Hope For Bowl Tilt

field goal in the third period after fullback Mike Vincent covered a Burguieres fumble on the Tulane 27. Quarterback Billy Ezell then picked up his own fumble, racing to the Greenie 16.

From here LaBruzzo carried to the 11 with Schwab going to the 8.

But on fourth down, the Greenies smothered LaBruzzo for a yard loss.

Tulane couldn't move the ball, however, and when quarterback David East kicked poorly to the Greenie 27, LSU found itself in good field position to score.

But the Tigers couldn't after LeBlanc slipped and fell after Schwab was stopped and Ezell threw incomplete. On fourth down, Moreau kicked his second field goal from the 31.

Moreau's two conversions gave him a perfect record of 15 for 15 for the season.

The Greenies got their big chance late in the final period after they took over on their own 27. A pass interference penalty was called against LSU at the 46 and from here the Greenies began to march.

Halfback Ron Chapoton carried it to the 50, then two plays later Burguieres hit him for a 13-yard pass play that carried Tulane to the 45.

Burguieres hit George Smith on the LSU 26 on third down and fullback Larry McIntire bulled his way to the LSU 23. This was the deepest penetration for Tulane in the game.

But senior end Billy Truax, LSU's team captain for the season broke through the Tulane line, throwing Burguieres for a 6-yard loss.

Burguieres threw out - of - bounds and the threat ended.

With the exception of the last three minutes, Ezell, who took over when star Pat Screen was injured against Miami, played the entire ball game for LSU on offense. He had some good moments, throwing 10 times for three completions and net yardage of 39. But the fans gave out with a loud cheer when Greer got into the ball game.

With the clock ticking away, it looked as though Greer would guide the Tigers to a last minute touchdown as he hit fullback Buddy Soefker at the 41.

Schwab was shaken up on the play and taken out of the game.

With Soefker carrying to the Tulane 44, Greer, on fourth down, hit Truax for the first down on the Greenie 31.

Then he hit senior end Danny Numann of Tallulah for a completed pass at the Tulane 15, but a penalty was called against LSU for off sides.

Greer's lust-ditch pass to Truax in the end zone was intercepted by Davis. Tulane took over, ran two plays and the game ended.

19-0 VICTORY

Vols Charge By Kentucky With Faircloth, Mitchell

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Tennessee's single-wing power sent tailback Mallon Faircloth and fullback Stan Mitchell crashing through gaping holes in Kentucky's line Saturday, but the Volunteers scored all three of their touchdowns by passes in a 19-0 Southeastern Conference football victory.

Two of the Tennessee touchdowns came on passes by second string tailback Hal Wantland, for five yards, to wingback Bob Petrella in the first period and for 17 yards to wingback Bily Tomlinson in the final period.

In the third period, end Buddy Fisher leaped between two Kentucky defenders near the goalposts to come down with a 26-yard high-lob pass from Faircloth.

Although the touchdowns came on passes, the credit for them belonged to the Tennessee line that let Faircloth, 193-pound senior, and Mitchell, big 212 pound sophomore running mate, roam at will into the Kentucky secondary.

Mitchell was the leading ground - gainer for the game, battering for 91 yards in 16 carries. Faircloth picked up 85 yards in 15 trips.

Kentucky had rigged a defense to stop Tennessee's off-tackle power, but even that wasn't much of a success and it left a yawning gap up the middle that Tennessee exploited often.

The Vols drove 39 yards in eight plays for their first score after Kentucky lost a first down on a holding penalty and had to kick into a gusty wind.

A pass from Wantland to Petrella picked up 14 yards and a first down on the Kentucky 11-yard line. Wantland's pass to Petrella in the end zone followed two plays later.

The Vols went 55 yards for their third period touchdown. Mitchell setting it up with a 9-yard smash to the 26-yard line. Faircloth threw one pass incomplete into the end zone, but Fisher came down with the next one.

The final score developed when Wantland returned a punt 10 yards to the Kentucky 35. Mitchell then crashed for two first downs before Wantland notched his second touchdown toss of the day.

Kentucky made only one mild threat, moving against the Vols' second team in the third period, but the Tennessee regulars came in to smother the drive and take over when quarterback Rick Norton's fourth down pass from the 30 - yard line missed connections.

The dreary Kentucky performance sent many in the crowd of 30,000 home early on this grey and somber day as the Wildcats wound up their season with a record of three victories —all in non-conference play— against six defeats and a tie.

For Tennessee, the triumph meant regaining the Old Beer Keg that serves as a trophy in this traditional series, and a chance for an even break on the season by beating Vanderbilt next week. The Vols now have a 4-5 record.

Cajun Classic To Be Finished In Play Today

With 36 holes scheduled for today, it boosted the chances of sturdy Jack Nicklaus, who was six strokes off the pace. The gruelling test should be just suited for a golfer with Nicklaus' power and stamina.

But Goetz, a Tulsa, Okla., swinger, who says this is his last tournament as a tour regular, led the field Friday after two rounds with a 135.

Dave Marr and Jack Rule Jr., winner of the St. Paul Open this year, were next at 136.

Southern Gets Big Win Over The Citadel Club

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) —Southern Mississippi used a fumble recovery in the end zone and a 63-yard punt return to break open a tight football game and crush The Citadel 37-12 Saturday night.

Held to a 7-6 margin in the first quarter, the Southerns took control midway in the second.

First, a wild pitchout by Cadet quarterback Wade St. John was recovered behind The Citadel goal by guard Joe Owen. Minutes later, Rabbitt Brown took a Citadel punt and couldn't be caught.

The Citadel's first touchdown came after guard Mel Phillips recovered a fumble on the Southerners 14. Dennis Vincent went over from the one.

The lone sustained march mustered by the Cadets produced their second score in the final period. St. John plunged from the one to cap a 60-yard plunge.

NFL OUTLOOK

Tie Is Possible In Both Leagues

By NORMAN MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

It happened only once before in the National Football League, 13 years ago, and it could happen again this season—if the Chicago Bears and New York Giants stumble.

Both conference races could wind up in ties that would force special playoffs.

In fact, the Eastern Division conceivably could result in an unprecedented three-team deadlock that would push the championship playoff game back to Jan. 5.

Both the Bears and the Giants were involved in the only double conference playoffs back in 1950 and both were beaten. The Cleveland Browns went on to defeat the Los Angeles Rams 30-28 in the championship game that year.

To get down to the matter of the moment, the Bears, with a 9-1 record and a one-game lead on the Green Bay Packers in the West, take on the tough Steelers (6-3-1) at Pittsburgh Sunday. The Packers (8-2) face a soft touch in the San Francisco Forty Niners (2-3) at Milwaukee.

The Eastern race could be thrown into a three-team tie by sundown Sunday if the St. Louis Cardinals (7-3) upset the Giants (8-2) in New York and the Browns (7-3) beat the Dallas Cowboys (3-7) at Cleveland.

Redskins Seek Win

In Sunday's three NFL games that do not involve division contenders, the Redskins (2-8) seek to snap a seven-game losing streak against the Philadelphia Eagles (2-7-1) at Washington; the Minnesota Vikings (3-7) are at home against the Detroit Lions (4-6), and the Los Angeles Rams (3-7) are host to the Baltimore Colts (5-5).

The game against the Steelers could be Chicago's last serious hurdle to the Western Division title. After Sunday, the Bears' opponents are three teams with losing records, Minnesota, San Francisco and Detroit, all to be met in Chicago.

Green Bay's comeback road is tougher. Immediately after Sunday's game, the Packers must go right to work for their nationally - televised Thanksgiving Day scrap with the Lions in Detroit. Green Bay's final two games are at Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The Steelers, who can just about forget about the 1963 title race if they lose to the bears, are aware of the big job ahead.

"The Bears lead the league in nearly every defensive department," observed Coach Buddy Parker of Pittsburgh, "and I don't expect we'll score much."

Fretted Coach George Halas of the Bears: "I don't know whether we can keep the pitch we had last week (in trouncing the Packers (26-7). I've known since I saw the schedule that this game was going to be a toughie for us. And now that it's on us, it's crucial. I hope they (the players) realize what they're up against."

Casares Injured

Chicago's fleet of running backs was reduced by one because of an ankle injury to Rick Casares.

Coach Vince Lombardi of the Packers said he thought "Bart Starr looks like he's going to be able to play Sunday" against San Francisco. The Packers are three-touchdown favorites.

In the Eastern race, the Giants, with five straight wins, can shake off the Cardinals and perhaps even the staggering Browns, too.

The Giants may have to call on their strong bench once again to replace fullback Alex Webster and defensive back Dick Lynch. And the Cards hope young Charley Johnson learned a lesson when he was intercepted four times in the game won by the Giants 38-21 three weeks ago.

St. Louis has three key injuries — tight end Taz Anderson, and defensive linemen Don Brumm and Ed Henke.

The Browns, who have lost three of their last four games, face an air bombardment from Don Meredith of the Cowboys. His passes have produced wins in two of the last three games. Frank Ryan should be back at quarterback for the Browns after yielding the job to Jim Ninowski last wek.

AT INTERSQUAD CLASH

Fans Can Peek At Tech Cagers

RUSTON — Louisiana Tech cage fans will get a chance for a preview of Bulldog teams Tuesday when the varsity and freshman teams clash at 7:30 p.m.

Coach Cecil Crowley's varsity, with eight returning lettermen and four squadmen, will test the quality of Coach Scotty Robertson's first-year men.

Crowley's starters will probably include Joe Abendroth and Ray Penny at forward, Jerry Hood at center and Butch Miller and Ron McNabb or David Hruska at guard. Abendroth has seen little action in two weeks because of a bad ankle sprain and Joey Barron, topnotch soph prospect, may start in his place. Barron has been impressive in the early drills.

Robertson also has one starter hobbled by a leg injury. Jon Pat Stephenson of Shreveport Woodlawn is a doubtful starter and his place will be grabbed by Danny McCormick of Many or Tim Hall of Alexandria Menard.

Other possible starters include guards Jim Pruett of Shreveport Fair Park and Leon Barmore of Ruston, and forwards Sydney Boone of Shreveport Byrd and Bobby Misso of Bossier City.

Both coaches have been striving to improve the defense in fall drills to help offset a lack of height. Hood and Barron have paced varsity scoring in practice with Stephenson, Boone and Barmore going at a fast scoring pace for the frosh.

Tech will be out to improve on a 10-13 overall record last year and a 4-6 mar kin the Gulf States Conference. The Bulldog Pups will play their first full-fledged schedule in many years against college freshman or junior varsity outfits.

After the varsity-frosh clash, both outfits hit the road to open their seasons against Mississippi State at Starkville Monday, Dec. 2. Tech's Pups play their first home game against the Northeast JV team here Saturday, Dec. 7 as a preliminary to the varsity-East Texas State contest.

All the Pup home games will be preliminaries to Tech varsity contests.

'We Hit Well' Head Husker Says Of Win

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska's Bob Devaney gave the credit for his Orange Bowl win over Oklahoma to his defensive lines Saturday.

"We were hitting extremely well. We had the best hitting on defense since I have been here," said Devaney without emotion.

In the loser's dressing room, Coach Bud Wilkinson said "Nebraska is the best team in the conference. We have no excuses."

Wilkinson, always calm whether on the sidelines or in the dressing room, saw his team lose on fumbles. Devaney, whose Huskers, had held only a 3-0 lead at the half after knocking on the touchdown door several times, said he was fearful of an Oklahoma second half comeback. The big break in the ball game did come swiftly when the second half opened.

When Oklahoma fumbled a punt deep in its own territory and Nebraska recovered. Wilkinson seemingly knew this was a turn of events that could very well seal the decision.

On the sidelines he gave a swift backward kick at a piece of paper. This, and a sudden tensing of his jaw mucles were the only signs that he knew the big break had gone against him. When his offending player, Lance Rentzel, came to the side lines, Wilkinson gave him a quick hug and a few words of encouragement as tears welled in the eyes of Rentzel.

Devaney also mentioned the breaks and praised his club for "knowing what to do with them."

Bob Brown, Nebraska's 271-pound guard and All-America candidate, termed Oklahoma a tremendous team.

"They are a tremendous team that is never beaten until the game is over. I was personally not certain that we had them beaten until the referee's whistle blew for the last time. You never can forget their comeback potentiality," Brown said.

The big guard said that during the week he had worried a bit about whether the Huskers would be "up" for this game. But, he continued, the team spirit came to life in the last hours before the game.

Utah Redskins Revive To Edge Utah Aggies

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Underdog Utah engineered two fourth quarter touchdown drives, then staged a last-minute goal line stand Saturday to edge Utah State, 25-23, in their traditional football game.

A Romney Stadium record crowd of 15,220 watched in 30-degree weather as the Utah Redskins came from behind on the passing arm of Gary Hertzfeldt to overtake the heavier and slow-moving Aggies. Hertzfeldt passed 35 yards to wingback Mike Davis for the winning points.

Utah State, favored from one to two touchdowns, almost pulled out the game in the final three minutes. The Staters drove from their 25 to the Utah one where halfback Larry Campbell was piled up as the game ended.

Utah State's Bill Munson, brilliant in defeat, set a school record for passing yardage in a single game, completing 14 of 24 aerials for 223 yards. He passed for one touchdown.

The loss was only the second of the season for Utah State against eight victories but it probably snuffed out Aggie hopes for a bowl bid. State had been angling for an invitation to the Sun Bowl.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY

Sports World Loses Champion And Friend

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The sports world lost a champion and a friend in the tragic death of President John F. Kennedy, sports leaders throughout the nation said Saturday.

From the citadels of every major sport—baseball, football, golf and the sprawling collegiate program—came expressions of shock and sorrow over the passing of a man who emphasized the importance of building the body as well as the mind.

"We all feel a deep loss and at the same time a great sense of shame and unhappiness that this should happen in our country," said Ford Frick, commissioner of baseball. "We are all shocked and in deep sorrow."

One of the favorite pictures in Frick's Rockefeller Plaza office shows the late president, bare-headed and standing, while looking at a foul ball in the Washington, D. C. park. He ordered all baseball offices closed until after the funeral Monday.

Kennedy was an ardent baseball fan and threw out the first baseball in three opening games in the nation's capital.

Joe Cronin, president of the American League, called Friday's assassination of the young chief executive a "tragic affair" and added:

"He surely was one of the greatest sports enthusiasts ever to live in the White House. He knew a lot about sports, things you wouldn't expect, and he enjoyed swapping sports stories."

Warren Giles, National League president, said:

"While all citizens of the nation are crushed by the loss of our President, we in sports are especially saddened and shocked.

"John F. Kennedy was a sportsman and a friend of baseball. Words seem so out of proportion to one's feelings as we reflect on the tragic, almost unbelieveable circumstances causing his death. The National League shares the grief of this tragic loss and our sincerest sympathy goes out to Mrs. Kennedy and his family."

Walter Byers, executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said all people must be stunned by shock, disbelief and the thought such a thing could happen in America.

"President Kennedy contributed to the advancement of America in uncounted ways," he said. "We shall remain forever conscious of the new meaning and significance he gave to the importance of being physically fit and maintaing a sound body as a base for an alert mind."

Kennedy was a substitute on the Harvard freshman football team while an undergraduate at Cambridge and he and his family popularized touch football as a pastime during informal gatherings at the White House and at their home in Hyannis Port, Mass.

The 80th Harvard-Yale game was the first cancelled when the tragic news of the president's death from a sniper's bullet flashed over the wires.

Joe Dey, executive director of the U. S. Golf Association, said:

"President Kennedy's concern for the total man—for his body as well as his brain and spirit—gave a tremendous lift to the national health. He left both a legacy and a challenge for every red-blooded American."

The late president played golf regularly, but seldom took time to go a full round.

"He's the best golfer of any of our many golfing presidents," a Newport, R. I., professional once said. "If he took time, he could be an 80 shooter."

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, named by Kennedy to arbitrate the bitter NCAA - AAU dispute which threatened our Olympic teams, sent the following telegram to Mrs. Kennedy:

"I realize the utter futility of words at such a time but the world of civilization shares the poignancy of this monumental tragedy. As a former comrade in arms, his death kills something within me."

Col. Donald Hull, executive director of the AAU, called Kennedy "a great dynamic leader with an interest in sports."

"His loss certainly will be strongly felt," Hull added. "Like everyone else the world over, we in sports will miss the President greatly."

Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, expressed himself as "deeply shocked" and Commissioner Joe Foss of the American Football League, which postponed its weekend games, said:

"It is difficult at this time to comprehend the full impact of President Kennedy's loss as a man as well as the head of our government. The magnitude of his loss can only be measured by time and his accomplishments as a heroic service man and devoted servant of our country."

Walter Kennedy, president of the National Basketball Association, said he felt keenly over the loss because of a personal friendship with the late president, and he added:

"His leadership was meaningful to American sports in so many ways and his firm direction will be sadly missed."

Arthur Lentz, assistant executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said world sports had lost a true friend.

"We are lal deeply shocked by this news," Lentz said. "President Kennedy had a love for all sports and he was deeply interested in the Olympic movement which fostered good will among nations."

Tom Hamilton, director of the Big Six Conference on the Pacific Coast, said the President's death was a tremendous loss. "Mister Kennedy was most interested in the Olympics and all other sports," Hamilton said.

Art Rooney, owner of the National Football League's Pittsburgh Steelers, called it a "terrible tragedy" and David (Sonny) Werblin, president of the New York Jets of the American Football League, said it was "a tragedy of national proportion."

"I felt all sports events should be cancelled out of respect for our late President," Werblin added.

OPEN TUESDAY NIGHT

Indian Cagers May Start Season Without Walker

Northeast may start the 7:30 game without star forward Jimmy Walker, twice a member of the all-Gulf States Conference second team. The Jonesboro senior broke a small bone in his right wrist during practice this week and may not be able to play. He is expected to be back in action within a few days, however.

Walker is one of two returning starters on the Northeast squad, the most inexperienced the Indians have had since 1960. The other is another senior, diminutive Irby Gamble, the 5-7 sharpshooter from Marthaville and the GSC leader in field goal accuracy last winter.

Other probable starters this season are junior letterman Larry Butler (6-4) of Forest, sophomore letterman Tommy Enloe (5-9) of Saline and junior college transfer Dick Williams (6-3) of East Orange, N. J. If Walker does not play against Arkansas A&M, he is likely to be replaced by big Lawson Swearingen, a 6-6 sophomore letter winner from Ruston.

This year's Tribe team will be the first in four years without Stuart Toms, Robert Cook, and Milton Linder, three four-year letterman instrumental in Northeast's fine seasons of 1961-62 and 1962-63 when the Indians won the Gulf States Conference championship and tied for second. Toms made the all-GSC team and third team all-America. Cook was a second team all-conference choice and Linder started for three years.

All told, Fant has six lettermen back from last year's team which won 15 of 26 games, the five listed above and sophomore Billy Brooks (6-2) of Jonesville.

Brooks, junior college transfer Walter Snelling (5-8) of Converse, and returning squadman James Brian (6-3) of Pleasant Hill, Truett Nolan (6-0) of Monroe and Albert Krause (5-11) of Sicily Island are expected to see action also and should give the Indians a stronger bench than they had last season.

Fant calls the upcoming campaign a rebuilding season. "Our team will be young and inexperience will probably be our biggest weakness. We'll also be small, smaller than most of our opponents. What we do will depend on how we hustle and how soon our young players reach their potential."

Butler has lettered two years, playing in a total of 36 games. He is a tough rebounder and he and Walker, second in GSC rebounding last winter, should give the Indians good work on the boards.

Enloe is a good driver and ball-handler and has been one of the most improved players in workouts this fall. Williams led the Dixie Conference in scoring last winter at Marion (Ala.) Institute.

AT INTERSQUAD CLASH

Fans Can Peek At Tech Cagers

RUSTON — Louisiana Tech cage fans will get a chance for a preview of Bulldog teams Tuesday when the varsity and freshman teams clash at 7:30 p.m.

Coach Cecil Crowley's varsity, with eight returning lettermen and four squadmen, will test the quality of Coach Scotty Robertson's first-year men.

Crowley's starters will probably include Joe Abendroth and Ray Penny at forward, Jerry Hood at center and Butch Miller and Ron McNabb or David Hruska at guard. Abendroth has seen little action in two weeks because of a bad ankle sprain and Joey Barron, topnotch soph prospect, may start in his place. Barron has been impressive in the early drills.

Robertson also has one starter hobbled by a leg injury. Jon Pat Stephenson of Shreveport Woodlawn is a doubtful starter and his place will be grabbed by Danny McCormick of Many or Tim Hall of Alexandria Menard.

Other possible starters include guards Jim Pruett of Shreveport Fair Park and Leon Barmore of Ruston, and forwards Sydney Boone of Shreveport Byrd and Bobby Misso of Bossier City.

Both coaches have been striving to improve the defense in fall drills to help offset a lack of height. Hood and Barron have paced varsity scoring in practice with Stephenson, Boone and Barmore going at a fast scoring pace for the frosh.

Tech will be out to improve on a 10-13 overall record last year and a 4-6 mar kin the Gulf States Conference. The Bulldog Pups will play their first full-fledged schedule in many years against college freshman or junior varsity outfits.

After the varsity-frosh clash, both outfits hit the road to open their seasons against Mississippi State at Starkville Monday, Dec. 2. Tech's Pups play their first home game against the Northeast JV team here Saturday, Dec. 7 as a preliminary to the varsity-East Texas State contest.

All the Pup home games will be preliminaries to Tech varsity contests.

'We Hit Well' Head Husker Says Of Win

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska's Bob Devaney gave the credit for his Orange Bowl win over Oklahoma to his defensive lines Saturday.

"We were hitting extremely well. We had the best hitting on defense since I have been here," said Devaney without emotion.

In the loser's dressing room, Coach Bud Wilkinson said "Nebraska is the best team in the conference. We have no excuses."

Wilkinson, always calm whether on the sidelines or in the dressing room, saw his team lose on fumbles. Devaney, whose Huskers, had held only a 3-0 lead at the half after knocking on the touchdown door several times, said he was fearful of an Oklahoma second half comeback. The big break in the ball game did come swiftly when the second half opened.

When Oklahoma fumbled a punt deep in its own territory and Nebraska recovered, Wilkinson seemingly knew this was a turn of events that could very well seal the decision.

On the sidelines he gave a swift backward kick at a piece of paper. This, and a sudden tensing of his jaw mucles were the only signs that he knew the big break had gone against him. When his offending player, Lance Rentzel, came to the side lines, Wilkinson gave him a quick hug and a few words of encouragement as tears welled in the eyes of Rentzel.

Devaney also mentioned the breaks and praised his club for "knowing what to do with them."

Bob Brown, Nebraska's 271 - pound guard and All-America candidate, termed Oklahoma a tremendous team.

"They are a tremendous team that is never beaten until the game is over. I was personally not certain that we had them beaten until the referee's whistle blew for the last time. You never can forget their comeback potentiality," Brown said.

The big guard said that during the week he had worried a bit about whether the Huskers would be "up" for this game. But, he continued, the team spirit came to life in the last hours before the game.

Utah Redskins Revive To Edge Utah Aggies

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Underdog Utah engineered two fourth quarter touchdown drives, then staged a last - minute goal line stand Saturday to edge Utah State, 25-23, in their traditional football game.

A -Romney Stadium record crowd of 15,220 watched in 30-degree weather as the Utah Redskins came from behind on the passing arm of Gary Hertzfeldt to overtake the heavier and slow-moving Aggies. Hertzfeldt passed 35 yards to wingback Mike Davis for the winning points.

Utah State, favored from one to two touchdowns, almost pulled out the game in the final three minutes. The Staters drove from their 25 to the Utah one where halfback Larry Campbell was piled up as the game ended.

Utah State's Bill Munson, brilliant in defeat, set a school record for passing yardage in a single game, completing 14 of 24 aerials for 223 yards. He passed for one touchdown.

The loss was only the second of the season for Utah State against eight victories but it probably snuffed out Aggie hopes for a bowl bid. State had been angling for an invitation to the Sun Bowl.

Big Seasons Open Friday

Quail On Thanksgiving

An untold but big number of Thanksgiving dinners will be gobbled down hurriedly Thursday before Louisiana's army of redshirted deer hunters marches off to do war.

Everybody will be in the act, rushing to the woods to stay up all night before the season opens at dawn Friday, leaving behind their broken homes, plus another army preparing to open the duck season at noon the same day.

The smart ones will be the quail hunters, who can open the bird season on the edge of town early Thanksgiving morning with plenty of time to eat turkey at home in peace.

But there won't be many smart ones; there won't be many hunters sane enough to stay at home to shoot quail or open the duck season at noon the following day.

No sir, most of us got up this morning with visions of that grand ole buck slipping quietly to within shooting range. We can see him now — rocking chair rack and all.

That's why it's a must to blast off Thursday, Thanksgiving or not.

And it should be a good season with 34 hunting days from November 29th through December 16th and from December 26th through January 10th. The whitetails are more plentiful now than ever before, and be darn if it doesn't look like we're going to get some rain and cold weather.

Besides that, many parishes now have huntable deer herds, even including Ouachita where the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area offers the biggest bucks anywhere in Louisiana, except for the button - willow country along the Mississippi River.

And if you can't find a spot on private property, you have a choice of six game management areas in Northeast Louisiana — areas open to public hunting. With the exception of the Russell Sage area, which will be open for 15 days (November 29th - December 6th, and from December 26th - January 1st), all of the areas will be open for five days or for a designated number of deer as follows:

Jackson - Bienville, 400 any deer and 5 days; Union, 50 any deer and 5 days; East Carroll, 125 any deer and 5 days; Caldwell, 75 any deer and 5 days; and Chicago Mills, 1,000 any deer and 5 days.

There's a place to hunt for everybody.

But if you're as crazy as a deer hunter but turned in another direction, the duck season should be much more suitable this year, what with a longer season, November 29th through January 2nd, and a four-duck bag limit that can include two mallards.

Granted this is not the best, but it's so far ahead of last year life is worth living again for the admirers of the greenhead.

And if you belong to that small but growing clique that prides itself in being gentleman members of the king's sport, then Thanksgiving will dawn brightly, because the quail season will last through February 23rd. The bird population is good this year, or so everybody says.

But don't forget all the things you're supposed to remember, like having a regular hunting license, a big game hunting license, a duck stamp, and a permit if you're hunting on a public area.

One other thing. Don't shoot unless you're sure you're shooting at a deer or a duck or a quail — and not a fellow sportsman.

It should be a big Thanksgiving.

Hunting Projects Underway

A lot of work is underway to make things better for the hunter.

For instance, the Wild Life — Fisheries Commission has two projects going in Lafourche Swamp to improve conditions for the duck hunters. One is the Lafourche Public Shooting Area and the other is on the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area.

The Lafourche Public Shooting Area, located just inside Richland Parish south of U.S. 80, is being flooded again for duck hunting. This area has been open for the past several years and should be familiar to the duck hunter. The area consists of 1200 acres.

At any rate, it should be ready by opening day Friday.

On the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area, a pump was installed early this week at the request of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit to flood several hundred acres for duck hunting. Some 500 acres may be flooded by opening day, but frankly that will be pushing it a bit.

This spot is located four to five miles down the Lafourche canal south of U.S. 80.

If these directions are confusing to you, then you can get a map of the areas from the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission office in Monroe.

Meantime, Richard Yancey, assistant director, informed us from New Orleans a day or so ago that the commission will begin work Monday oh a temporary fill across the mouth of French Fork to put water in Catahoula Lake, the biggest duck spot in North Louisiana.

A third of the lake is covered with water now, Dick explained, and according to commission estimates there are about 100,000 ducks on Catahoula presently. With more water in Catahoula, there should be more ducks too.

Two culverts will be placed in the temporary fill to permit the water to flow in French Fork. Dick Yancey emphasized that this is a temporary project and can be removed without any trouble.

Finally, not on hunting but on fishing, the commission has stocked some 2½-million bream in D'Arbonne Lake at Farmerville. This is the first phase of the stocking program.

All of these projects are designed to improve hunting and fishing conditions in our area. Hats off to the commission and its personnel.

Latest Waterfowl Survey

Latest waterfowl survey conducted, which was November 4-7th, showed Northeast Louisiana with 34,250 ducks, including 6,400 mallards. About 2,000 of the total were on Coulee Refuge.

Actually, this area had more greenwing teal than any other kind with 16,000.

Southwest Louisiana, of course, led the state with 2,284,000, and it probably would be a safe guess to say that a big part of these turned up on the Rockefeller Refuge.

The state was 3,486,550 ducks for the state with 297,950 geese.

Both totals will increase as the winter weather comes on.

Little Man's Corner

The little men were busy fishing and hunting and make news afield.

Locally, Ray Clement of Monroe killed a doe in East Carroll Parish with a bow. And from Vidalia, Bill Dale killed a spike on Davis Island.

Our friend Grits Gresham of Natchitoches, in an exchange of reports on the bow season, informs us that David Carter of Natchitoches killed a 6-point buck in Tensas while Henry Mitchell Jr. dropped a spike in Tensas.

Our state total has climbed now to 23 kills for the archery season. But don't forget to report your kill if you have been successful during the season that closes today.

In Arkansas where the first split of the deer season has ended, Ashley County has reported between 400 and 600 deer killed, according to game warden W. Z. Spencer. But he says the figures are not complete.

Highlight of the season was an 8-point buck killed by 81-year-old Jack Kinard. And the biggest kill was reported by Jimmy Clark of Hamburg, who killed a 17-point buck that weighed 230 pounds.

Ashley was proud to report no hunting accidents for the first split.

A local sport took advantage of the Arkansas season. W. B. Goza, circulation manager of the News Star-World, took a 9-point buck out of circulation on an Arkansas hunt.

Hunting deer in Tensas, Travis A. Maxwell of Monroe got too close to a 5-foot rattler. The rattler struck at him, hitting him on the pants leg. But Travis was lucky, jumped aside and shot the snake with his hane 6-3, 6-1 in an all-Australian final for the women's crown. She teamed with Fletcher to win the mixed doubles from Owen Davidson and Robyn Ebbern of Australia 9-7, 6-3.

The U. S. team plays the defending champion Aussies for the Davis Cup here Dec. 26-28.

ENTIRE TEAM DISTRESSED

Heartsick Ralston Loses In Tourney

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)— Dennis Ralston, heartsick over news of the death of President Kennedy, bowed to Australia's John Newcombe Saturday in the finals of the South Australian Tennis Championships.

The 20-year-old University of Southern California student from Bakersfield, Calif., went down 6-1, 6-3, 15-17, 6-1 after being urged to take the court by William Battle, the U.S. Ambassdor to Australia. It was his first Australian setback.

"Our entire team was distressed over the news of he President's assassination," Bob Kelleher of Los Angeles, captain of the U. S. Davis Cup team said. "Denny didn't know whether he should play or not."

The American player finally assented after Ambassador Battle, a personal friend of the late President, assured him that it would have been the wish of the late president.

Even so, it was obvious to the gallery of 6,000 at the Memorial Park courts that Ralston was merely going through the motions. He was only a shadow of the player who swept to the new South Wales title a week ago and beat Roy Emerson, Australia's No. 1 star, en route to the finals here.

Newcombe, 19-year-old Australian junior champion and an outsider up to now in the Australian Davis Cup plans, whipped through the first two sets with ease.

Ralston played with little spirit. His first service was seldom getting into court. He was sluggish at the net, where he fell into repeated errors.

In the third set, the young American had a sudden revival and for a brief period showed flashes of his old form. He broke Newcombe's service in the first game and ran up leads of 2-0, 3-1, 4-2 and 5-3. Then he was passed twice at the net in the 10th game and the score was leveled at 5-5.

Games then went with service until Ralson broke Newcombe in the 31st game for a 16-15 lead. He held service easily for the set.

The comeback was short-lived however. Newcombe stepped up his pace in the fourth set and Ralston again went into a slump, apparently losing concentration. The Australian won the final set in 11 minutes. He broke Ralston's service twice and missed one match point on his own service before finally clinching.

Ken Fletcher and Tony Roche won the men's doubles championship by beating Mike Sangster and Roger Taylor of Britain 9-7, 4-6, 6-4, 4-6, 8-6.

Margaret Smith beat Jan Lebow. The snake had 15 rattles and a button.

On the fishing scene, H. L. McGlothlin of Ferriday got the limit of bass in Lake Concordia. So did George Wilson, Bill Strickland, Al Britt, Herb Bailey, Ed Carol, Robert Hodges, and Henry and George King, all of Ferriday.

C. W. Crumbley of Ferriday got the limit of bass in Concordia while Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sillers of West Monroe landed the limit of bream in Lake St. John.

Johnny Abers and M. C. Bellbellew of Monroe caught the limit of bream in St. John.

John and Alice Whitt of Vidalia caught the limit of white perch at Deerpark. Others getting their limits there included Priester, Willie Goss and Powell Kaiser.

A victory would give McNeese the Gulf States Conference title.

Highlighting the first day's meeting will be a talk by Dr. John W. Chisholm, professor of economics at LSU. Dr. Chisholm's topic has not been announced yet, reported Jack Hesketh, superintendent of the Monroe Recreation Department, who will introduce the guests.

A group discussion at 2 p.m. will involve the future needs of recreation with Dr. Wayne Robichaux, recreation specialist of LSU, presiding.

Climaxing the business portion of the first conference day will be a panel discussion moderated by Jim Ledbetter, superintendent of the Louisiana Recreation and Park Commission, from New Iberia. The panels and leaders of each follow:

Kicking off the conference activity Tuesday will be a panel discussion entitled "Youth in a Changing World." Presiding will be J. S. Harbuck, board member of the Monroe Recreation Department. Panelists scheduled to participate are Mrs. Ann Stone, parent; the Rev. George Harbuck, clergyman; Buster Crowley, Ouachita Parish probation officer; and A. S. Huffman, professor at Northeast Louisiana State College.

The two-day conference will terminate at noon Tuesday after the annual business meeting of the Louisiana Recreation and Park Association.

Hesketh, stated that anyone interested in organized recreation is invited to attend any part of the conference. He said that about 150 persons are expected to attend.

Cotton Closes On Low Ground

Prices were off $1.25 to up 10 cents for the week. The only net gains for the week were recorded by the March 1965 delivery.

Although interest in trading remained limited, the day-to-day turnover was better than a week ago. Commission houses participated on both sides of the market. Much of the trading reflected switching operations.

Big Seasons Open Friday

With Sam Hanna

Quail On Thanksgiving

An untold but big number of Thanksgiving dinners will be gobbled down hurriedly Thursday before Louisiana's army of redshirted deer hunters marches off to do war.

Everybody will be in the act, rushing to the woods to stay up all night before the season opens at dawn Friday, leaving behind their broken homes, plus another army preparing to open the duck season at noon the same day.

The smart ones will be the quail hunters, who can open the bird season on the edge of town early Thanksgiving morning with plenty of time to eat turkey at home in peace.

But there won't be many smart ones; there won't be many hunters sane enough to stay at home to shoot quail or open the duck season at noon the following day.

No sir, most of us got up this morning with visions of that grand ole buck slipping quietly to within shooting range. We can see him now — rocking chair rack and all.

That's why it's a must to blast off Thursday, Thanksgiving or not.

And it should be a good season with 34 hunting days from November 29th through December 16th and from December 26th through January 10th. The whitetails are more plentiful now than ever before, and be darn if it doesn't look like we're going to get some rain and cold weather.

Besides that, many parishes now have huntable deer herds, even including Ouachita where the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area offers the biggest bucks anywhere in Louisiana, except for the button - willow country along the Mississippi River.

And if you can't find a spot on private property, you have a choice of six game management areas in Northeast Louisiana — areas open to public hunting. With the exception of the Russell Sage area, which will be open for 15 days (November 29th - December 6th, and from December 26th - January 1st), all of the areas will be open for five days or for a designated number of deer as follows:

Jackson - Bienville, 400 any deer and 5 days; Union, 50 any deer and 5 days; East Carroll, 125 any deer and 5 days; Caldwell, 75 any deer and 5 days; and Chicago Mills, 1,000 any deer and 5 days.

There's a place to hunt for everybody.

But if you're as crazy as a deer hunter but turned in another direction, the duck season should be much more suitable this year, what with a longer season, November 29th through January 2nd, and a four-duck bag limit that can include two mallards.

Granted this is not the best, but it's so far ahead of last year life is worth living again for the admirers of the greenhead.

And if you belong to that small but growing clique that prides itself in being gentleman members of the king's sport, then Thanksgiving will dawn brightly, because the quail season will last through February 23rd. The bird population is good this year, or so everybody says.

But don't forget all the things you're supposed to remember, like having a regular hunting license, a big game hunting license, a duck stamp, and a permit if you're hunting on a public area.

One other thing. Don't shoot unless you're sure you're shooting at a deer or a duck or a quail — and not a fellow sportsman.

It should be a big Thanksgiving.

Hunting Projects Underway

For instance, the Wild Life — Fisheries Commission has two projects going in Lafourche Swamp to improve conditions for the duck hunters. One is the Lafourche Public Shooting Area and the other is on the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area.

The Lafourche Public Shooting Area, located just inside Richland Parish south of U.S. 80, is being flooded again for duck hunting. This area has been open for the past several years and should be familiar to the duck hunter. The area consists of 1200 acres.

At any rate, it should be ready by opening day Friday.

On the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area, a pump was installed early this week at the request of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit to flood several hundred acres for duck hunting. Some 500 acres may be flooded by opening day, but frankly that will be pushing it a bit.

This spot is located four to five miles down the Lafourche canal south of U.S. 80.

If these directions are confusing to you, then you can get a map of the areas from the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission office in Monroe.

Meantime, Richard Yancey, assistant director, informed us from New Orleans a day or so ago that the commission will begin work Monday on a temporary fill across the mouth of French Fork to put water in Catahoula Lake, the biggest duck spot in North Louisiana.

A third of the lake is covered with water now, Dick explained, and according to commission estimates there are about 100,000 ducks on Catahoula presently. With more water in Catahoula, there should be more ducks too.

Two culverts will be placed in the temporary fill to permit the water to flow in French Fork. Dick Yancey emphasized that this is a temporary project and can be removed without any trouble.

Finally, not on hunting but on fishing, the commission has stocked some 2½-million bream in D'Arbonne Lake at Farmerville. This is the first phase of the stocking program.

All of these projects are designed to improve hunting and fishing conditions in our area. Hats off to the commission and its personnel.

Latest Waterfowl Survey

Latest waterfowl survey conducted, which was November 4-7th, showed Northeast Louisiana with 34,250 ducks, including 6,400 mallards. About 2,000 of the total were on Coulee Refuge.

Actually, this area had more greenwing teal than any other kind with 16,000.

Southwest Louisiana, of course, led the state with 2,284,000, and it probably would be a safe guess to say that a big part of these turned up on the Rockefeller Refuge.

The state was 3,486,550 ducks for the state with 297,950 geese.

Both totals will increase as the winter weather comes on.

So it looks like some good shooting ahead for the duck hunter.

Little Man's Corner

The little men were busy fishing and hunting and make news afield.

Locally, Ray Clement of Monroe killed a doe in East Carroll Parish with a bow. And from Vidalia, Bill Dale killed a spike on Davis Island.

Our friend Grits Gresham of Natchitoches, in an exchange of reports on the bow season, informs us that David Carter of Natchitoches killed a 6-point buck in Tensas while Henry Mitchell Jr. dropped a spike in Tensas.

Our state total has climbed now to 23 kills for the archery season. But don't forget to report your kill if you have been successful during the season that closes today.

In Arkansas where the first split of the deer season has ended, Ashley County has reported between 400 and 600 deer killed, according to game warden W. Z. Spencer. But he says the figures are not complete.

Highlight of the season was an 8-point buck killed by 81-year-old Jack Kinard. And the biggest kill was reported by Jimmy Clark of Hamburg, who killed a 17-point buck that weighed 230 pounds.

Ashley was proud to report no hunting accidents for the first split.

A local sport took advantage of the Arkansas season. W. B. Goza, circulation manager of the News Star-World, took a 9-point buck out of circulation on an Arkansas hunt.

Hunting deer in Tensas, Travis A. Maxwell of Monroe got too close to a 5-foot rattler. The rattler struck at him, hitting him on the pants leg. But Travis was lucky, jumped aside and shot the snake with his bow. The snake had 15 rattles and a button.

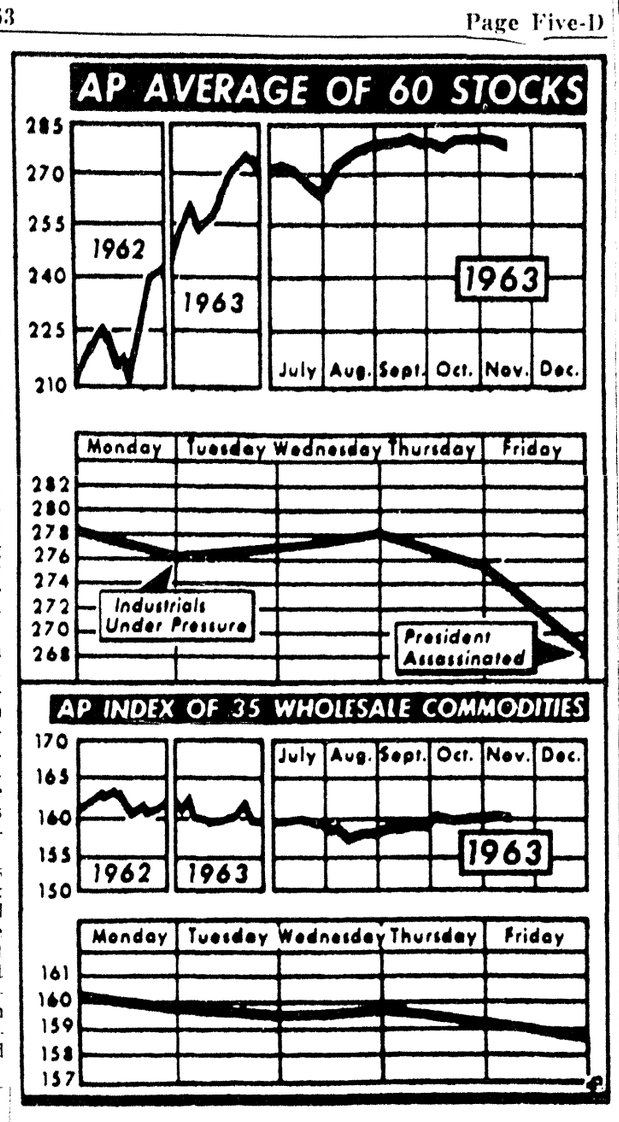
Assassination News Drops Stock Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Kennedy's assassination overshadowed all other developments during this news-crowded week and helped knock away approximately $15 billion from the market's paper value—about two thirds of this in the last abbreviated session.

The market, already shaken badly during the week by the suspension of two respected brokerage houses, was showing signs of recovering on Friday when one of the brokerage houses was reinstated to dealings.

At 1:39 p. m., a UPI flash reported that Kennedy had been wounded seriously—perhaps fatally. The news spread through Wall Street. Dow-Jones industrial average, up 3.31 at 1:30 p.m. had dropped 2.47 by 2 p. m. Trading during that hour alone amounted to 3,010,000 shares compared with Thursday's average pace of 590,000.

By 2:07 p. m., the governors of the New York Stock Exchange announced they had closed trading because of the flood of orders. They said it was their opinion "the market would reflect values more realistically after the public had an opportunity to appraise the effect of this great national and international tragedy."



NEWS OF PRESIDENT Kennedy's assassination caused the stock market to close early Friday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped sharply this week. The average closed at 268.3, down from 278.1 a week ago, as shown in chart. The commodity index closed lower at 158.8 from 160.1 a week before. Food, livestock and agriculture components declined. Amite Wildcat Production Tests Held By Credo

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Production tests were underway Saturday at Credo Oil Company's Amite County wildcat, the Branch No. 1, sec. 7-4n-6e, two miles northwest of the Smithdale oil field.

Operators will test the commercial worth of a sand in the lower Tuscaloosa formation at 11,030-43 feet. The well was drilled to a total depth of 11,223 feet with production casing set at 11,100 feet.

Sun Oil Co. ran production tests at its Johnston Gas Unit No. 1, sec. 24-4n-7e, conformation well in the recently-found East Summit field of Pike County. Completion will be attempted in the shallow Sparta gas sand at 3,533 feet. The discovery well was Sun's No. 1, Paulk sec. 24-4n-7e, completed in early October from a Sparta sand at 3,534-38 feet. The well was completed flowing at the rate of 500,000 cubic feet of gas per day with a flowing pressure of 1,235 pounds.

In Madison County, J. L. Drilling Co. erected pumping unit at its reopened Madison County wildcat, the Hardeman No. 2, sec. 24-9n-1w, in an effort to complete as a commercial producer. Swabbing operations have recovered oil and salt water from perforations in the gas rock at 4,790-4,805 feet. The well was abandoned in August of this year by C. A. Lee after drilling to 10,495 feet. Present operator was attempting to clean the well out and test shows below 9,000 feet when oil was noted on mud pits at depth of 4,900 feet. Production casing was run in an effort to complete the well from the shallow zone. The wildcat is two miles north of the shallow Flora field.

Two important wildcat tests in the Hardrock Country of northeast Mississippi are drilling in Calhoun County. Pan American Petroleum Corp. was below 6,100 feet in its Hodges No. 1, sec. 4-22n-1:e, six miles southeast of Calhoun County the venture scheduled to be drilled to 10,000 feet. Pan American's second venture the Gates No. 1, sec. 14-12s-1e, three miles northeast of Reid is below 3,400 feet. Both tests are being drilled on 640 acre units granted by the Mississippi State Oil and Gas Board.

A new test is scheduled to get underway in the Siloam field of Clay County with American Exploration and Dev. Corp. rigging up at its McLemore No. 1, sec. 36-16s-1:e. The Siloam field is also located in the hardrock country of northeast Mississippi.

Humble Oil and Refining Co. is drilling below 10,000 feet in its Issquena County wildcat, the Anderson-Tully No. 1, sec. 1-7n-3e.

Market Moods Set By Bulls

CHICAGO (UPI)— The bulls set the market mood this week and paved the way for a sharp selloff of grain futures.

Compared to last Friday, wheat was off 5¾ to up 10⅝, corn off 1⅜-1⅝; oats off 1-2⅜; rye off 4¼-8⅛ and soybeans off 8¼-16.

News of President Kennedy's assassination topped disappointment over the continued delay in a wheat sale to Russia and word that a large eastern vegetable oil firm had filed a bankruptcy petition to hand soybeans a 16c loss. The downtrend in soybeans began last week when prices slid 10c.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Good, Bad News Rocks Wall Street

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

Spirits were raised in the Street and across the country when American Telephone & Telegraph Co. voted to split its common stock 2- for-1, raised the dividend and offered its 2.2 million stockholders rights to buy 12.25 million shares of stock.

The financial community was shaken up when the New York Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange suspended the trading privileges of two big brokerage houses because of financial difficulties.

AT&T, world's largest utility, will double the shares held by its biggest family of stockholders next June. It also will pass out an extra 10 cents in each quarterly dividend next year.

Its stock offering will give stockholders the right to buy one new share for each 20 held on Feb. 18. Proceeds will help finance a record $3.25-billion construction program in 1964.

The suspended brokerage firms were the old-line Ira Haupt & Co. and J. R. Williston & Beane, Inc.

They ran into financial troubles when Allied Crude Vegetable Oil & Refining Co. of Bayonne, N.J., was unable to meet calls for nearly $19 million in margin on trades in cottonseed and soybean oil.

Allied had filed bankruptcy proceedings on Tuesday, the day before the suspensions were announced.

Allied apparently had overextended its credit in buying commodity futures in anticipation of sales of vegetable oils to Soviet-bloc countries.

The price of the commodities dropped sharply in the last week as a deal to sell wheat to the Soviet Union stalled in Congress. The wheat deal was considered a prelude to commodity sales.

Haupt and Williston & Beane said their suspension would not mean losses to their customers.

Dividend increases were announced by three other major companies — Du Pont, Sears, Roebuck and American Motors.

Analyzing the health of the economy, the Morgan Guarantee Trust Co. of New York commented that, "The current round of business expansion now in its 33rd month, is putting on an impressive display of youthful pep."

"All of the broad economic indicators appear to be moving upward, not only assuring a good fourth-quarter gain in gross national product but hinting at considerable carryover momentum for early 1954," the bank said.

The Commerce Department reported that personal income in October ran at an annual rate of $470.3 billion, up $3 billion from September. However intentions to buy new cars while up from a few months ago, weren't as ambitious as a year earlier.

The intention of families to buy new homes slipped from the previous quarterly survey.

Housing starts and factory orders for durable goods—two important economic indicators — improved substantially in October. Private housing starts ran at an annual rate of 1,876,000 units, up 8 per cent from September and 22 per cent from a year earlier. Orders for durable goods returned to the record $17.9 billion set in April.

Despite a rash of strikes, the automobile industry turned out an estimated 188,200 passenger cars, compared with 177,067 last week and 133,010 a year ago.

Chevrolet became the first individual automaker to produce 10,000 passenger cars in a single day.

Steel production rose during the week for the fourth consecutive week, totaling 1,1979,000 tons, a gain of 1.1 per cent from the previous week.

Stocks Take Worst Loss Since 1962

NEW YORK (AP) — Shocked by President Kennedy's assassination, the stock market last week took its worst loss in 17 months.

Not since the week ended June 23, 1962 — when the big market plunge of that spring bottomed out — had stocks undergone such a decline.

This week the Dow Jones industrial average fell 28.51 to 711.49, compared with the fall of 38.99 in the June '62 week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week fell 9.9 to 268.3, its biggest fall since the 11.6 loss of the same June '62 week.

The decline, however, probably would have been far worse had the New York Stock Exchange — and other exchanges throughout the nation—not suspended trading a half hour after the first news came that the President had been shot. Trading was stopped an hour and 20 minutes before the usual closing time.

What might have happened can be guessed by the extent of the decline on Sept. 26, 1955, when President Eisenhower suffered a heart attack. On that day—a full session—the Dow industrials lost 31.89 and the AP average 11.4.

The news of the President's death came to a Wall Street which had been jittery most of the week.

The market, vulnerable to further "correction" of its big 1963 advance, sank sharply on Monday as pessimism spread concerning the fate of the administration's tax-cut program and as concern grew over the troubles American oil companies were having in various parts of the globe.

The popular market averages recovered somewhat on Tuesday and a fairly good rally was mounted on Wednesday. Stocks were buoyed by the surprisingly good news that American Telephone — the most widely held stock of all—had proposed a 2-for-1 stock split, a dividend increase and a stock rights issue. The advance, however, was somewhat dampened by news that two old-line brokerage Houses had been suspended by the New York Stock Exchange because of financial deficiencies which violated exchange rules.

Stocks embarked on a vigorous rally Friday after declining Thursday. After this rally had been under way for something more than an hour news came of the shooting of the President.

Prices immediately barked away. The ticker tape ran 27 minutes late. Great losses were taken by many of the prime blue chips. A half hour after the news came, the exchange closed for the day. Other exchanges throughout the nation followed suit.

Volume was 26,862,771 shares compared with 226,664,551 the previous week. It was the largest since the week ended Nov. 2 when 28,722,840 shares changed hands.

Bond prices changed only slightly during the week before the dramatic halt in trading due to assassination of the President. Both U.S. government and corporate lists were narrowly mixed.

Corporate volume totaled $51,919,000 par value compared with $40,710,000 the previous week and was the most since $55,510,000 the week of May 28-June 1, 1962.

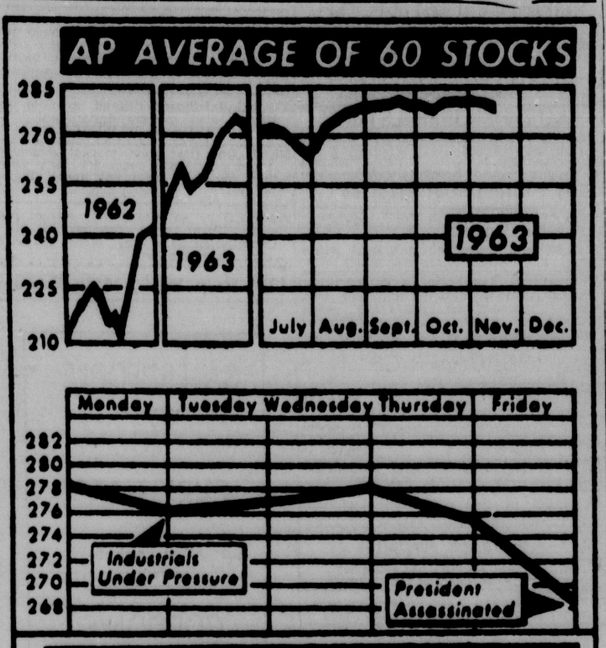
Assassination News Drops Stock Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Kennedy's assassination overshadowed all other developments during this news-crowded week and helped knock away approximately $15 billion from the market's paper value—about two thirds of this in the last abbreviated session.

The market, already shaken badly during the week by the suspension of two respected brokerage houses, was showing signs of recovering on Friday when one of the brokerage houses was reinstated to dealings.

At 1:39 p. m., a UPI flash reported that Kennedy had been wounded seriously—perhaps fatally. The news spread through Wall Street. Dow-Jones industrial average, up 3.31 at 1:30 p.m. had dropped 2.47 by 2 p. m. Trading during that hour alone amounted to 3,010,000 shares compared with Thursday's average pace of 590,000.

By 2:07 p. m., the governors of the New York Stock Exchange announced they had closed trading because of the flood of orders. They said it was their opinion "the market would reflect values more realistically after the public had an opportunity to appraise the effect of this great national and international tragedy."



NEWS OF PRESIDENT Kennedy's assassination caused the stock market to close early Friday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped sharply this week. The average closed at 268.3, down from 278.1 a week ago, as shown in chart. The commodity index closed lower at 158.8 from 160.1 a week before. Food, livestock and agriculture components declined. Amite Wildcat Production Tests Held By Credo

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Production tests were underway Saturday at Credo Oil Company's Amite County wildcat, the Branch No. 1, sec. 7-4n-6e, two miles northwest of the Smithdale oil field.

Operators will test the commercial worth of a sand in the lower Tuscaloosa formation at 11,030-43 feet. The well was drilled to a total depth of 11,223 feet with production casing set at 11,100 feet.

Sun Oil Co. ran production tests at its Johnston Gas Unit No. 1, sec. 24-4n-7e, conformation well in the recently-found East Summit field of Pike County. Completion will be attempted in the shallow Sparts gas sand at 3,533 feet. The discovery well was Sun's No. 1, Paulk sec. 24-4n-7e, completed in early October from a Sparta sand at 3,534-38 feet. The well was completed flowing at the rate of 500,000 cubic feet of gas per day with a flowing pressure of 1,235 pounds.

In Madison County, J. L. Drilling Co. erected pumping unit at its reopened Madison County wildcat, the Hardeman No. 2, sec. 24-9n-1w, in an effort to complete as a commercial producer. Swabbing operations have recovered oil and salt water from perforations in the gas rock at 4,790-4,805 feet. The well was abandoned in August of this year by C. A. Lee after drilling to 10,495 feet. Present operator was attempting to clean the well out and test shows below 9,000 feet when oil was noted on mud pits at depth of 4,900 feet. Production casing was run in an effort to complete the well from the shallow zone. The wildcat is two miles north of the shallow Flora field.

Two important wildcat tests in the Hardrock Country of northeast Mississippi are drilling in Calhoun County. Pan American Petroleum Corp. was below 6,100 feet in its Hodges No. 1, sec. 4-22n-1;e, six miles southeast of Calhoun County the venture scheduled to be drilled to 10,000 feet. Pan American's second venture the Gates No. 1, sec. 14-12s-1e, three miles northeast of Reid is below 3,400 feet. Both tests are being drilled on 640 acre units granted by the Mississippi State Oil and Gas Board.

A new test is scheduled to get underway in the Siloam field of Clay County with American Exploration and Dev. Corp. rigging up at its McLemore No. 1, sec. 36-16s-1;e. The Siloam field is also located in the hardrock country of northeast Mississippi.

Humble Oil and Refining Co. is drilling below 10,000 feet in its Issquena County wildcat, the Anderson-Tully No. 1, sec. 1-7n-3e.

Market Moods Set By Bulls

CHICAGO (UPI)— The bulls set the market mood this week and paved the way for a sharp selloff of grain futures.

Compared to last Friday, wheat was off 5¾ to up 10⅝, corn off 1⅜-1⅝; oats off 1-2⅜; rye off 4¼-8⅛ and soybeans off 8¼-16.

News of President Kennedy's assassination topped disappointment over the continued delay in a wheat sale to Russia and word that a large eastern vegetable oil firm had filed a bankruptcy petition to hand soybeans a 16c loss. The downtrend in soybeans began last week when prices slid 10c.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Good, Bad News Rocks Wall Street

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

Spirits were raised in the Street and across the country when American Telephone & Telegraph Co. voted to split its common stock 2- for-1, raised the dividend and offered its 2.2 million stockholders rights to buy 12.25 million shares of stock.

The financial community was shaken up when the New York Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange suspended the trading privileges of two big brokerage houses because of financial difficulties.

AT&T, world's largest utility, will double the shares held by its biggest family of stockholders next June. It also will pass out an extra 10 cents in each quarterly dividend next year.

Its stock offering will give stockholders the right to buy one new share for each 20 held on Feb. 18. Proceeds will help finance a record $3.25-billion construction program in 1964.

The suspended brokerage firms were the old-line Ira Haupt & Co. and J. R. Williston & Beane, Inc.

They ran into financial troubles when Allied Crude Vegetable Oil & Refining Co. of Bayonne, N.J., was unable to meet calls for nearly $19 million in margin on trades in cottonseed and soybean oil.

Allied had filed bankruptcy proceedings on Tuesday, the day before the suspensions were announced.

Allied apparently had overextended its credit in buying commodity futures in anticipation of sales of vegetable oils to Soviet-bloc countries.

The price of the commodities dropped sharply in the last week as a deal to sell wheat to the Soviet Union stalled in Congress. The wheat deal was considered a prelude to commodity sales.

Haupt and Williston & Beane said their suspension would not mean losses to their customers.

Dividend increases were announced by three other major companies — Du Pont, Sears, Roebuck and American Motors.

Analyzing the health of the economy, the Morgan Guarantee Trust Co. of New York commented that, "The current round of business expansion now in its 33rd month, is putting on an impressive display of youthful pep."

"All of the broad economic indicators appear to be moving upward, not only assuring a good fourth-quarter gain in gross national product but hinting at considerable carryover momentum for early 1954," the bank said.

The Commerce Department reported that personal income in October ran at an annual rate of $470.3 billion, up $3 billion from September. However intentions to buy new cars while up from a few months ago, weren't as ambitious as a year earlier.

The intention of families to buy new homes slipped from the previous quarterly survey.

Housing starts and factory orders for durable goods—two important economic indicators — improved substantially in October. Private housing starts ran at an annual rate of 1,876,000 units, up 8 per cent from September and 22 per cent from a year earlier. Orders for durable goods returned to the record $17.9 billion set in April.

Despite a rash of strikes, the automobile industry turned out an estimated 188,200 passenger cars, compared with 177,067 last week and 133,010 a year ago.

Chevrolet became the first individual automaker to produce 10,000 passenger cars in a single day.

Steel production rose during the week for the fourth consecutive week, totaling 1,1979,000 tons, a gain of 1.1 per cent from the previous week.

Stocks Take Worst Loss Since 1962

NEW YORK (AP) — Shocked by President Kennedy's assassination, the stock market last week took its worst loss in 17 months.

Not since the week ended June 23, 1962 — when the big market plunge of that spring bottomed out — had stocks undergone such a decline.

This week the Dow Jones industrial average fell 28.51 to 711.49, compared with the fall of 38.99 in the June '62 week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week fell 9.9 to 268.3, its biggest fall since the 11.6 loss of the same June '62 week.

The decline, however, probably would have been far worse had the New York Stock Exchange — and other exchanges throughout the nation—not suspended trading a half hour after the first news came that the President had been shot. Trading was stopped an hour and 20 minutes before the usual closing time.

What might have happened can be guessed by the extent of the decline on Sept. 26, 1955, when President Eisenhower suffered a heart attack. On that day—a full session—the Dow industrials lost 31.89 and the AP average 11.4.

The news of the President's death came to a Wall Street which had been jittery most of the week.

The market, vulnerable to further "correction" of its big 1963 advance, sank sharply on Monday as pessimism spread concerning the fate of the administration's tax-cut program and as concern grew over the troubles American oil companies were having in various parts of the globe.

The popular market averages recovered somewhat on Tuesday and a fairly good rally was mounted on Wednesday. Stocks were buoyed by the surprisingly good news that American Telephone — the most widely-held stock of all—had proposed a 2-for-1 stock split, a dividend increase and a stock rights issue. The advance, however, was somewhat dampened by news that two old-line brokerage Houses had been suspended by the New York Stock Exchange because of financial deficiencies which violated exchange rules.

Stocks embarked on a vigorous rally Friday after declining Thursday. After this rally had been under way for something more than an hour news came of the shooting of the President.

Prices immediately barked away. The ticker tape ran 27 minutes late. Great losses were taken by many of the prime blue chips. A half hour after the news came, the exchange closed for the day. Other exchanges throughout the nation followed suit.

Volume was 26,862,771 shares compared with 226,664,551 the previous week. It was the largest since the week ended Nov. 2 when 28,722,840 shares changed hands.

Bond prices changed only slightly during the week before the dramatic halt in trading due to assassination of the President. Both U.S. government and corporate lists were narrowly mixed.

Corporate volume totaled $51,919,000 par value compared with $40,710,000 the previous week and was the most since $55,510,000 the week of May 28-June 1, 1962.

Johnson Makes Unannounced Church Visit

He and Mrs. Johnson, dressed in black, sat alone on the front pew of the church across from the White House.

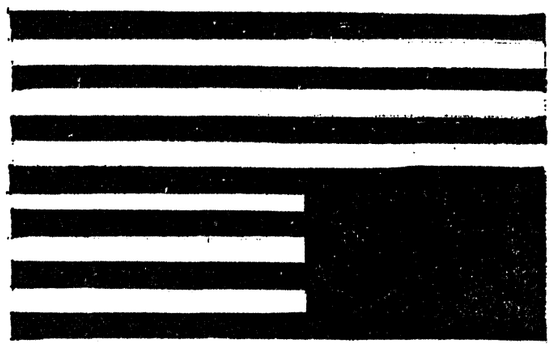
The ceremony which began about 12:15 lasted a little over 30 minutes. No announcement had been made that it would be held or that Johnson would attend.

The Rev. John C. Harper, rector of the church, told reporters the service was arranged early Saturday morning at Johnson's request.

Approximately 100 people were scattered in the small auditorium of the church. The Rev. Mr. Harper said he did not know how they could have known of the service—probably they just came to church on this day of sorrow for President Kennedy's death.

The rector read excerpts from the Episcopal Prayer Book.

In the prayers he asked God to grant the President the "authority, wisdom and strength to know and to do Thy will."



Is America in distress?

This upside-down flag is a signal all is not well with higher education.

Here's the reason. Colleges supply our leaders.

We need more leaders to keep our world place in science, business, living standards.

But the cost of leadership has soared. Colleges face higher costs and shortages. Many need classrooms, laboratories, teachers.

Keep America—and the colleges—out of trouble.

HELP THE COLLEGE OF YOUR CHOICE NOW!

To find out how the college crisis affects you, write to HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36.

Published as a public service in cooperation with The Advertising Council and the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association.

Barnett Issues Mourning Period In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Gov. Ross Barnett Saturday issued a proclamation declaring a period of mourning in Mississippi until the late President Kennedy's funeral is completed Monday.

Barnett's proclamation also directed that all state offices close from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday out of respect to President Kennedy.

It requested that city and county offices and public shools also suspend operations temporarily on Monday.

Aldous Huxley Dies Of Cancer At Hollywood

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Author scholar Aldous Huxley, 69, the literary member of one of the world's foremost scientific families, died of cancer Friday night at his Hollywood home.

"Private services have already been conducted," said a brief announcement from a daughter-in-law, Judith Huxley.

Huxley's physician, Dr. Max Cutler, said he had been ill for about three years of cancer of the mouth, "which had extended."

The British-born titan of letters had made his home in Southern California since 1937.

The forthright author, who blazed a wide path through the world of letters in the 1920s and '30s, had a life-long pastime: taking man apart to see what makes him tick.

His best known work was "Brave New World," which sold nearly a million copies since its publication in 1932.

In it Huxley previewed the 25th century, drawing a chill picture of a godless, mechanized society where even babies arrive on a production line.

Accurately he foresaw television, jet planes, tranquilizing drugs and other medical advances.

Huxley wrote more than 40 books, including a dozen novels. Of these, "Point Counter-point," "Eyeless in Gaza" and "After Many a Summer Dies the Swan" were widely acclaimed and read.

Johnson Makes Unannounced Church Visit

He and Mrs. Johnson, dressed in black, sat alone on the front pew of the church across from the White House.

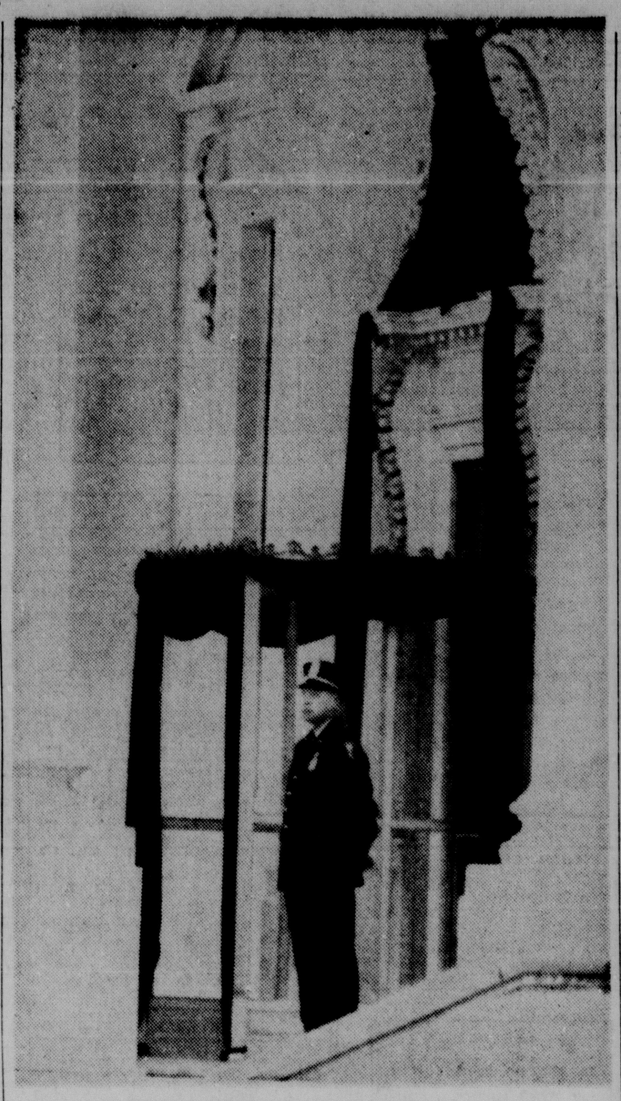
The ceremony which began about 12:15 lasted a little over 10 minutes. No announcement had been made that it would be held or that Johnson would attend.

The Rev. John C. Harper, rector of the church, told reporters the service was arranged early Saturday morning at Johnson's request.

Approximately 100 people were scattered in the small auditorium of the church. The Rev. Mr. Harper said he did not know how they could have known of the service—probably they just came to church on this day of sorrow for President Kennedy's death.

The rector read excerpts from the Episcopal Prayer Book.

In the prayers he asked God to grant the President the "authority, wisdom and strength to know and to do Thy will."



THE NORTH PORTICO of the White House is draped in mourning as a policeman stands guard today. Inside in the East Room lies the body of John Fitzgerald Kennedy who died by an assassin's bullet yesterday in Dallas, Tex. (AP Wirephoto)

Aldous Huxley Dies Of Cancer At Hollywood

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Author scholar Aldous Huxley, 69, the literary member of one of the world's foremost scientific families, died of cancer Friday night at his Hollywood home.

"Private services have already been conducted," said a brief announcement from a daughter-in-law, Judith Huxley.

Huxley's physician, Dr. Max Cutler, said he had been ill for about three years of cancer of the mouth, "which had extended."

The British-born titan of letters had made his home in Southern California since 1937.

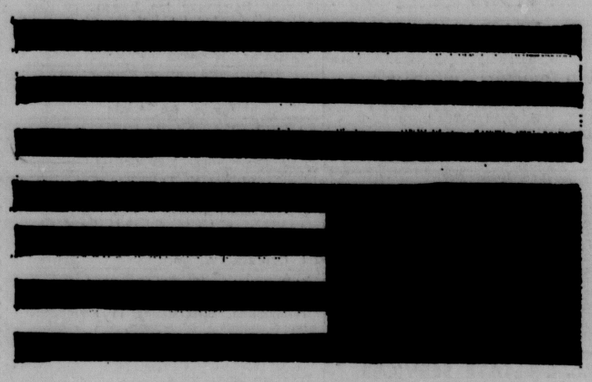
The forthright author, who blazed a wide path through the world of letters in the 1920s and '30s, had a life-long pastime: taking man apart to see what makes him tick.

His best known work was "Brave New World," which sold nearly a million copies since its publication in 1932.

In it Huxley previewed the 25th century, drawing a chill picture of a godless, mechanized society where even babies arrive on a production line.

Accurately he foresaw television, jet planes, tranquilizing drugs and other medical advances.

Huxley wrote more than 40 books, including a dozen novels. Of these, "Point Counter-point," "Eyeless in Gaza" and "After Many a Summer Dies the Swan" were widely acclaimed and read.



Is America in distress?

This upside-down flag is a signal all is not well with higher education.

Here's the reason. Colleges supply our leaders.

We need more leaders to keep our world place in science, business, living standards.

But the cost of leadership has soared. Colleges face higher costs and shortages. Many need classrooms, laboratories, teachers.

Keep America—and the colleges—out of trouble.

HELP THE COLLEGE OF YOUR CHOICE NOW!

To find out how the college crisis affects you, write to HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36.

Barnett Issues Mourning Period In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Gov. Ross Barnett Saturday issued a proclamation declaring a period of mourning in Mississippi until the late President Kennedy's funeral is completed Monday.

Barnett's proclamation also directed that all state offices close from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday out of respect to President Kennedy.

It requested that city and county offices and public shools also suspend operations temporarily on Monday.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a solution for those who have kitchen cabinets that are marred and the paint worn off around the handles.

I went to my dime store, bought some adhesive-backed paper and cut circles from it (using a dinner plate for a perfect circle). I removed the handles from the cabinets and applied the paper to the cabinet, replaced the handles, and presto! The kitchen looks like new.

I do suggest that people find nearest matching color to the paint used in the kitchen to avoid that spotty look.

We used imitation marble and it is absolutely beautiful.

ROCKING CHAIRS

DEAR HELOISE:

If you find that your rocking chair "travels across the room" . . . remedy that situation:

Buy two yards of VELVET ribbon (color makes no difference. I used black because that was the color of my chair).

Turn your chair upside down and brush some glue on the bottom of the rockers. Glue the whole rocker from tip to end.

Now . . . take your ribbon and place it on the glue from the tip of the rocker to the end and cut it off with a pair of scissors. Do the same on the other rocker. Make sure the velvet is facing YOU.

After this is COMPLETELY dry, just turn your chair right side up again and you can rock from here to China, without leaving the room!

Derby

EASY PAYING

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found an excellent way to fry pieces of meat and fowl.

I use a two-pound coffee can and fill it one-third full of flour, salt, pepper and seasonings.

Close lid after putting in your chicken or other meat and just shake the can! No mess, and the flour can be reused if sifted.

Shirley Osborne

QUICK ICE BAG

DEAR HELOISE:

If you ever need an ice bag late at night—which is usually the case—did you know that you could crush some ice cubes and stuff them in your rubber glove? Just twist the arm section, turn it back, and tie it with a rubber band and you have a mighty good emergency ice bag.

I have found, too, that instead of putting pure ice in the glove if you add a little water—approximately four tablespoons full—that the glove will not be too cold when applied.

Mrs. E. H. B.

I tried this. You are exactly right! Thank you for briefing us on emergencies. We never know when they will happen, do we?

NEW FLOWER BEDS

DEAR HELOISE:

Before reshaping or making flower beds around a new home (or an old one), lay out your garden hose first as a pattern for the outline of the beds.

Since curves are most fashionable now you can get a good idea of exactly how you want the bed shaped. Once it's dug it's pretty permanent . . . according to the man of the house. Of course the little wife thinks you can reshape them each week!

Take your spade and make an indentation on the inside of the hose the exact shape of the curve you have outlined. This pays off in the long run. I know. This is my third new home.

CAR WAX TIPS

DEAR HELOISE:

Before discarding that old worn-out bath mat . . . consider keeping it and cutting it into small pieces when polishing the car!

I have found that those old chenille rugs and bath mats cannot be beaten! They are excellent when used for that part of your polishing job. They may either be washed and reused, or thrown away.

Henry S.

Dear Henry:

Did you know that after the wax has been applied to your car, a little dry starch sprinkled on the polishing rag will make the job easier? And here are a few more hints that have come in from our fabulous collection of car waxers:

Never wax the car in the sunshine. This not only causes streaks but it's harder on the finish.

If your car has road film, a good cleaner must be used first. It is useless—especially on a colored car—to try to apply wax over a car that has road film. This also causes streaks.

WAFFLE WOE

DEAR HELOISE:

For heaven's sake, would some bachelor, wife or widow woman . . . please tell this widower how to keep my waffles from sticking to my waffle iron?

I just recently started keeping house and would love to know the secret. I eat waffles every Sunday morning and I have yet to have a perfect one. They either split or stick when I open the lid.

I would appreciate any help.

KEEP 'EM AWAY

DEAR HELOISE:

A good way to keep your sofa and chair away from painted walls is to attach door stops.

I screwed a door stop on each end of our sofa at the back . . . rather low so they only touch the base boards.

I have used this method for years, and the children cannot push furniture to the painted walls where it rubs and mars them.

Mrs. J. Gleeson

GRANDMA'S NEW IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

When I replace our worn-out twin fitted sheets for my children, I rip out the top of the sheet and sew in two yards of 36-inch percale PRINT. My girls absolutely love them!

For the boys' room I use stripes or boys' prints.

John F. Kennedy To Receive Burial Of Hero In Arlington

JFK Caused War Scare, Castro Says

Cuban Leader Deplores Death Despite Policy

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Fidel Castro expressed disapproval Saturday night of John F. Kennedy's assassination but accused the slain President of having carried the world "to the brink of nuclear war."

The Cuban prime minister told his people by radio and television that despite Kennedy's "hostile policies toward us," the news of his assassination "is grave and bad."

"People feel repugnance to such a slaying because we should not consider this method a correct form of battle," he said.

Castro added in the broadcast heard in Miami: "We Cubans must react as conscientious revolutionaries and not confuse systems with the individual. We fight against systems, not the man."

HOSTILE POLICY

But he said Kennedy's administration and that of his predecessor, Dwight D. Eisenhower, "were characterized by hostile and implacable policies toward us. Cuba was victim of attacks of all kinds that cost blood. Hundreds of our compatriots lost their lives defending against Yankee imperialism."

Castro recalled the unsuccessful 1961 Bay of Pigs invasion and the October 1962 naval blockade of Cuba, and declared nuclear warfare could have resulted.

The broadcast was Cuba's first official reaction to the Kennedy tragedy. The prime minister asserted reactionaries in the United States "are taking advantage (of the assassination) to create a state of anti-Soviet and anti-Cuban hysteria."

In the United States, the Cuban leader said, "there is a strong current of reactionaries, racists," and economic factors that affect policy.

Special Church Services Slated For Twin Cities

By FRANK NOONAN
Church Editor

Most of the churches in the Twin Cities will have special services and prayers today for the nation, the new president, and the family of the late President Kennedy.

All Catholic churches in the Twin Cities will offer requiem masses at all of the regularly scheduled masses today. Requiem masses were held in all of these churches Saturday morning also, and some will be held on Monday.

Virtually all of the protestant churches in this area are planning special sermons and prayers. And Temple B'nai Israel will have special memorial services at 12 noon Monday.

Dr. Clifton Tennison, president of Trenton Baptist Association, said that churches in the association in the west part of Ouachita Parish, will have a special prayer at the close of services this morning for the nation in its time of tragedy.

SIMILAR PLANS

Similar plans were announced by the Rev. Ray Raddin, moderator of the Ouachita Parish Baptist Association, who said, "All of the churches in our association will observe a season of prayer in Sunday morning services for the nation and concerning the tragedy that has occurred.

Many pastors have completely rearranged their plans for services to deal with the tragedy. The Rev. James T. Horton of the First Baptist Church of Monroe said he had prepared a sermon with "a thought alone the lines of some of the realities that this points out to us in this great tragedy."

A message from Louisiana Methodist Bishop Aubrey G. Walton, on a tour of mission stations in Africa, was relayed to area ministers by the Rev. Edward R. Haug, Monroe district superintendent of the Methodist Church, asking special observances today.

The message said:

"In this tragic hour in American history our Methodist peo-

LONG, HECTIC DAY

New President Takes Control

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson, briskly taking command in a long, hectic day of crisis, Saturday night scheduled a high-level conference today on the war in South Viet Nam with Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. Ambassador to Saigon.

Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and McGeorge Bundy, special presidential assistant on national security affairs, will attend the 3 p.m. EST meeting.

The White House also announced that Johnson will make a major policy speech before a joint session of Congress on Wednesday, after talks with yet unnamed foreign heads of state who will be in Washington Tuesday.

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said Johnson would talk with Lodge, McNamara and Rusk about their discussions last week in Honolulu on the progress of the costly anti-Communist war in Viet Nam. Johnson apparently wanted a first-hand account of their views following the overthrow of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem.

SLATES BRIEFING

The new chief executive also scheduled a White House intelligence briefing covering the world situation at about 10 a.m. EST. He and Mrs. Johnson will attend 11 a.m. services at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, after which the President will return to the White House. He will join the cortege that will carry the body of the late President Kennedy to the Capitol to lie in state until Monday morning.

The announcement of a heavy round of duties today capped an exhaustive day for Johnson as he struggled to prepare himself for every facet of the duties

INCRIMINATES OSWALD

Police Pile Up More Evidence

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The Police Chief Jesse Curry said Saturday night photographs found in the home of Lee Harvey Oswald's Russian born wife link him with the rifle used in the assassination of President Kennedy.

Curry said the pictures found in the home in suburban Irving, Tex., will be used as evidence in Oswald's murder trial.

He has been charged with murdering the President, killing a Dallas policeman and now with attempting to kill Texas Gov. John B. Connally.

The last charge, assault with intent to murder Connally, was filed Saturday afternoon, the chief said.

STRONGER CASE

"We had this case in good shape this morning and it is even stronger tonight," Curry said.

"We are going to work on this until we have a perfect case," Homicide Capt. Will Fritz said.

Curry said the FBI has a letter, in Oswald's handwriting, ordering the rifle from a mail order house in Chicago. Oswald used an alias and a Dallas post office box number in the letter, he said.

The letter was dated Jan. 30, 1961, when Connally was serving as Kennedy's first secretary of the Navy.

The rifle cost $12.78, Curry said.

"This man killed the President," Fritz said.

In all probability, Curry added, Oswald would not be questioned much more Saturday night. He is to be transferred to the Dallas County Jail—he's now at the city jail—at 10 a.m. today.

Oswald has repeatedly denied any connection with Kennedy's death.

"We have been in this business a long time," Curry said. "After you've talked to a man you can usually tell whether or not he will sign a statement. Oswald has shown no intention of making a statement."

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade is confident of getting the death penalty for Oswald, 24, a man police say is proud of being a Communist.

Curry said Oswald was confronted with the pictures and with other evidence but still protested his innocence. The chief

LATE PRESIDENT'S SON

'No One To Play With Me,' He Says

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A lonely little boy who observes his third birthday Monday wandered through a big Washington house Saturday complaining, "I don't have anyone to play with."

John Fitzgerald Kennedy Jr., says his father was killed by "a bad man." But still he doesn't seem to understand why the slain President is not there to walk the White House corridors with him or why he is not allowed in the presidential offices.

It is different for Caroline Kennedy, to be six years old on Wednesday. Bright beyond her years, she seemed to comprehend death.

The children were told Friday night that their father was dead. The White House did not say who told them, but presumably it was their mother.

Friends said Mrs. Kennedy, not given to public displays of emotion, was making it a point to try to hold up under the strain. They said she "hasn't yet realized completely what has happened."

She has kept a steady vigil with death since she saw her husband fatally wounded in his open car in downtown Dallas Friday afternoon. She cradled him in her arms, his blood splattering over her as she cried, "Oh, no."

Mrs. Kennedy kept a vigil outside the emergency room in the Dallas hospital. On the plane back to Washington, she remained transfixed, staring at the casket in an alcove. She declined to be comforted by those who wanted her to lie down and rest. Those who wanted to sponge her face were turned away gently, with "Thanks, I'm fine."

The 34-year-old widow kept her children by her side Saturday. She took them to the East Room where the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, former president of the University of Notre Dame, said Mass at 10:30 a.m. The children saw the closed bronze casket, flanked by the flickering tall silver candlesticks.

63 Perish As Fire Hits Ohio Home

24 Persons Rescued From Gas Fed Blaze

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—Sixty-three persons perished Saturday in a fire that swept a path of devastation through a nursing home for the aged, infirm and mentally ill. Twenty-four other persons were rescued.

Twelve hours after the fire 62 bodies had been removed to a temporary schoolhouse, and 44 of those had been tentatively identified and two claimed by relatives. Authorities said one more body was being sought in the rubble.

BURNS QUICKLY

The blaze disrupted the 10-year-old Golden Age Nursing Home celebration near Fitchville, 15 miles southeast of here. The one-story concrete building burned quickly, fed by a propane gas tank and tar roofing. A brisk wind fanned the flames.

Harold Carter, state arson inspector, said it will be two or three days before the exact cause can be determined. He fixed the time of the fire's origin at 5 a.m. Gov. James A. Rhodes, who flew to the scene from his Columbus office, ordered a full investigation by the Ohio Highway patrol and the state fire marshal's office.

Carter said the flames had broken through the roof, which he said was of wood construction, at a point near the front door above an electrical entrance.

Amid the stories of horror—elderly persons trapped in their beds, other crippled or too weak to walk and still others crushed by the collapsing roof — two heroes emerged. They were the Good Samaritans who were driving by on U.S. 250 and went into the building to save lives.

Voting Machine Instruction Due

In a vital service to voters of Ouachita parish, the League of Women Voters will sponsor a demonstration on the proper use of the voting machine Monday and Tuesday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Manhein, president of the league, said the demonstration with a voting machine, like the ones to be used in the December 7 Democratic primary, will be held Monday and Tuesday between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. in the lobby of the courthouse.

"We are urging everyone to come that can, and who wants to know how to operate the machine properly," said Mrs. Manhein.

"If you have any doubt on how to use the machine, you should attend the demonstrations," she said.

Johnson Will Continue Kennedy Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson stressed Saturday that Kennedy administration foreign policy will be continued and asked that all U.S. ambassadors around the world stay on their jobs.

It was understood that the new President wanted Dean Rusk to remain as secretary of state and that this was agreeable to Rusk. High ranking officials under Rusk indicated they, too, intended to stay on.

Rusk was the lead-off Cabinet member on Johnson's appointment list. Afterwards informed sources said the new chief executive made plain his interest in continuity of U. S. foreign policy.

MOUNTING NUMBER

A mounting number of foreign governments were planning to send top representatives to the Kennedy funeral Monday. By late Saturday some 30 nations had informed Washington one or more of their leaders would attend the ceremony.

From a foreign policy standpoint, one of the most important visitors will be French President Charles de Gaulle. The United States and France have been at odds over NATO policy and tactics in dealing with the Reds. A De Gaulle visit in return for Kennedy's 1961 visit to France had been anticipated but had not been carried out.

Johnson expects to spend Tuesday conferring with some of the foreign leaders. Whether De Gaulle will be one of them is not yet known, said White House press secretary Pierre Salinger.

Still, De Gaulle's desire to come to the funeral was appreciated by U.S. authorities as evidence of basic friendship toward the United States. They said his formal visit to this country can come later.

The new British prime minister, Alec Douglas-Home, West Germany's new chancellor Ludwig Erhard and the head of the South Vietnamese military group which overthrew the Diem regime, Gen. Tran Dan Donc, were also in the star-studded list of foreign dignitaries attending the funeral.

From the Communist world, Moscow named First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan as its representative. Other Red countries were sending high-ranking emisaries too.

Johnson's request to U. S. ambassadors to stay on the job was dispatched by the State Department in cables to U. S. embassies around the world as one of the new President's first acts. At Johnson's direction, the department told U. S. mission chiefs the customary letters of resignation submitted when a new president takes office are "not requested or desired."

Some uneasiness has been reported in friendly capitals about the possibility of U.S. policy shifts under the new President. Soviet Premier Khrushchev and other Communist leaders were likewise believed keeping a sharp eye out for any Washington policy changes.

Although Johnson, as vice president, traveled an announced 118,506 statute miles in visiting 33 foreign countries ranging throughout most of the world except South America and the Communist bloc, he has not been regarded as heavily involved in U.S. foreign policy making.

Most of his travels have been goodwill trips, while Kennedy engaged in active direction of foreign policy.

On the record, Johnson's foreign policy utterances have been in line with the Kennedy administration official views.

Temperatures Cool Today

Cold temperatures will continue in the Twin Cities through tonight advises the area weatherman. The generally fair and rather cold weather is expected to last only through today however as Monday's outlook is for partly cloudy skies with temperatures rising a bit.

Saturday's highest mercury reading at FFA Selmar Field was noted at 5° degrees and the low around 7 p. m. Saturday was recorded at 40 degrees. The expected high today will be 56 to 60 and the low tonight will be between 30 and 34. Monday's highest reading is expected to be from 62 to 66.

Winds in the area today will blow from the north at speeds between 5 to 15 m.p.h.

ANOTHER MAN SLAIN

Policeman's Widow Left Without Funds

DALLAS (UPI)—There is another funeral, another grief-stricken family. Mrs. J. D. Tippitt shares with Jacqueline Kennedy the sorrow of widowhood, for her husband was slain too.

One man is charged with their deaths. But there all similarity ends.

President Kennedy was a man of history and wealth.

J. D. Tippitt, 39, made $490 a month as a policeman to support his wife and three children. He had no insurance. The city provides none.

His careworn widow and their children, Allen, 14; Brenda Kay, 10, and Curtiss Glenn, 5, live in a neat suburban area of medium brick homes on the southern edge of Dallas. She is 36.

"Daddy had just come home for lunch at 11:30 (a.m.). He had a sandwich and some milk before he went back to duty," Mrs. Tippitt said.

"Then the next thing I heard was that he was dead."

Mrs. Tippitt said she "certainly knows" how Mrs. Kennedy feels. She said the slain President's brother, Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, called her Friday night.

"He said he was calling on behalf of Mrs. Kennedy," Mrs. Tippitt said. "He expressed their sympathy and sorrow over our loss. I told him to express my concern to Mrs. Kennedy and tell her I certainly know how she feels."

Mrs. Tippitt said she was grateful for the thoughtfulness of the Kennedys in calling their concern.

Mrs. Tippitt's neat, three-bedroom brick home was filled with friends and relatives. Food in abundance was spread over tables and the kitchen sink. Her children, surrounded by friends, were eating lunch quietly.

"I just don't know how we'll get along without him," Mrs. Tippitt said of her slain husband. "He was such a good man — he was so good to the children. . ."

Monday Set As National Mourn Day

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John Fitzgerald Kennedy, mourned by high and low alike, will be given a hero's burial Monday in Arlington National Cemetery following a Pontifical Requiem Mass at noon.

WISHES PRAYERS

The new President also appealed to the American people to assemble in their churches Monday for prayer, and invited all people anywhere who share this nation's grief to join in the day of mourning.

A little later the White House announced that the family of the slain President had decided on interment in the military cemetery in Virginia just across the Potomac River from the nation's capital.

As commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces, John F. Kennedy held abundant right to a grave in the honored military cemetery.

But he was a war hero as well, having recovered from a serious wound as a Navy lieutenant in World War II only to be struck down on a Dallas, Tex., street by a sniper's bullets.

As leaders of the world converged on the capital to pay homage, hundreds of people ranging from the family to the late President's most bitter political foes filed slowly past his bire in the black draped East Room of the White House.

First came Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, widowed by a sniper's bullet at 34, and members of the immediate family. Then President Johnson and his wife, accompanied by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and afterwards high government officials.

Among them were two of the late president's most intense civil rights opponents, Govs. Ross Barnett of Mississippi and George C. Wallace of Alabama. Wallace said the death of the man whose policies he denounced "transcends all politics."

Limousine after limousine moved slowly up the White House driveway bringing such

Many Problems Face New First Lady Of The Land

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even in her sorrow, Jacqueline Kennedy has thought of the problems facing a new First Lady and offered to help.

When Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson saw Mrs. Kennedy at the White House on Saturday morning, Mrs. Kennedy told her she would be glad to help in any way she possibly could.

Mrs. Johnson spent about 30 minutes with Mrs. Kennedy, the White House press office said.

Mrs. Johnson then went back to her home in northwest Washington.

No statements have been made about when the Johnsons will move to the White House.

Mrs. Johnson, dressed in black and looking sorrowful, left her home at 10 a.m. to go to the White House.

She also went with her husband, the President, to St John's Episcopal church across Lafayette Square from the White House.

There, the rector, the Rev. John C. Harper, read excerpts from the Episcopal prayerbook at a special service which Johnson had requested.

About 100 people were at the services, which had not been announced.

From the church, Mrs. Johnson returned home about 1 p.m.

The press office said, "She's just trying to get caught up on some matters which have to be taken care of at the house."

Hundreds and hundreds of telegrams have arrived.

Mrs. Johnson was to stay Saturday night in the big French chateau-like home on a hill in the Spring Valley section.

A detail of 15 policemen kept guard around the extensive grounds, and Secret Service men stood at the closed wrought iron gates to the driveway.

At home with Mrs. Johnson was her younger daughter, Lucy 16.

The older, Lynda, 19, a sophomore at the University of Texas in Austin, will not come here at this time, the press office said. Neither will the young Navy ensign, Bernard Rosenbach, to whom she is engaged.

Friday, she went to the governor's office in Austin to be with the children of Texas Gov. John B. Connally, who was wounded during the assassination of President Kennedy.

The nation's new first lady — Lady Bird Johnson — will carry a strong Alabama heritage into the White House.

Her parents, Thomas Jefferson Taylor and Minnie Lee Pattillo, were reared and married in Alabama before moving to Texas.

Mrs. Johnson moved back here after her mother died when she was only five.

Until she was nearly a woman, she lived with relatives in Montgomery, and Billingsley in Autauga County.

She has close ties here. Many of her relatives live in this area, and she owns 2,900 acres of plantation land in Autauga and Chilton Counties.

Born Claudia Alta Taylor, she is known universally as Lady Bird. The name was tacked on her early in life by a Negro maid.

Her mother's family, the Pattillos of Bilingsley and Selma, were and are wealthy landowners and merchants.

According to published reports, Mrs. Johnson has a fortune of her own amounting to as much as $3 million. She owns and operates a string of radio stations in Texas.

Attractive and vivacious, the new first lady is the mother of two beautiful daughters, Lynda Bird and Lucia Baines. Her husband has been quoted as saying:

"Lady Bird's the smart one in our family. She knows how to make money and she's a real politician."

New President Takes Control

Earlier, Johnson won pledges of unity and support from the nation's top government, business and labor leaders in the troubled weeks ahead.

The assurances were received by telephone and at Johnson's first cabinet meeting at the White House. The half-hour cabinet session came a little more than 24 hours after an assassin's bullet felled his predecessor, John F. Kennedy, in Dallas, Tex.

At the end of the most momentous day in Johnson's 55 years, the White House announced he would address the House and Senate at 12:30 p.m. EST on Wednesday.

Informed sources said Johnson would spend most of Tuesday reviewing policy papers and conferring with some of the Allied chiefs of state who will remain in Washington after Kennedy's funeral on Monday.

The dignitaries will include French President Charles de Gaulle, British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home, West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and others from around the world. The White House said it could not report at this time which leaders would see Johnson.

Johnson opened his mid-afternoon Cabinet session with a minute of silent prayer for Kennedy, whose body lay in a closed casket in the nearby East Room, where a parade of sorrowing dignitaries paid their final respects.

Pledged Cabinet's Support

White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger said Johnson told the Kennedy-appointed Cabinet officers, including Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, that "he needed their help in the time ahead."

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Adlai Stevenson, U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, pledged the Cabinet's support and assured Johnson they were ready to serve as long as he needed them.

Earlier in the day, Salinger said, the President received similar pledges by telephone from AFL-CIO President George Meany, representing organized U.S. labor, and Frederick Kappel, president of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., representing the nation's business leaders.

"The President stressed the need at this time for united effort by every segment of our country," Salinger said. Both Meany and Kappel pledged their support, he added.

As a gray, dreary rain swept Washington, Johnson plunged into a strenuous round of conferences with other top aides, pausing in the gloom of the nation's grief to pay tribute to the memory of "a great and good man," his slain predecessor.

He consoled Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy and her two children at the White House, and greeted two saddened former presidents, Dwight D. Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman. He also took his wife, Lady Bird, to a special prayer service near the White House.

Johnson proclaimed Monday as a national day of mourning for the martyred Kennedy. Federal offices across the land will be closed that day, the day of Kennedy's funeral. He also asked all U.S. ambassadors overseas to remain at their posts and forego the custom of handing in of their resignations to a new president.

Late in the day, his brow furrowed by the strains of the day, Johnson appeared before television cameras and radio microphones and read the text of his proclamation to the nation. He then met Truman at his old office.

Between visitors and hurried conferences, Johnson conferred by telephone with FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover on the progress of the assassination case in Dallas. He also telephoned the widow of Dallas patrolman J. D. Tippitt, who was slain in the post-assassination manhunt, and former Pennsylvania Gov. David Lawrence.

Early in the day, Johnson met in his old vice presidential office near the White House with Rusk and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, and was briefed by top intelligence aides.

Associate Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg and Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman paid separate calls on Johnson.

Johnson viewed Kennedy's flag-draped casket with Eisenhower and other high officials, and then took the former GOP president back to his old office for lunch. He arranged for Eisenhower to get an up-to-date briefing on world trouble spots from McGeorge Bundy, special White House assistant for national security affairs.

In proclaiming a national day of mourning, Johnson said Kennedy "has been taken from us by an act which outrages decent men everywhere."

The new President invited the world to join the American people in mourning on Monday. He asked Americans to assemble in their places of worship, "there to bow down in submission to the will of almight God, and to pay their homage of love and reverence to the memory of a great and good man."

Oppressive reminders of the tragic event that catapulted him into office came to Johnson throughout the day as he coped with the urgent demands of his task as President.

Shortly after 11 a.m., he and Mrs. Johnson joined former President Eisenhower in the black-draped East Room of the White House to view Kennedy's body. Afterwards, the President and First Lady went upstairs to spend 20 minutes with Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy and her two children, Caroline and John Jr.

After a lunch with Eisenhower at Johnson's old office next to the White House, the new President and his wife attended special services at St. John's Episcopal Church, the "Church of the Presidents" across Lafayette Square facing the White House.

The day ,the most momentous in Johnson's 5 years, began at daybreak in his elegant spring valley home in northwest Washington. Johnson apparently rose early, probably after very little sleep, for the house lights were on when dawn broke.

Wearing a black suit and black, yellow - striped tie, the President left home at 8:45 a.m. in a black limousine accompanied by five unidentified men. The car was preceded and followed by five motorcycle policemen and two Secret Service cars during the five mile drive to the White House.

Special Church Services Slated For Twin Cities

ple in Louisiana join the millions of other Christians who mourn the late president's death. I am calling upon Methodist ministers to observe a special period of prayer in the worship services Sunday morning for the late President's family and for the nation at large."

Msgr. John C. Marsh, pastor of St. Matthew's Catholic Church of Monroe, announced that there will be an official memorial service at 11 a.m. Monday, for the late President. It will consist of a solemn requiem mass, followed by an absolution rite. The absolution rite will have representation of a coffin and will follow out the usual ceremonies that would be observed if the remains of the deceased were present.

Father Marsh said that the general public is invited to this sermon, and there will be a commentary on the mass to explain it to persons from other congregations.

Rabbi Martin I. Silverman of Temple B'nai Israel in Monroe announced that in comformity with the request of President Lyndon Johnson for special church observances on Monday, there will be a memorial service for the late President starting at 12 noon on that day in the temple sanctuary.

Rev. W. H. McFadden of the Monroe First Presbyterian Church, cancelled plans to be out of town today in order that he could lead his congregation in special prayers for the nation, the new President and the family of the late President. Services today will be at 8:45 a.m. and 11 a.m. At today's services and also at services at 8:30 a.m. Monday, there will be confessions in addition to special prayers.

The pastor quoted Second Chronicles, 7th chapter, 14th verse, in connection with the observances: "If my people who are called by my name will humble themselves, and pray and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then I will hear from Heaven, and will forgive their sins and heal their land."

At Grace Episcopal Church in Monroe, the Rev. W. Bradley Trimble, rector, announced plans for the 7:30 a.m. holy communion today to be offered as a requiem for the late president. Then at 9:45 a.m. there will be services, prayers and a sermon centered around the tragic death of the President. On Monday at 12:10 noon there also will be special prayers.

Rev. L. A. Brannen, pastor of the Georgia Street Church of God in Monroe announced observances at services today: "There will be a short special service during the course of prayer, and a few words on the late president, and we will ask ask for support and prayers of the people for the new President. The Bible tells us to give honor to those to whom honor is due and to pray for those in authority."

The Apostolic Church on Martin St., West Monroe, held special services last Friday night on national tragedy and prayed for the late President's family. Elder W. T. Hemphill, pastor of the church said that there will be special services at 10 o'clock this morning "for the nation and the grieved loved ones of the family of the deceased President. And there will be prayers for the new President who is taking over his duties that he shall be directed for the good of the nation and the world at large."

Rev. John O. Stewart, pastor of the First Christian Church of Monroe, said special prayers for the family of the late President and the new President will be offered this morning at services.

Some of the other churches announcing special services this morning include College Town Assembly of God Church, Monroe, Rev. E. J. Graves, pastor; White's Ferry Road Church of Christ, West Monroe. Albert Fleetwood, evangelist; First Church of the Nazarene, Monroe, Rev. E. P. Akin, pastor, Saint Thomas Episcopal Church of Monroe, will offer an 11:15 a.m. requiem mass Monday for the late President, it was announced by the Very Rev. R. W. Wilson, vicar.

N.O. Cotton Mart Closes Sessions In Shooting

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Cotton Exchange will be closed until further notice, C. Layton Merritt, president, said Saturday.

He said the decision to close was reached at a board of directors meeting Friday when the exchange cut short its session following the assassination of President Kennedy.

Reds Claim U.S. Rightists Casting Blame

MOSCOW (AP) — Moscow radio charged Saturday night that rightist elements in America are attempting to cast the blame for President Kennedy's assassination on the Communists.

The radio said: "Serious observers do not believe the police version about the responsibility of leftist elements for the assassination and wait for further results of the invstigation."

The radio commentary on the arrest of Lee Harvard Oswald, an avowed Marxist and former defector of the Soviet Union, stated: "The head of the Dallas police said that Oswald allegedly admitted that he was a member of the Communist party, but the more details and announcements are made, the more suspicious and dark this case appears."

It said that Oswald was charged with Kennedy's slaying after 10 hours of interrogation, "but there was no evidence which could prove this accusation."

"The police are trying to involve the Communist party of the United States in the assassination of the President," it said.

For the first time Saturday the Soviet news report mentioned that Oswald "allegedly was in the Soviet Union."

The young ex-Marine defected to the Soviet Union in 1959 but returned home in 1962 with a Russian wife and a baby daughter.

Moscow radio commentator Valentin Zorin countered charges that Kennedy was a victim of a leftist fanatic by saying: "Those who know how the security of President Kennedy is organized, know that it is not possible for a fanatic to commit such an assassination."

Hearing To Set Beckwith Trial Slated Monday

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — A twice-postponed hearing to set a trial date for the accused killer of Negro leader Medgar Evers is scheduled here again in circuit court next week.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Garland Lyell said a mandate from the state supreme court was mailed Saturday, paving the way for Byron de la Beckwith to be transferred from a Rankin County jail to Jackson.

The hearing is set for Monday, but there is a possibility it might be postponed for a third time because of President Kennedy's funeral.

LEE HARVEY Oswald, surrounded by detectives, is led down a corridor of the Dallas police station today for another round of questioning about the assassination yesterday of President Kennedy. He was formerly charged with murder just before midnight last night. (AP Wirephoto)

Background Given On Accused Man

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—He was a loner and kept pretty much to himself all his life. He held radical views but wasn't regarded as a troublemaker. Deep within, his inverted personality became imbued in early youth with an alien ideology, enunciated a century ago by Krl Marx.

This was the portrait that emerged Saturday of Lee Harvey Oswald, 24, accused of the assassination Friday of President John F. Kennedy.

Dallas Police Chief Jesse Curry said Oswald has "readily admitted he is a Communist."

"Apparently he was proud of being a Communist," Curry added. "He didn't try to hide it."

Although formally charged with the murder of Kennedy, Oswald has withstood all efforts by authorities to gain any admission from him of any kind in the assassination.

He has told newsmen, "I did not kill President Kennedy. I did not kill anyone."

Oswald is 5 feet 9, weighs 160 pounds. He has a firm jaw, regular features, straight black hair. He was described as cool and defiant — even arrogant at times — under questioning. But he can smile easily.

What kind of a man was Oswald before his arrest.

He was born in New Orleans, La., Oct. 17, 1939, and said later:

"My father died before I was born."

His widowed mother brought her family to Fort Worth and set about at a variety of jobs to support three sons.

Mrs. Howard Green, wife of a Texas State representative, taught Oswald in the sixth grade of Forth Worth's Ridgely Elementary school. His grades were below average and her description of him from her memory was "in introvert, bookish, a loner."

A Fort Worth policeman asking that his name not be used, said he knew Oswald from fifth grade until his entry into Arlington Heights High School in Fort Worth.

The former classmate recalled, "He was always opposed to any kind of discipline. He seemed to hold it against people up there—any authority. He never was like any other kid. He didn't associate hardly at all, but he wasn't a trouble maker. He talked a good bit in high school about how things should be."

In an altercation with the coach of the school's B football team, the policeman recalled Oswald shouting:

"It's supposed to be a free country, a man's supposed to be able to do what he wants."

However vocally Oswald expressed his belief in freedom, by his own admission his conversion to communism already was well along.

He said he became interested in Marxism at the age of 15, when a Communist pamphlet fell into his hands. Later, he discovered Marx's "Das Kapital," the bible of communism.

At the age of 17, Oswald withdrew from school 23 days after starting in high school. He promptly joined the Marines.

His military career was not a success. Twice he faced courts-martial for infractions of regulations. His occupation specialty was electronics operator. He served overseas in Japan but never rose above the rank of private first class.

A man who served with him, Allen D. Gray, Buffalo, N. Y., said, "He was a lonely, introverted, aloof boy. He was bitter about the tough time his mother had during the depression."

Oswald's Marine career ended Sept. 11, 1959 when he was released from active duty to aid in the support of his mother. He was put in the inactive reserve but later received an undesirable discharged.

A month later, Oswald was in Moscow. On Oct. 30, 1959, he appeared at the American Embassy where he announced his decision to renounce his American citizenship.

He told officials, "I am a Marxist."

Later, Oswald was quoted in an interview as saying, "Capitalism has passed its peak. I would like to spend the rest of my life here."

State Department officials said that their records show that on Nov. 2, 1959, in Moscow, Oswald turned in his American passport and in an affidavit declared, "I affirm that my allegiance is to the Soviet Socialistic Republic."

Oswald married a Russian girl, Marina Nicholaevna, an attractive, petite blonde who worked in a hospital in Minsk. She was pregnant with their first child when in January, 1962, Oswald wrote to Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., as disenchantment set in.

The defector pleaded:

"Since July 20, 1960, I have unsuccessfully applied for a Soviet exit visa to leave this country. The Soviets refused to permit me and my Soviet wife to leave the Soviet Union. I am a citizen of the United States of America and I beseech you, Sen. Tower, to rise (sic) a question of holding by the Soviet Union of a citizen of the United States against his will and expressed desire."

Tower's office referred the letter to the State Department and in February, 1962, it was decided after a review that Oswald never had actually achieved Soviet citizenship. Therefore he was given a passport and provided with the customary loan available to Americans stranded aboard — in this case $435. It is not clear whether the money ever was repaid.

Back in this country, Oswald turned up in his native New Orleans where last June 25 he reportedly applied for a passport to return to Europe and the Soviet Union.

Meanwhile, he became involved in a dispute with an anti-Castro Cuban, Carlos Bringuier, who said:

"He offered himself as a former Marine to train Cubans for an invasion. I was suspicious of him from the start. Frankly, I thought he might be an agent from the FBI or the CIA trying to find out what we might be up to.

"Then a few days later, I encountered him on Canal Street distributing 'Viva Castro' literature. We took all his propaganda away from him. Then the police came and arrested the lot of u."

Oswald appeared on a radio program in New Orleans in which he described himself as a Marxist but not a Communist. However, Dallas Police Chief Curry said:

"Actually, Oswald has never drawn any distinction between the two."

The House Committee on Un-American Activities lists Owwald in its records as secretary of the New Orleans chapter of a group called "Fair Play for Cuba."

In Buffalo, N.Y., however V. T. Lee, national director of the Fair Play for Cuba organization said:

"We have never issued a charter in that area. I don't know if Oswald is a member. He could be. There is no one, however, named Oswald who is an official of the committee anywere in the United States."

On Sept. 26, President Kennedy's plans for a visit to Dallas were announced. A few days later, Oswald got a job at the Texas school book depository as a temporary warehouse worker.

The man who hired him R. S. Truly, said, "He was a pretty quiet individual. His work was fine and I had no reason to believe—no idea the man had ever been in Russia. He was very quiet with nice manners and a nice appearance."

On Oct. 14, with just a satchel and a few clothes on coathangers in his possession, Oswald rented an $8-a-week room from Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Johnson on Dallas' North Beckley Street.

It was a barren 5 by 12 foot room, devoid of pictures, furnished with a small stand, an ancient dresser and a small clothesholder. The walls were painted baby blue. White curtains covered the windows. Two throw rugs were on the floor.

KENNON -- A NATIONAL NEED

With the whole of the United States engulfed in a wave of Socialism (a first cousin of Communism) and Government based on ideology and all the "isms," Louisiana and the U. S. A. need men dedicated to the true American way of life and Government based on the U. S. Constitution.

In the Governor's race in Louisiana is that kind of man, former Governor Robert F. Kennon. For the past 10 or 12 years he has advocated a return to Government based on the Constitution and not on ideologies and "isms." He did not become an overnight convert after entering the race for Governor; it is not a fly-by-night decision with him. He has lived it and preached it for the past decade or more.

GOVERNMENT STUNNED

President Begins Picking Up Pieces

WASHINGTON (AP)—As rain dripped on a grief-stricken capital, President Johnson began Saturday to set back in motion a government stunned to a standstill by the tragic slaying of John F. Kennedy.

For the solemn-faced Johnson it was a day of split-second attention to affairs of state, among them the designation of Monday as a national day of mourning for his fallen chief. The 36th President found time, too, to call on Mrs. Kennedy and to attend with Mrs. Johnson a brief special service at St. John's Episcopal church.

There, around a little table in front of the desk he has been using since he moved in as vice president in January 1961, Johnson was brought up to date on international problems by Secretary of State Dean Rusk and on military matters by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Congressional leaders, called in on short notice, went over the legislative situation.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower called for a private conference with Johnson and the two chatted for about 15 minutes.

An aura of grief pervaded the place. The participants were grim and close-mouthed as they arrived and departed.

An early morning drizzle had temporarily ended—it quickened later in the day to a steady downpour — when the wrought iron gates of the Johnson estate in northwest Washington swung open at 8:45 a.m. Johnson's black limousine rolled through, the new President seated in a corner of a back seat, looking as if he had not rested much.

Ten minutes later he was at the White House for his first official business in the oval room of presidents—a conference with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the slain President. The subject was not disclosed.

Johnson went then to the map-bedecked "situation room," where the nation's security affairs are screened, for a briefing by Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency.

A few minutes later, Johnson crossed the narrow street to the west of the executive mansion and launched the series of meetings with Rusk, McNamara and congressional leaders.

Then, accompanied by the new First Lady, Lady Bird Johnson, the President made an umbrella-protected dash through a pouring rain back to the White House to greet Eisenhower. Together the two men visited the East Room where the late President lay in repose.

Viet Cong Steps Up Pace

TEN HIEP, South Viet Nam (AP)—The pace of Communist guerrilla attacks has risen swiftly on this battlefield of canals and rice paddy fields only 40 miles north of Saigon.

One after another, eight government outposts were hit Thursday. The Viet Cong guerrillas captured large numbers of U. S. - supplied weapons, killed defenders and drove many others into the paddy fields.

The Viet Cong moved almost to the gates of Mytho, headquarters of the Vietnamese 7th Division. This forced the 7th to strike out from the normally quiet town and disperse the guerrillas, "to give us some elbow room," as a U. S. military adviser put it.

So hot is the action that U. S. armed helicopters have had to double as flying ambulances to bring out the wounded. Helicopters are averaging eight flying hours a day, far more than ever before.

The Viet Cong's object appears to be to discredit the military regime that toppled President Ngo Dinh Diem. The tempo of guerrilla attacks has been rising ever since he was overthrown Nov. 1.

An American spokesman announced in Saigon Saturday that South Vietnamese government forces lost 641 men killed, wounded or captured in the week just closed. He put losses of the Communist guerrillas in the same period at 639.

5 Killed After Attending Funeral

NATCHEZ, Miss. (Special) — Five Negroes returning from a funeral were killed instantly Saturday afternoon when their car slammed into an Illinois Central freight train at a crossing about nine miles north of here on U.S. Hwy. 65.

They were identified as Richard Tillery, 58, driver, Natchez; Robert Curtis, 64, and his wife, Beulah, 63, both of Chicago, Ill. Robert Johnson, 42, Natchez; and Sadie Johnson, 36, Natchez.

According to Adams County sheriff William T. Ferrell the victims were returning from the funeral of Beulah Curtis' mother who had died in Chicago and was brought to Stampley, Miss., for burial.

The accident, which occurred shortly after 3 p.m. at the Selma crossing, strewed wreckage of the automobile along the tracks, according to reports. Adams County coroner Ned Smith said the bodies were badly mangled. He said that an inquest would be scheduled.

The death car was a limousine of Williams and Wiliams Funeral Service of Natchez and the driver was an employe of the funeral home.

Columbus Again Dixie Youth Site

COLUMBUS, Miss. (AP) — The national board of directors of the dixie youth baseball series voted Saturday to conduct the annual playoffs here for the third time.

Myrtle Grove, Fla., also sought the tournament.

Columbus was host in 1957 and 1958.

Eight southeastern states send teams to the series. They are Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Georgia, Virginia, South Carolina and Florida.

Grain Futures Still In Decline

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market carried its general decline through another week on the Board of Trade at an accelerated pace with most commodities showing their broadest losses for any comparable period in several months.

Setbacks ran to 16 cents a bushel in soybeans to more than 10 in wheat and more than 9 in rye. Corn was relatively steady at declines of less than two cents.

New factors in the market were rather scarce and in the absence of any bullish developments of consequence, speculators were inclined to liquidate or trade from the short side.

Police Pile Up More Evidence

declined to say what the other evidence was or describe Oswald's reactions when he saw it.

Curry said ballistics tests on the rifle have been "very encouraging."

Wade said Oswald will be tried first--probably in mid-January—in the death of the President.

"If we get the death penalty as expected, there will be no need to try him in the other case," said Wade. He has prosecuted 24 murder cases and obtained the death penalty 23 times. He got a life verdict the other time.

Officers said Oswald, 24, discharged from the Marines as undesirable is proud of being a Communist. He has denied killing anyone.

President Kennedy was killed from ambush Friday by a gunman who snapped off a rapid volley of shots that also wounded Gov. John Connally of Texas.

The Defense Department announced in Washington that Oswald once wrote to Connally from Russia, pleading that his undesireable discharge be reversed.

This raised a new question—whether the real target was Kennedy or Connally. The two were riding with their wives in the presidential car when three shots ripped from a high-powered rifle on the sixth floor of a building overlooking the motorcade as it left downtown Dallas.

Chief of Police Jesse Curry said: "I think his actual target was the President. I say this because he hit the President twice from about a 75-yard distance on a slant, and apartly he was an expert marksman."

One shot hit Kennedy in the head, one in the neck. Another slug tore through Connally's back, smashing ribs. He was reported in satisfactory condition Saturday.

Oswald sharply denied both shootings. "I didn't kill the President. I didn't kill anybody" he told reporters.

Oswald was arrested within an hour after the President died. Police dragged him screaming and struggling from a movie theater in a shopping district where they had gone in pursuit of a man who had gunned down a Dallas policman a few minutes earlier.

Dist. Atty. Henry Wade charged Oswald with murder in the deaths of both Kennedy and policeman J. D. Tippit.

Oswald returned about a year ago from a three-year stay in Russia, where he married a Russian woman.

Four years ago he swore allegiance to the Soviet Union and tried to renounce his U.S. citizenship.

The State Department later held he was still a citizen and could return to America. Oswald says he is now a member of the Fair Play for Cuba Committee.

Curry said Oswald "readily admitted he is a Communist" and "apparently is proud of it."

The assassination weapon was found, partly hidden behind books and amid scraps of fried chicken, on the sixth floor. The police homicide bureau said it was a 6.5mm bolt action rifle, apparently of Italian make.

The Monroe police department was boasting of a much needed new employee this week.

Chief James C. Kelly Jr. said the department has long needed another secretary. Mrs. Eloyce Tannehill filled that need when she came to work this week at the department. She is the wife of John Tannehill, director of the Westminster Recreation Center, and the couple resides on Grammont Street on the east side of town. Judging from Mrs. Tannehill's winsome smile, she should be a credit to the department.

Monday Set As National Mourn Day

other dignitaries as Gov. and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California and former President Harry Truman.

Truman, who upon his arrival in the capital denounced the "good for nothing" Kennedy assassin, talked with Mrs. Kennedy for 15 minutes in the White House living quarters.

Despite a White House request that Americans express their condolences with gifts to charity, baskets of flowers kept arriving at the executive mansion until a spare room had to be set aside for them.

In issuing his proclamation of mourning, President Johnson invited "the people of the world who share our grief to join us in this day of mourning and rededication."

He earnestly urged the American people to assemble in the nation's churches, "there to bow down in submission to the will of Almighty God, and to pay their homage of love and reverence to the memory of a great and good man."

All federal offices will be closed. Even before issuance of the proclamation business establishments across the nation signalled their intent to be darkened during the day.

The casket with the late president's body was closed as it lay in the somber East Room of the White House.

At 10:30 a.m., with only the family and close friends present a Mass was said in the East Room by the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, former president of the University of Notre Dame and a long-time friend of the Kennedys.

The Mass was attended by Mrs. Kennedy and her children, Caroline and John, who were told Friday night that an assassin's bullets had snuffed out the life of their father.

Sunday the body will be taken to the rotunda of the Capitol where it will lie in state for some 21 hours for public viewing. Thousands were expected to file past. But some chose not to wait to pay respects.

In Palm Beach, Fla., a small blond boy, followed by two little girls plucked two hibiscus blossoms from bushes surrounding the resort home of the slain President's father, Joseph P. Kennedy, and placed them on the front steps of the house.

In Berlin, 80,000 West Germans, many weeping, marched in a torchlight parade during the early morning hours. Mayor Willy Brandt, meeting them at city hall, asked Berliners to place lighted candles in their windows during the night.

In Moscow, Nikita Khrushchev expressed the "indignation of the Soviet people against the culprits of this base crime" and dispatched his deputy, Anastas Mikoyan, for Monday's Pontificial High Requiem Mass that will be the official state funeral.

At those solemn ceremonies, France will be represented by President Charles de Gaulle, Britain by Prince Philip and Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas Home, and West Germany by Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

At 1 p.m., EST, Sunday, to the muffled cadence of a corps of drummers, the body in its heavy mahogany casket will be borne from the White House to the Capitol on a caisson drawn by seven horses.

There it will lie in state in the Capitol rotunda until 11 a.m., EST, Monday. It will then be moved to St. Matthew's Cathedral several miles away for the Pontifical Requiem Mass that will be celebrated by Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston.

In keeping with the tone of a dismal day in history, rain fell almost unceasingly on the people who stood for hours on the outside, looking on at the somber comings and goings.

BENNETT'S REXALL DRUG STORE
FRED E. BENNETT, Owner
223 Trenton Street
WEST MONROE, LOUISIANA

Dear Friend and Customer:

Through the years it has been my privilege to serve you with your drug needs. It has always been my desire and ambition to serve this area with the best pharmaceutical service available anywhere.

This has been possible through the past 34 years because of the friendship and continued patronage of fine folks like you. I am using this means of expressing my sincere appreciation for your patronage through the years.

Now, I have arrived at the time in life where I would like to turn my business over to another generation, in order that I may take time to enjoy all those things one misses in a rather confining profession.

I would like you to know more about these young men who are assuming my business. First, let me say that you will notice no difference in the operation, policies, or quality of service to which you are accustomed.

Both of these men have been in my employ for several years in the capacity of managing pharmacists and have done an excellent job for me. Their combined experience represents a total of 20 years in the retail drug business. I would like to recommend them as your pharmacists.

I assure you that Randolph Cage and Roland Nix earnestly solicit your business and friendship and they, too, have the same desire and ambition that has been mine these last 34 years—to provide you and yours with the best pharmaceutical service available anywhere.

Yours sincerely,

F. E. Bennett

Boys Club Hours Are Announced

Lloyd Williams, executive director of the Boys Club, located at 128 N. Violent St., in West Monroe, reported Saturday that club hours will be from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. this week, with the exception of Thanksgiving day.

At 1 p.m. Monday wood-working is scheduled under the direction of Todd Moore; 4 p.m. Tuesday, Boys Club Choir, Gene Smith, director; 5:15 p.m. Tuesday, plaster mould class, Mrs. Jeanne Carter, instructor; 4 p.m. Wednesday, plaster mould class, Barry White, assistant director.

He said there would be a basketball session for boys of all ages in the gym and that there are still openings for senior teams.

A new trampoline will also be available each day. It was donated by Harold Roberts. Doug Crew and Baughn McDuffey made the legs for it.

Brazil's Bankruptcy Echoes In Nation

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—President Joao Goulart's statement that the nation is headed for bankruptcy is still echoing in the nation's press. The cruzeiro fell. Food lines lengthened.

Goulart's pronouncement, published in a nationally circulated weekly, Manchette, was described as a "prophecy of chaos" by the independent Jornal do Brasil of Rio de Janeiro.

The cruzeiro, whiplashed by runaway inflation, dropped 60 points, to 1,120 to the dollar. Money changers blamed the president's words of gloom.

Prices took another hike upward as lines lengthened here and elsewhere for sugar, butter, meat and milk. The government was reported studying establishment of a sliding wage scale as a possible means of enabling workers to keep abreast of prices. Some newspapers said this merely would add fuel to the inflation fire.

In the nation's capital, Brasilia, there were unconfirmed reports that Finance Minister Carlos Carvalho Pinto, irked because he had no advance information of Goulart's statement, had submitted his resignation.

Goulart's statement said:

"I have not the slightest doubt that the dizzying inflationary process to which we are now submitted will fatally drag the country to bankruptcy with all the sinister consequences of a social disaster of catastrophic proportions."

This brought sharp criticism from much of the nation's press. It also brought retorts from Goulart's political opponents, notably Gov. Carlos Lacerda of Guanabara State—Rio de Janeiro—a leading candidate for the presidency in 1965. Goulart, under Brazil's constitution, cannot succeed himself.

Lacerda, one of Brazil's fiercest opponents of communism, was quoted as saying Goulart "has one month in which to deliver his coup. If he delays beyond that he will no longer have the conditions in which to do it."

Lacerda did not elucidate but earlier this year Lacerda expressed belief Goulart's government would fall before the end of the year.

In his statement, Goulart blamed Congress for failure to establish needed reforms, and added that "the reforms would already have been made" if he had held all administrative power.

"These are strange words," said Rio's independent Diario de Noticias. "This is very serious. Even as a mere hypothesis it constitutes an insinuation which is, to say the least, not convenient."

An official statistical survey estimated that the cost of living in Brazil would show an increase of 60 per cent for the year of 1963 by the end of December.

HOME OFFERINGS

LE HAVRE, France (AP)—A parish priest near Le Havre found a new box for money offerings on the wall of his church with a note attached saying, "Leave here your offerings for candles."

The puzzled priest found the box had been set up by a 14-year-old girl who told police she planned to take home the returns.

Northwestern Will Be Sent Mobile Lab

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — A mobile radioisotope laboratory from the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies will be sent to Northwestern State College in April for a two-week lecture and laboratory course to be offered at the College, it was announced by Dr. Alan H. Crosby, professor and head of the department of physical science.

Arrangements are being handled at Northwestern by Dr. James L. Rhoades, assistant professor of chemistry.

President John S. Kyser was advised Friday that the mobile radioisotope laboratory would be sent to the NSC campus in a letter received from Dr. L. K. Akers, director of the program, which is a part of the Institute's Special Training Division.

Dr. Crosby indicated that ninety-minute lecture periods and two - hour laboratory sessions would be scheduled daily for ten days with faculty members and some advanced students in attendance. The traveling laboratory can accommodate six students in laboratory sessions and two such periods will be arranged for a maximum of 12 students. All materials are furnished by the Institute.

Only qualified faculty and students, those with necessary academic prerequisites, will be eligible for the special course.

President Kyser and Dr. Crosby expressed their extreme satisfaction in the selection of Northwestern as a site for the special course by representatives of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies.

Johnson Plans Congress Talk For Next Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson plans to address a joint session of Congress next week, a top administration leader said Saturday.

The only thing uncertain, he said, is whether the new chief executive will make his first congressional appearance Wednesday or Friday.

"Probably Wednesday," the informant said.

He said the President probably wil make a plea for national unity in the present period of stress caused by the assassination of President Kennedy.

THOUGH DEADLINE IS PASSED

Workers Continue Appeal In United Givers Drive

Officials of the United Givers Fund were still hard at work this past week, even though the final day of the campaign had officially been reached.

The final report meeting on Wednesday showed that $234,737, or 90 per cent of the goal had been raised. The amount raised now stands at $236,034, 90.6 per cent of the goal.

The amount raised was termed a "disappointment" by campaign chairman Jack S. Campbell this past week. "Especially in view of the fact that the goal is reachable," Campbell said.

"Even though the campaign deadline has been passed, we haven't closed operations," Campbell said. "At this time last year, the drive had apparently stalled at 88 per cent, but through the continued efforts of many hard-working and dedicated volunteers, the goal was finally reached. We now find ourselves in a similar position.

"Less that $25,000 remains to be raised. We are confident that the community will respond to this challenge and once again put this worthwhile project over the top."

Leaders appealed to all workers with cards outstanding to complete their calls as rapidly as possible.

"Although several hundred volunteer UGF workers have been calling on firms and individuals for the past eight weeks it has been physically impossible to see everyone," Campbell said.

"If you are one of those we've missed for one reason or another we ask you to please accept this appeal as a solicitation of your gift and mail it to United Givers Fund headquarters, 200 S. Grand St., today," Campbell said. "Your gift today will help us to reach our goal tomorrow so that the 13 health, welfare and character building UGF agencies can continue to administer to the basic human needs of our community. Or, if you have already made a contribution and wish to make an additional gift that, too, will be welcome. Every possible dollar is needed now to reach our goal.

"As we approach the Thanksgiving holiday," Campbell said, "we all give thanks for our many blessings. We also give thanks that we are able to give to others and to share our blessings. We are hoping that all who have not yet given will do so now and help the community have a truly happy Thanksgiving. Many thousands of our neighbors are counting on us to do this."

Telephone Act Wins Top Spot In 'Redskins'

By JOHN CALE
STAFF REVIEWER

A Greek-letter sorority group, Alpha Omicron Pi, won the top spot in Northeast State's annual "Redskins" production Friday with their rendition of the telephone scene from "Bye Bye Birdie."

The song and dance routine was the last number on the two-night review, which featured some 38 acts all told. William C. (Bill) Wells was director of the production and Buddy Smith was master of ceremonies.

Other final winners were Jim Robinson, who took second place with his piano stylings. His off-key rendition of "Tammy," which seemed to make the best use of purposely injected bloopers brought laughter and applause from the student audience.

And Stefan Anderson, country guitarist and singer from Shreveport and Winn Parish took third place in the finals.

The folk music brigade appeared in force for the twin bill version of "Redskins." No fewer than six participants made use of the folk song, which someone said was so named because "lots of folks were singin' 'em."

As a whole, the student show managed to hold together fairly well, considering its placement between nine-weeks tests and Thanksgiving. Some may have missed the carefully timed barrages from last years' jazz ensemble, but Kenn McKenzie's smaller aggregation filled the bill suitably this year.

We didn't think anything came up to last year's musical stunt based on "West Side Story," but you don't find students' schedules which let things like that happen every year. All told "Redskins, 1964," was an enjoyable student show.

Tear Gas Bomb Foils Attempt At Safe Robbery

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — An unsuccessful attempt was made Friday night to open a safe at the L. E. Posey Grocery here.

The attempt to open the safe was evidently abandoned when a tear gas bomb, attached to the dial inside the safe, went off.

A cash register was broken into and approximately $15 in small change taken.

The burglary was discovered by L. E. Posey, owner, at 5 a.m. Saturday.

The burglars entered through the floor of the meat-icebox section of the store and left by the door in that room. A hole was made from underneath the store which stands about six feet off the ground at this point.

Holes were bored in the floor and a saw used to complete the entrance. The left lower corner of the door was mutilated and the dial removed. The tear gas bomb evidently went off when a punch was used. A fan from the rear of the store was set up to blow on the safe while the burglars worked on it.

The fan was still going when officers were called. Pliers and a butcher knife, also belonging to the store, were found near the safe along with other tools which were abandoned. Tools left behind included a brace and bit, pick hammer, punch, a long bolt and a claw hammer.

During their stay in the store, the burglars drank from two one-quart containers of milk and left them sitting on the floor. Four other full cartons were nearby, but untouched.

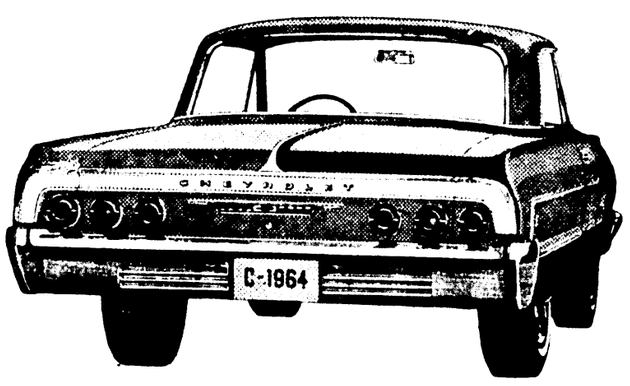
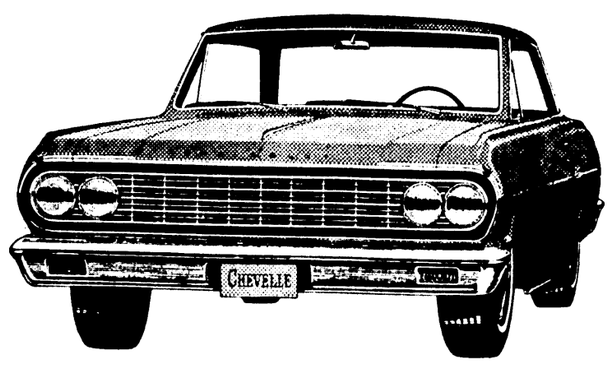
MORE KINDS OF CHEVROLETS THAN EVER BEFORE!

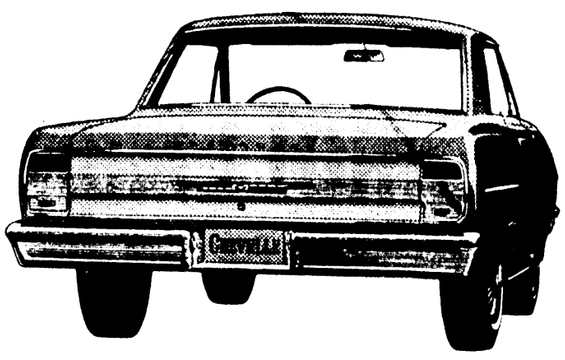
CHEVROLET

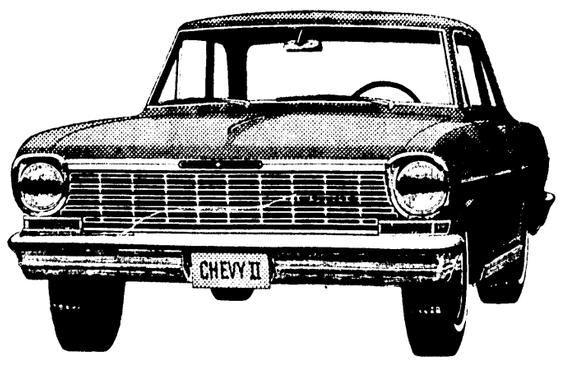
JET-SMOOTH LUXURY CHEVROLET
15 models. Four series. One brand-new series—the Impala Super Sports. All in all, more Chevrolet luxury than ever before. Even the Biscaynes are now fully carpeted. Along with luxury, there's power. Seven different engines' worth—from 140 hp to 425 hp (optional at extra cost). It's a matter of knowing if you'd like your luxury on the gentle side or on the other side.
Model shown—Impala Sport Coupe



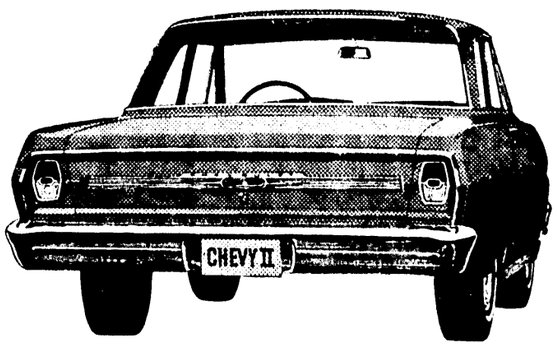


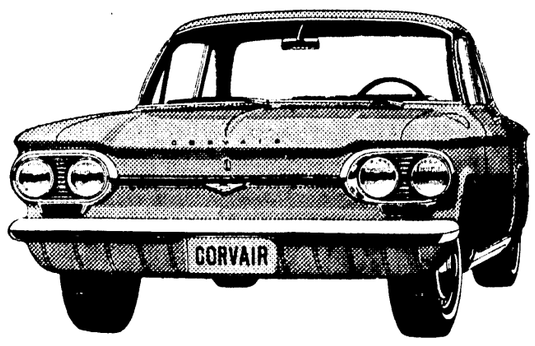
TOTALLY NEW CHEVELLE! 11 models in three series. An entirely new line of cars sized about a foot shorter than most big cars, so you get the handling ease of most smaller cars. But don't let that sell you short! Chevelle gives you generous passenger and luggage room. Engine choice is large, too. Be one of the first to drive one of the very first Chevelles.
Model shown—Malibu Sport Coupe



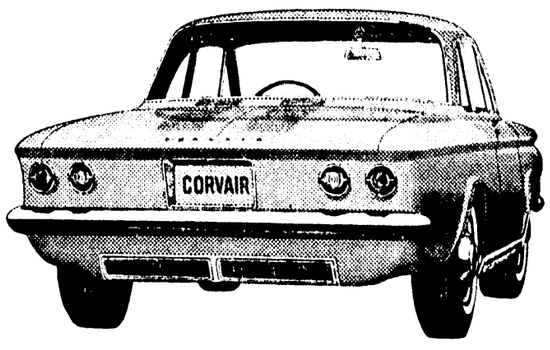


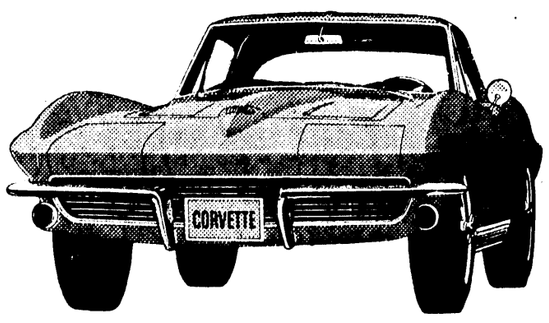
NEW CHEVY II Six models. Two series—Nova and Chevy II 100. Both now offer an extra-cost 195-hp V8 or a 155-hp six, to give you more Chevy II power than ever before. Match this added power with Chevy II thrift, smartly styled Body by Fisher, bigger self-adjusting brakes, Delcotron generator, and air-washed rocker panels—and you can see why Chevy II will be harder than ever to keep up with this year.
Model shown—Nova 2-Door Sedan





NEW CORVAIR Seven models in four series. Plus two Greenbriers. A new standard 95-hp engine (nearly 19% livelier). A 110-hp engine available at extra cost on all Corvairs and a 150-hp Turbocharged engine under the deck lid of the Monza Spyder. Styling? It's never been cleaner. Interior? Never been brighter. Luxury features at no extra cost? Lots of them. Fun to drive? More so than ever before.
Model shown—Monza Club Coupe





NEW CORVETTE Two models—the Sport Coupe with a new one-piece rear window plus improved interior ventilation and the dashing Sting Ray Convertible. Both boast new smoother rides and improved sound insulation. Both go with your choice of four big V8's, including a new extra-cost 375-hp engine with Fuel Injection. Both more exciting than ever before (as is the case with all the Chevrolets for '64).
Model shown—Sport Coupe

National Week On Alcoholism To Be Observed

Alcoholism Information Week, an educational and informational campaign emphasizing that alcoholism is a treatable disease, will be observed in Monroe and West Monroe December 1-7, it was announced Saturday by George Phillips, president, Twin Cities Council on Alcoholism.

The campaign in Monroe and West Monroe is part of a nationwide observance being sponsored by the National Council on Alcoholism, the national voluntary health agency in the field of alcoholism.

"Alcoholism is one of America's four major health problems, along with mental illness, cancer and heart disease," Phillips said. "It is estimated that there are 5,000,000 alcoholics in the country. However, there is help for the person suffering from the disease of alcoholism. During Alcoholism Information Week we hope to call this fact to the public's attention, thanks to the wonderful cooperation we are receiving from newspapers, TV, radio and other informational media."

The Twin Cities Council on Alcoholism will open and maintain an Alcoholism Information Center shortly after the first of the coming year.

Johnson Likely To Push Defense Policy Forward

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration's basic defense policies probably will march forward under President Johnson without breaking stride.

But one major policy—involving the U.S. military role in space—may change direction.

Johnson has indicated he favors an increase in the military emphasis in space research which, under the late President Kennedy, took second place to civilian space exploration. The Pentagon position has been that space weapons could do little that presently available systems can't do—and present weapons can do it far more cheaply.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara probably will stay in the Johnson Cabinet. Johnson has spoken admiringly of McNamara, calling him the strongest man in the Kennedy Cabinet.

MRS. MARINA OSWALD, left, wife of Lee Harvey Oswald, dabs at her mouth with a handkerchief after talking to him in a Dallas police station for what was believed to be the first time since his arrest. She and Oswald's mother, Mrs. Marguerite Oswald, right, talked to the man charged with assassinating President Kennedy through bullet proof glass with the aid of telephones. (AP Wirephoto)

World Weeps As News Sinks Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was beginning to sink in. John Fitzgerald Kennedy was gone. Around the world, many wept, some fumed and others became apprehensive.

Nations broke their own precedents to mourn him; cold war enemies praised him; people all over the earth—kings and the presidents; street peddlers and fishermen—expressing their sorrow.

In Britain, Queen Elizabeth II commanded her court to go into a week's mourning, and every minute from 11 a. m. until noon the great tenor bell in Westminster Abbey tolled. This token of mourning is usually reserved only for dead British royalty.

President Charles de Gaulle of France ordered the flag of France flown at half staff immediately. By tradition, the tricolor flies at half staff only on the day of the funeral of a chief of state.

In Moscow, Soviet Premier Khrushchev broke off a tour to pay his personal respects at the U. S. Embassy and send messages to President Johnson and Mrs. Kennedy. He said he and the Soviet nation were deeply grieved. Crowds came to the embassy to sign a book of condolences — something unprecedented for Moscow in the depths of the cold war.

Leaders of the world headed for Washington and the funeral of the slain Western leader.

Queen Elizabeth's husband, Prince Philip, and Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas - Home will represent Britain; De Gaulle himself will come from France.

King Baudouin will come from Belgium; Chancellor Ludwig Erhard from West Germany; Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson from Canada; President Eamon de Valera from Ireland; U. N. Secretary - General U Thant, heading an eight - man delegation; and Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan from the Soviet Union.

There were just a few of the leaders and representatives of leaders who have announced they will attend the funeral.

At Vatican City, Pope Paul VI dedicated his morning Mass to the dead President, the first Roman Catholic to become chief executive of the United States.

The reaction was as heartfelt among the nonelect people of the world as it was among the elect.

In Tokyo Bay, for instance, the tiny boats of Japanese fishermen pulled up alongside U.S. Navy warships with little flags flying at half mast in tribute.

Big and little alike condemned Kennedy's assassination in Dallas, Tex., on Friday and began to wonder what course the affairs of the world will take because of it.

Johnson Wishes Chiefs To Stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has asked all chiefs of U.S. foreign missions to stay on the job and not submit the usual resignations.

The State Department announced this Saturday, increasing the belief Johnson is eager to emphasize a continuation of the foreign policies of President Kennedy, who was assassinated Friday.

Johnson Likely To Push Defense Policy Forward

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration's basic defense policies probably will march forward under President Johnson without breaking stride.

But one major policy—involving the U.S. military role in space—may change direction.

Johnson has indicated he favors an increase in the military emphasis in space research which, under the late President Kennedy, took second place to civilian space exploration. The Pentagon position has been that space weapons could do little that presently available systems can't do—and present weapons can do it far more cheaply.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara probably will stay in the Johnson Cabinet. Johnson has spoken admiringly of McNamara, calling him the strongest man in the Kennedy Cabinet.

MRS. MARINA OSWALD, left, wife of Lee Harvey Oswald, dabs at her mouth with a handkerchief after talking to him in a Dallas police station for what was believed to be the first time since his arrest. She and Oswald's mother, Mrs. Marguerite Oswald, right, talked to the man charged with assassinating President Kennedy through bullet proof glass with the aid of telephones. (AP Wirephoto)

World Weeps As News Sinks Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was beginning to sink in. John Fitzgerald Kennedy was gone. Around the world, many wept, some fumed and others became apprehensive.

Nations broke their own precedents to mourn him; cold war enemies praised him; people all over the earth—kings and the presidents; street peddlers and fishermen—expressing their sorrow.

In Britain, Queen Elizabeth II commanded her court to go into a week's mourning, and every minute from 11 a. m. until noon the great tenor bell in Westminster Abbey tolled. This token of mourning is usually reserved only for dead British royalty.

President Charles de Gaulle of France ordered the flag of France flown at half staff immediately. By tradition, the tricolor flies at half staff only on the day of the funeral of a chief of state.

In Moscow, Soviet Premier Khrushchev broke off a tour to pay his personal respects at the U. S. Embassy and send messages to President Johnson and Mrs. Kennedy. He said he and the Soviet nation were deeply grieved. Crowds came to the embassy to sign a book of condolences — something unprecedented for Moscow in the depths of the cold war.

Leaders of the world headed for Washington and the funeral of the slain Western leader.

Queen Elizabeth's husband, Prince Philip, and Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas - Home will represent Britain; De Gaulle himself will come from France.

King Baudouin will come from Belgium; Chancellor Ludwig Erhard from West Germany; Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson from Canada; President Eamon de Valera from Ireland; U. N. Secretary - General U Thant, heading an eight - man delegation; and Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan from the Soviet Union.

There were just a few of the leaders and representatives of leaders who have announced they will attend the funeral.

At Vatican City, Pope Paul VI dedicated his morning Mass to the dead President, the first Roman Catholic to become chief executive of the United States.

The reaction was as heartfelt among the nonelect people of the world as it was among the elect.

In Tokyo Bay, for instance, the tiny boats of Japanese fishermen pulled up alongside U.S. Navy warships with little flags flying at half mast in tribute.

Big and little alike condemned Kennedy's assassination in Dallas, Tex., on Friday and began to wonder what course the affairs of the world will take because of it.

Johnson Wishes Chiefs To Stay

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has asked all chiefs of U.S. foreign missions to stay on the job and not submit the usual resignations.

The State Department announced this Saturday, increasing the belief Johnson is eager to emphasize a continuation of the foreign policies of President Kennedy, who was assassinated Friday.

Louisiana in Miniature

The history and resources of Louisiana, including those of the northeast area, are the subjects of numerous skilled portrayals in miniature at the Louisiana Exhibit Museum in Shreveport. Over the years, visitors from many parts of the world have viewed these works.

By EZRA ADAMS

Louisiana in miniature — past and present — is presented in many dioramic scenes which range from early area culture, to modern industry, natural resources, art works, and other features, at the state-operated Louisiana Exhibit Museum in Shreveport.

One of the ancient portrayals is contained in the newest diorama, showing a realistic Indian Village as it is believed to have existed at Poverty Point archaeological site in West Carroll Parish in the era before the birth of Christ.

Housed in a building constructed in 1938, the museum has attracted visitors from around the nation, and from distant points of the world.

Described as one of the largest of its kind, the museum has what are reported to be some of the finest detailed dioramas in existence, depicting Louisiana's numerous natural resources, industries, works of art, and historical artifacts.

Monroe, La., Nov. 24, 1963 1-B

ALL SECTIONS

All sections of Louisiana are represented, and one can tour the state vicariously by spending half a day touring the exhibits.

Completed in 1938, the marble, limestone and granite building still is one of the largest round structures anywhere. Two wings enhance the exterior appearance and serve as a 414-seat auditorium, and as an artifact - and - art exhibit hall. It was refurbished last summer to a high point of freshness.

The museum is located at the Grounds on Shreveport's west side and motorists traveling along Highway 80 may use either of two driveways into the large parking area behind it.

It is open to visitors, without charge, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. through the week, and on Saturday and Sunday afternoons. It is closed for only one holiday a year — Christmas Day.

The circular building's front entrance is impressive, with two very large solid granite columns. They are oval, about three feet in diameter, and some 25 feet high.

COLORFUL MURALS

Behind the columns are colorful 16-foot murals, done soon after the building was completed, depicting various phases of life in the state.

Inside, miniature sculptured figures and lifelike details are displayed to blend indistinguishably with a realistic painted background, to form the dioramas noted for their impressiveness.

The dioramas, presenting a panorama of Louisiana life and times, have been done over the years since February, 1939, when Dr. H. B. Wright and his staff of experts began the herculean task of their creation.

Since Dr. Wright's retirement on June 30, the Museum has been directed by Heber Long of Shreveport. He is assisted by five employees.

Long said recently, "The Museum this year experienced an unusually steady flow of summer tourists, ranging from South America to Wisconsin, and from California to Florida and Maine.

"Also, I remember one man from England who enjoyed a detailed study of a cotton stalk here, loaded with open boles. He had never seen one before."

Shreveporters bring their visitors to see the museum and many Louisiana families drive considerable distances to view the unusual history.

"Too, there are many groups of students from kindergarten through college who come to make a complete tour of the facilities here," Long commented. He said classes came from as far away as Oklahoma.

MANY USE FACILITIES

The museum director added, "Many local and area groups use our facilities regularly. A monthly average of about 20 meetings of local and area groups have been held here during the past nine months."

Young and old alike find points on interest in the museum. Even the most recent addition — large live gold fish, perch, trout and catfish in an artificial pond in the patio enclosed by the circular musuem building — delights its share of visitors.

Recent restorations, costing upward of $50,000, included cleaning the exterior limestone, granite, terazzo steps, terazzo landings, concrete retaining wall, concrete fences, etc.; rejointing of all defective joints in the limestone; repainting exterior metal windows and lintels, and extensive roof repairs.

Most of the work was completed by October 1, giving the building a new appearance.

One can enter the building at any of its several openings, tour all its exhibits and facilities and return to the same entrance without passing the same way twice.

In the main, circular building are the enchanting glass-encased dioramas, exhibits of historic state relics, and other items that reveal the varying cultures that have gone into the making of Louisiana as one of the most colorful of the 50 states.

PLASTER MAP

Inside the north entrance is a foyer, in the center of which is a plaster-of-Paris relief map of Louisiana, sunken into the floor and encircled by an aluminum railing.

The map, with each parish in a different color, illustrates the contour of the state, the elevation, watershed, and principal resources of sections, including the national forest reservations, and larger bodies of water.

Also shown on the map are principal highways, including Interstates 10 and 20.

The east wing is the auditorium, used by many area groups for lectures, organizational meetings, civic gatherings, and other events.

Local art lovers were using the art gallery, in the west wing, for taking a four - day watercolor course from a noted painter, engaged and paid by them, when we visited there recently.

But, most fascinating of all to visitors are the dioramas. And most recent of them is the realistic (though scaled-down) ancient Indian Village of Poverty Point archaeological site in West Carroll Parish.

OTHER DIORAMAS

Other dramatic dioramas, construction of which required immense amounts of skill, patience and care, include scale model reproductions of dairy and beef cattle pastures, an old syrup mill in action, sugar cane, rice, and cotton harvesting, cotton ginning, forage crop and vegetable harvesting and packing shed, orange grove, oil refinery, sulphur mining, salt mining, migratory waterfowl, scale model paper mill, poultry farming and forestry.

Some of them, interestingly, show the harvesting methods of years gone by. Plans of those closest to the museum include adding of dioramas to illustrate the latest harvesting methods, when funds are available for this work.

The museum is operated and maintained by the State Department of Agriculture. Agriculture Commissioner Dave L. Pearce, commenting on the museum recently, said, "With its contents, the State Museum represents an investment of $5 million. It is renowned for its artistic diorama displays, exhibits of agricultural and industrial products, historic murals, archaeological relics and art collections. Its function is to preserve the old and at the same time the technological advance of a progressive people. It is Louisiana in miniature."

SULPHUR MINING diorama gives viewers a realistic close-up.

Tourist Clan Moderating

By JIM BECKER

SALISBURY, England (AP)— The word around these days is that American tourists aren't what they used to be.

They have, the story goes, been abroad so often that they no longer order hamburgers at the Tour d'Argent, throw dollar bills around like confetti and complain about the coffee where ever they go.

To investigate this story, a correspondent traveled incognito on a tourist bus through southern England.

The following conversation was recorded as it happened, with the guide speaking in an exaggerated British accent, and the tourists in nasal tones that were sharp enough to quarry rock:

CONFUSION

Guide: Here we are at the Salisbury Cathedral, which you may recognize from the famous painting by Constable.

"What did he say?"

"I don't know. With that accent I can't undertsand a word he says."

Somebody named Constable buried here I think."

"Don't they ever wash these places? This one looks about 700 years old. It might not look bad if they washed it."

Guide: You will notice the beautiful stained glass windows, but only the one at the end is original. The Puritans smashed the others.

"That sounds like an anti-American remark."

"What did he say?"

"The Americans smashed the windows."

"They could do with a cleaning."

Guide: And here is a tomb with a wooden effigy. The school boys here have a curious custom — they carve their initials in the effigy upon graduation.

"What did he say?"

"People have been carving their initials in the statue."

"It's Americans. That's what it is. They carve their initials in everything."

Guide: No, madam, these are local schoolboys. They have this—

"Don't tell me. They're Americans. My countrymen. It's terrible. You see it all over Europe. Last Saturday I saw it in Madrid."

"I saw it in Milan. Have you ever been in Milan?"

"I had my pocket picked there last year. Or was it Florence?"

Guide: And here is the tomb of King Henry III.

"Oh, no, it isn't. I had a guide last Friday, and he told me Henry was buried in Notre Dame. I saw the tomb."

Guide: Perhaps he meant the French Henry.

"He said Henry III. I saw the tomb. And it was Paris. He never said anything about Canterbury."

Guide: Madam, this is Salisbury.

"Salisbury! But this is Wednesday. If it isn't Canterbury I'm on the wrong tour."

Louisiana's Tax Hikers

The tax records of gubernatorial candidates John McKeithen, Gillis Long and Robert F. Kennon ring forth loud and clear. Here they are:

JOHN McKEITHEN, as an Earl Long floor leader in the House of Representatives in 1948 helped push through the massive Long tax-hiking program. He voted for at least 10 tax-hiking measures, co-authored some of them, guided them to legislative passage, and introduced three additional tax raising measures of his own which did not get through.

GILLIS LONG never has held a legislative post, but he boasts of being one of "the Longs" politically as well as by blood, and the record of "the Longs" is high taxing and high spending. Senator Russell B. Long, chief political sponsor of Gillis Long in the race for Governor, was special legislative counsel in the writing of the Earl Long-McKeithen avalanche of tax-hiking bills in 1948.

ROBERT F. KENNON is a tax cutter. In 1952 he brought about repeal of the Long-McKeithen 2c per gallon gasoline tax and increased exemptions for state income tax in a manner to save $85 to $125 a year for the average family. Under his administration came the two-thirds majority constitutional amendment, co-authored by Rep. Jasper K. Smith of Caddo. This makes a two-thirds majority necessary in the House and the Senate to hike or create a tax. It blocked tens of millions of dollars of taxation legislation attempted by Earl Long in his second term, 1956-1960.

Just as the records ring forth loud and strong, so should it be crystal clear to the voters that if either John McKeithen or Gillis Long becomes Governor, the taxpayers of Louisiana may well expect another drive at their pocketbooks.

It should be equally clear that an administration under Robert F. Kennon would seek to lean in exactly the opposite direction.

Here is Mr. McKeithen's tax record in the 1948 regular session of the Earl Long administration when he was a floor leader in the House of Representatives:

1948 REGULAR SESSION

1. Act No. 7—Providing a 2c per gallon increase in the gasoline tax.

VOTED: YES. (Repeal of this tax was the first major legislative step by Governor Kennon when he took office in 1952. Governor Kennon also increased state income tax exemption in a manner saving the average Louisiana family $85 to $125 a year.)

2. Act No. 8—Increase the excise tax on light wines and beer.

VOTED: YES.

3. Act. No. 9—Providing a 2 per cent sales tax.

VOTED: YES.

4. Act No. 10—increasing severance tax on natural resources.

CO-AUTHOR OF THE BILL.

5. Act No. 11—Increasing gas gathering tax.

CO-AUTHOR OF THE BILL.

6. Act No. 138—Levying tax on generating electricity for sale or use.

VOTED: YES.

7. Act No. 169—Increasing tax on tobacco.

CO-AUTHOR OF THE BILL.

8. Act No. 440—Further increasing excise tax on light wines and beer.

VOTED: YES.

9. Act No. 465—Increasing tax on generating electricity.

VOTED: YES.

10. Act No. 470—Increasing chain store tax.

VOTED: YES.

Mr. McKeithen also introduced the following tax bills, which failed of passage:

Bill No. 729—Levying an annual tax on all persons, associations, firms and corporations pursuing any trade or profession.

Bill No. 731 — Levying taxes on inheritance and estate transfers.

Bill No. 743—Levying taxes on all incomes.

Jackson Course Told

Winnsboro, La.

To the Editor:

In your editorial in Sunday's Monroe Morning World, November 17, 1963, in answer to a reader's question as to why you did not give greater consideration to the gubernatorial candidacy of Mr. Shelby M. Jackson, now Superintendent of Education, you asked this question, "Why should we?"

Since you are so uninformed, I would like to tell you a few of the many reasons for supporting Mr. Jackson. First and foremost, Mr. Jackson is going to win and I am sure you want to be on the winning side. He is the only man in the race who has ever come to the aid of the common people of Louisiana. All the other top candidates were too busy trying to grab a fortune for themselves. The people are looking for an honest man with wisdom and integrity to lead this state through the next four years. The reason the Monroe Morning World did not support Mr. Jackson is because he is a man with such high ideals and stern character that he cannot be controlled by the press nor by the big political machine of this state.

Sunday, October 20, 1963 you endorsed Mr. Robert Kennon for governor of Louisiana and told some of the things he did while he was governor from 1952-1956, but why didn't you tell the other side of the story? Why did you not tell the people that while Mr. Kennon was governor of Louisiana that all the Colleges south of Alexandria, La., were integrated; that Mr. Kennon took two cents tax off gas and gave it back to the gas companies - robbing the state of this income; that during the Davis administration Mr. Kennon has been drawing a salary of $7,000 a year from the welfare department and has carried on the welfare department according to orders from the Kennedys; (This information was given in the councilor) that Mr. Kennon, during his term as governor, came into possession of 6,500 acre oil lease in Caddo Parish and that the title of this oil lease was put in his sister's name until his term of office expired and then it was transferred to his name. If Mr. Kennon's oil dealings were on the level, why did he not have this title in his own name instead of his sister's name.

While Mr. Jackson was fighting our battles with the federal government Mr. McKeithen was standing idly by, afraid of offending the Kennedys' and let the railroad and bus stations, which were under his jurisdiction, be integrated without saying a word.

In your editorial November 11, 1963, you rigged the voters to write to PAR for its booklet which is intended to furnish the voters with information concerning the different candidates. I think the voters of Louisiana are fully capable of judging the character of these candidates without any advice or help from PAR nor the big time politicians. The only thing they need is to be left alone and given an opportunity to express themselves at the polls December 7, 1963.

I'd like to ask that each voter consider the facts I have given you above, search these men's past records, and vote for the one man whose character and public record has yet to attacked by his opponents, Mr. Shelby M. Jackson, number I on your ticket.

Mrs. J. P. Williams

Answers Requested

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

If you would answer these questions, I would be most appreciative.

1. Are your editorials about John McKeithen being written here, in Shreveport or in New Orleans? Why is it your paper's policy not to tell, when asked who writes them?

2. Do you condone Mr. Kennon's approval of Mr. Eisenhower in his sending troops to Arkansas, or of Mr. Earl Warren's decision to end segregation?

4. In stating that Mr. McKeithen never says anything about Mr. Long, your reporter stood behind me at the south-side rally and heard Mr. McKeithen blast Mr. Long. Is he denying he heard this?

5. Were you aware in endorsing Mr. Kennon of his oil deals when governor? The question is not $5.42, it well could have been $5,420. Are you implying that if he made only that, it is RIGHT? If it was, why did he put it in his sister's name, AND THEN have it transferred to himself after he left office?

6. Why did he resign his $7,500 Welfare job after being exposed? If this job was above-board, why did he leave?

I will await with anticipation your PUBLISHED ANSWERS, to these questions.

Mrs. Rosemary Hunt

Police Jury Rapped

Sterlington, La.

To the Editor:

When that sedate and estimable body, the Ouachita Parish police jury, is not having one of its "knock-down drag-out" type of meetings, they can really settle down to serious business. This was evidenced recently, when they held a real "Love Feast" meeting and decided to send part of their number on an expense-paid trip to a convention in Hawaii! Next year it may be in Hong Kong or Paris!

Just what benefit can the Parish possibly derive from attendance by our jurors at this meeting? Meetings held in our own state where problems of common interest in parish government are discussed may be of some value, but this jaunt looks like a clear-cut attempt to take a vacation at the expense of "you know who," the taxpayer.

It was gratifying to note that two of those elected to making the trip are going at their own expense. It has also been called to my attention that one of our jurors does not collect all the money due him for attendance at meetings, it being turned back into the treasury. These actions are commendable and it is hoped that in the upcoming election, that more men of this caliber will be put into office to replace some of our irresponsible money wasters.

How many times have we read where the police jury was so deeply concerned about funds running out that they would not be able to keep the roads and ditches in repair or buy needed equipment — and yet we now have enough to attend a convention in Hawaii that could cost as much as $1000 per person.

Dislikes Editorials

Winnsboro, La.

To the Editor:

Whoever writes your editorials supporting Robert Kennon makes me sick.

We all know Robert Kennon walked out of the convention in 1952, but where did he go? He went to Eisenhower. Eisenhower sent the troops into Little Rock to force the Negroes in the white schools. He appointed Earl Warren to the Supreme Court, so he could do away with the Constitution, and ban reading the Bible in public schools. In every case that has come before the Supreme Court regarding the communists, Earl Warren ruled in their favor. I wonder if Mr. Kennon is in favor of all that Mr. Eisenhower has done. You know he supported him for president. About Mr. Kennon and the oil lease. As a man that has worked in the oil fields 15 years, who are you trying to fool? You can bet your last dollar Mr. Kennon didn't know that was all his lease was going to bring when he bought it. I wonder what he would have taken for it if it brought, let's say, 5 million dollars. The time has come when your newspaper cannot fool the people any longer. Your own Sunday edition proves you are trying to pick a winner and not the best man for the office. I am 100 per cent in favor of John McKeithen for governor. As for old meatyOtto, he should stay in Washington and stop insulting the people's intelligence by trying to tell them how to vote. I've been in Louisiana most of my life and Mr. Passman has been on the fence so many times I wonder if he knows who he wants to support now. If he didn't have foreign aid to talk about he would have been defeated long ago, and we all know that the Jimmy Davis crowd is on Robert Kennon's back.

I wonder what the Monroe Morning World has been promised for supporting Robert Kennon. The people know when a big corporation or newspaper supports a man for governor it is for personal gain and not for the benefit of the state.

In conclusion, let me say I don't believe you have the guts to print this in your paper.

Raps Jury Waste

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

It has just been brought to my attention that our wonderful police jury has found another way to waste our money.

Not being satisfied with having obtained from the Legislature permission to hold 52 paid meetings per year at $30 per member per meeting; and also, just recently having voted themselves $125. each for the entire crowd, including engineers and office help, to go to a Baton Rouge convention, it now appears that they have found a new way to squander our money. This latest move is voting to send a delegation all the way to Hawaii at our expense to attend a convention.

I feel that it is time to call a halt to this waste of our tax money, and am wondering if a few new faces after election would not help matters.

Power Is Centralized

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

To the people of West Monroe the abridgment of their liberties by a law that does not permit their voice in public affairs related to sale of their own belonging, there is surprise and even fear of what's next.

The people's properties collectively ought to be held inviolate as is private ownership from harm that may hurt collectively or privately. Not so as it concerns operation at City Hall. The city hall people may sell the new city hall without consent of the governed. This is centralized power without restraint.

Valuable property on the Ouachita River bank, just opposite the old city hall, including the Pine street area, may be sold without specific authority from the people of West Monroe who own the property? The courts may look askance at the action of delegated authority when such large sums are involved in the sale and little or no appraisal is made of the possibilities of how it affects the public interest later. Precedents may be shown.

It may be stated here our investments there, in lands equipment and the fact it affords the beach head for water lines spreading all over town, has more value than the mere price of real estate sought in order to make the deal. And further added that it is our only river bank land and afford s a value for river traffic later.

McKeithen And Longs

The political record of gubernatorial candidate John McKeithen as part and parcel of "The Longs" in Louisiana — politically speaking — is not complete with his tax voting record alone. There also must be consideration of the part he played in Governor Earl Long's attempt to establish, during his 1948-1952 term, a dictatorship in Louisiana of a type perhaps never dreamed of before by any politician in any state.

And discussion of this necessarily brings in Gillis Long, too, although he was not around — politically — at the time.

Mr. McKeithen went into the Legislature in the Earl Long landslide of 1948 and promptly was made one of the governor's House floor leaders. He is running now against a background of Earl Longism, for Mrs. Earl K. Long is his state campaign manager and various other Earl Long leaders and followers around the state are supporting him.

Flushed with the victory of his avalanche of tax-hiking in the 1948 Legislature — brought about in part through the efforts and votes of Mr. McKeithen as a House floor leader, and with the bills written under guidance of Senator Russell Long, present sponsor of gubernatorial candidate Gillis Long, Governor Earl Long next attempted a dictatorship "power grab." Mr. McKeithen and other Long leaders pushed through the Legislature a series of constitutional amendments which would have given the governor one-man control over every cent of spending in the state WITHOUT EVEN LEGISLATIVE APPROVAL.

These amendments also would have given the governor complete control over and the opportunity to completely politicalize Louisiana's state university and all of the state's colleges.

These amendments were called the "Nine Earl Long Power Grab Amendments" when submitted to the electorate in the general elections of November, 1948. All of these amendments were defeated overwhelmingly by the people after exposure of their real purpose to the people by the Morning World and the News-Star and the Shreveport Times — as well as by such other newspapers around the state as the New Orleans Times-Picayune and the Baton Rouge State Times.

The defeat of this Earl Long power grab was spectacular in the political sense because Mr. Long and his legislative machine — including floor leader McKeithen — had been in office only six months after a landslide election victory, and had pushed through the Legislature every bill and resolution they desired merely by giving it an okay.

The first of the "Nine Earl Long Power Grab Amendments" would have removed the existing limits on the amount of state funds that could be appropriated between sessions of the Legislature by the board of liquidation of state debt of which the governor, his lieutenant governor and other administration machine officials were members. This board has authority to appropriate moderate sums between sessions of the Legislature for emergencies which may arise in various departments, thus making it possible to meet these emergencies — minor in their total dollar volume — without calling a special session of the Legislature.

What Governor Long and floor leader McKeithen and others of the Long regime proposed was that the limit on the amount of money the board could appropriate between sessions of the Legislature be removed so that this board could usurp the Constitutional appropriation powers of the Legislature and pass tens of millions of dollars of state money around in any way the board saw fit without action of the Legislature itself.

Another of the "Nine Earl Long Power Grab Amendments" would have reduced the terms of members of the L.S.U. board of supervisors from 14 years to seven years so as to enable Governor Long to pack it with his own appointees and thus to establish complete Long political control over Louisiana's biggest and most important educational institution.

Still another of the "Nine Earl Long Power Grabs" would have created a new state board to be appointed in full by the governor and to serve at his will, to control all of the state's colleges.

Thus, Governor Long would have been, in effect, the president and administrator of every state college — and of L.S.U. as well.

To all of this, John McKeithen gave full and earnest support. Senator Russell Long, now the sponsor of Gillis, was a guiding power behind the dictatorship power grab which Governor Earl Long attempted to set up with Mr. McKeithen's assistance.

So, a vote for Mr. McKeithen on the basis of his record — is a vote to re-establish Earl Longism in control of the government of Louisiana, and a vote for Gillis Long is a vote to expand Russell Longism into control of the government of Louisiana.

What's the difference?

Commission Gives Details On Farm Plan

By BASCOM TIMMONS

The National Agricultural Advisory Commission has just come out with a ringing endorsement of the "family farm" and its role in the American economy but there is some disagreement on what to do about the hired hand in such operations.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman says the family farm is wonderful and his advisory commission agrees.

Some members of the 24-man commission part company, however, with the prevailing opinion that minimum wages and working conditions for hired agricultural labor should be established.

So far no one has been able to draw a clear line defining a family farm and a larger-than-family farm. For statistical purposes the Department of Agriculture considers a family farm one whose hired labor which on the average farm is about 1.5 man-years.

At its last meeting the commission set forth nine recommendations "for a healthy family farm agriculture" and there was dissent only on the one dealing with better wages and working conditions for the hired hand.

"Concern about the welfare of farm people surely includes, in a democratic society, the welfare of families who work for farmers," it was noted. "Farm wages and other conditions of employment are at or above industrial minimums in important parts of agriculture but not in all. We recommend that minimum wages and improved working conditions, in terms adapted to agricultural production, be extended, by stages, to hired farm workers on a national basis until comparability with industrial minimums is attained."

One of the dissenters was commission member William V. Rawlings, a Virginia peanut and hog producer, who opposed the recommendation on this ground.

"I view this problem as a social problem and I do not agree that the economic condition of agriculture is such that will permit agriculture to bear the entire burden of correcting this social problem."

Further, he feels that the necessary working hours during rush periods the fact that much farm labor is paid a steady wage even through periods of unemployment and partial employment, the wide variance of fringe benefits to many farm laborers such as housing and the like all add up to a most difficult, if not impossible problem in enforcing such legislation should the objectives of the recommendations be enacted into law.

Another Southern member, Charles R. Sayre, head of a cotton cooperative in Mississippi, says flatly proposals for minimum wages in relation to a single target could lead to serious distortions in the rural economy.

Sayre also believes added rural unemployment would be a direct result of a rigid farm wage structure.

A third dissenter, C. D. Dosker of Louisville, Ky., considered it "wishful thinking" to talk about the wage level of farm help attaining that of industrial minimums. The law of supply and demand, he pointed out, is just as effective in agriculture as it is in industry. And over and above that this country can expect to have a large number of subsistence farmers on its hands for years to come.

In many, many instances the family farm survives only because of Federal support programs. It is not likely this help will end at any time soon because of the large number of Congressmen in whose districts these farms are operated.

More than that, though, letting the family farms die off would only replace one problem with another.

If the family farmer had to leave his land to find employment he would head for the cities where there is already serious unemployment. And farmers don't become mechanics, tool and die makers or telephone repairmen overnight. Their's is a skill which has applicability nowhere else but on the farm.

For the time being, the family farmer will continue to be praised for his contributions and that will be that.

THE SPIRIT of William Bradford looks out on a scene in Plymouth, Mass., and on a modern American city, in this drawing symbolizing the influence of the Pilgrim governor who proclaimed the first Thanksgiving Day in 1621. With sturdy pioneer fortitude, hard work and sympathy plus discipline, he governed the Pilgrims for 35 years and left an indelible stamp on the country which was to grow up. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Celebration This Week

Pilgrim Day

EDITOR'S NOTE — Almost forgotten in the shrouds of history is a remarkable man, who should be ranked with the great in the founding of the nation we have today. There could hardly be a better occasion than now to remind America anew of the life and times of this notable figure — to whom we owe the idea of a Thanksgiving observance.

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Staff Writer

Posterity has dealt indifferently with William Bradford, the Pilgrim governor who proclaimed the first Thanksgiving Day back in 1621.

By all rights of character and accomplishment, of wisdom and courage, of over-all inspired leadership, Bradford should be revered as a great American, a figure on a par with Washington and Lincoln in our national gallery of heroes.

But somehow, dimly viewed through the mists of history, his image has been obscured by the fame of Miles Standish, John Alden and Priscilla Mullin, whom Longfellow ennobled in his fanciful recreation of the Plymouth story; or else he has been confused with the stern, witch-hunting Puritan governors of the neighboring Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Loomed

Bradford certainly loomed larger in the life of Plymouth than Standish, who was his close friend and military adviser for many years, and John Alden and Priscilla Mullin, whom he joined together in a civil marriage ceremony shortly after becoming governor. And he never did burn a witch, although he once had the unhappy duty of sentencing John Billington, a fellow passenger on the Mayflower, to be hanged for murder.

Only 31 at the time of his election, a silk weaver by trade and Pilgrim by rigid choice of conscience, Bradford was to govern Plymouth for 30 of the next 35 years and to put indelibly the stamp of his remarkable character on the new world's first successful experiment in democracy.

It was he who molded Plymouth into what it was to become, a shining symbol of harmonious self-government, of a hard-working, God-fearing free society ruled by love and laws, at peace with its neighbors but ever ready to defend itself in case of attack, a symbol that was to have an effect far beyond the boundaries and far beyond the life span of the tiny colony.

Massachusetts Bay eventually swallowed up Plymouth, but Plymouth's way prevailed in shaping the mighty nation that found its seeds in these small beginnings.

Uneducated

Last-born, uneducated, an orphan at 8 and a religious dissenter at 12, Bradford had in him the makings of the first authentic American: the pioneer, the rebel, the independent thinker, the self-made man. Other New England colonies were run by university men. Virginia's governors came from the royal court. But Bradford was homespun and self-taught; neither birth nor wealth assisted him in fulfilling his destiny.

He took over the fortunes of the colony at a desperate time. John Carver, the first governor, fell dead of sunstroke on a balmy April day shortly after the Mayflower sailed home to England. His death climaxed a series of grim tragedies that decimated the colony in the first few months in the new world.

Of the 102 Mayflower passengers who survived the hazardous 65-day ocean voyage to step ashore on that bleak and forbidding coast, only 56 lived through the first winter. Scarcely 20 men were on hand in the Common House to pick the new governor. The young man they chose already knew much of suffering and of sorrow.

Bradford's religious beliefs and opposition to the Romanish practices of the Church of England soon led him to the little village of Scrooby where he came under the sway of postmaster William Brewster, an elder in the separatist movement who was to be his lifelong friend and confident in the new world.

King James' promise to harry all dissenters out of the land was not long in catching up with the little colony at Scrooby. When Brewster and four others were summoned before the Ecclesiastical Commission in York the congregation resolved to flee to Holland. Here young Bradford's adventures began in earnest.

A British sea captain, hired to take them to Amsterdam, betrayed them to the king's troops. Scarcely 18, Bradford was imprisoned in Lincolnshire for a month.

Next a Dutch captain tried to get them across. The men went aboard first, but troops arrived before the women and children could be taken on at another point. In panic, the captain weighed anchor and headed out to sea, oblivious of the frantic wailings of the separated families. After a harrowing storm that drove the ship close to the coast of Norway, the men finally reached Holland but it was nearly a year before their families got over.

A farmer by upbringing, William Bradford settled down with the Scrooby congregation in the lovely city of Leyden to learn the silk weaver's trade and later to become a worker in fustian, a twill cloth. He became fluent in French and Dutch, took out citizenship, bought a house and married Dorothy May, 16, who in time bore him a son.

The Scrooby folk flourished in exile, but with war threatening between Spain and Holland, they determined to seek refuge in the new land that fired their imaginations in the maps and writings of Capt. John Smith.

"So," wrote Bradford, "they left that goodly & pleasante citie, which had been their resting place near 12 years, but they kenw they were pilgrims & looked not much on these things but lift up their eyes to the heavens, their dearest cuntrie and quieted their spirits."

Obstacles beset them on all sides. King James had to be coaxed into letting them go. Elder Brewster had to be smuggled aboard the Mayflower with a price on his head for printing seditious tracts. They started out in two ships, but the Speedwell, which was to have been their fishing boat in the new world, was overmasted and leaked badly and had to be abandoned.

They had hoped to be underway by early summer, but it was Sept. 6 before the high-pooped, deep-bellied, three-master, 180-ton Mayflower set sail from Plymouth with 102 passengers. Some had been aboard for seven weeks. Moving at only two knots, it would be more than two months before the Mayflower dropped anchor again.

"After longe beating at sea," wrote Bradford, "they fell with that land which is called Cape Cod, the which being made and certainly knowne to be it, they were not a little joyful."

In the cold, dark waters off Provincetown, his 23-year-old wife, Dorothy Bradford, lay buried, on a bitter December day, while her husband was off in the long boat on the final expedition that resulted in the discovery of the fine harbor at Plymouth, she had either jumped or fallen from the high deck of the Mayflower.

Whether a suicide or an accident victim, he would never know, but his sleep was tormented by memories of her pining away for the 5-year-old son they had left behind in Holland.

Plymouth was a widowers' world. Miles Standish, Edward Winslow, Isaac Allerton, the men who helped Bradford most in that first trying year, all had lost their wives in the terrible general sickness which the governor so touchingly describes in his remarkable "History of Plimouth Plantation:"

"But it pleased God to vissite us then with death dayly, and with so generall a disease that the living were scarce able to burie the dead, and ye well not in any measure sufficiente to tend ye sick."

But somehow, through sickness and death, through threat of starvation and Indian attack, through the howling storms of winter and the drenching rains of spring, Plymouth endured. The little graveyard on the hill, where bodies were taken by dark of night lest the Indians learn of their weakness, received no new tenants for a while, and the tiny settlement gradually regained its strength.

By fall, the governor could proclaim a day of thanksgiving and invite the local Indians to share in a feast that lasted three days and saw Miles Standish drill his little company up and down Plymouth's main street for the edification of the 90 braves who showed up.

What had Plymouth to be thankful for?

Against the approach of another severe winter, seven one-room houses and four supply buildings stood in a neat row. There was a good harvest of 20 acres of Indian corn, and fish and fowl abounded at their doorstep. Some beginnings had been made in the beaver trade, so they had hopes of paying off their staggering debt to the merchant adventurers in London who underwrote the voyage.

And, best of all, they had signed a peace treaty with the local Indians that was to remain unbroken during the life of the colony.

The man who guided them and inspired them in all these pursuits was the son of an English yoeman, the sturdy stock that was to prove the backbone of the commonwealth.

Born at Austerfield in Yorkshire in March 1590, William Bradford lost his father when he was a year old and, upon his mother's remarriage, went to live with his grandfather.

When both his mother and his grandfather died within a few years, he was orphaned to the care of two stern uncles, Robert and Thomas Bradford, who never could fathom his early fascination with separatist preachers in the neighborhood.

From the first landfall, the sighting of the clay bluffs of Truro, Bradford rapidly grew in stature in the eyes of his fellow colonists. He took part in all the hazardous explorations up and down the coast, sloshing through snow on those long night marches, falling into an Indian deer trap, chasing after "slavages" who watched them furtively from the woods but seldom ventured closer, finding their cache of corn and an old iron kettle, and finally exchanging musket fire for a shower of arrows in that famous first encounter, which fortunately drew no blood but left each side with a healthy respect for the other.

These adventures steeled Bradford for even tougher trials in the years ahead. After that first grim winter, the first Thanksgiving Day proved only a brief respite from the dangers and misfortunes that constantly beset the colony.

The harvest had hardly been gathered in, when the Fortune sailed into Plymouth Harbor with 35 more hungry mouths to feed. Worse still, loaded with otter, beaver, clapboard and other fruits of the Pilgrims' labor, she was hijacked by French pirates on the way back to England. Her cargo of furs alone would have paid off half the colony's debt, but her loss and similar tragedies left the Pilgrims wallowing in financial difficulties for another 25 years.

HE RULED

Bradford ruled Plymouth with an almost instinctive blend of tolerance and firmness. His straightforward nature is nowhere shown to better advantage than in an incident that took place in Christmas of the same year, when the colony was busy building a mile-long, 11-foot-high palisade around the town as a defense against attack.

EYEWITNESS TO HISTORY

Reporter Gives Shooting Details

EDITOR'S NOTE: Merriman Smith, UPI White House reporter who now is covering his fifth president, was riding several cars behind President Kennedy in a Dallas, Tex., motorcade Friday when an assassin struck. Smith followed the President's car to the hospital. He was there for the announcement of death and he witenssed President Johnson's oath-taking as the only news service reporter aboard the plane back to Washington. This is his eyewitness story of history.

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It was a balmy, sunny noon as we followed President Kennedy's car through downtown Dallas. Then, suddenly, we heard three almost painfully loud cracks.

The first sounded as if it might have been a large firecracker. But the second and third were unmistakable. Gunfire.

I was riding in the White House press "pool" car, equipped with a radio-telephone. I was in the front seat between a telephone company driver and Malcolm Kilduff, acting White House press secretary. Three other pool reporters were wedged in the back seat.

As we heard the shots the President's car, possibly as much as 150 or 200 yards aheads, seemed to falter. There was a flurry of activity in the Secret Service car behind the President's open limousine.

CAR STOPS

Our car stopped for probably only a few seconds, but it seemed like a lifetime. Even for a trained observer there is a limit to what one can comprehend.

I could not see the President or Gov. John Connally of Texas in their car. I thought I saw a flash of pink which would have been Mrs. Kennedy.

Everybody in our car began shouting at the driver to pull up closer to the President's car. But at this moment, we saw the limousine and a motorcycle escort roar away at high speed.

We careened around Vice President Lyndon Johnson's car and its escort and set out down the highway, barely able to keep in sight of the President's car.

We cleared a curve and saw Parkland Hospital, a large brick structure to the left of the highway. We spilled out of the pool car as it entered the hospital driveway.

I ran to the side of the limousine.

LIES FACE DOWN

The President lay face down on the back seat. Mrs. Kennedy made a cradle of her arms around the President's head and bent over him as if she were whispering to him.

Gov. Connally was on his back on the floor of the car, his head and shoulders resting in the arms of his wife, Nellie, who kept shaking her head and shaking with dry sobs.

Clint Hill, the Secret Service agent in charge of the detail assigned to Mrs. Kennedy, was leaning over into the rear of the car.

"How badly was he hit, Clint?" I asked.

"He's dead," Hill replied curtly.

I have no further clear memory of the scene in the driveway.

I recall a babble of anxious voices, tense voices — "Where in ---- are the stretchers . . . get a doctor out here . . . he's on the way . . . Come on, easy there." And from somewhere, nervous sobbing.

I raced down a short stretch of sidewalk into a hospital corridor. The first thing I spotted was a small clerical office. Inside, a bespectacled man stood shuffling what appeared to be hospital forms. I spotted a telephone on the shelf.

It took two shaky tries before I successfully dialed the Dallas UPI number. I dictated a bulletin saying the President had been seriously, perhaps fatally, injured by an assassin's bullets while driving through the streets of Dallas.

LITTERS PASS BY

Litters bearng the President and the governor then rolled by as my back was turned.

I knew they had passed, however, from the horrified expression that suddenly spread over the face of the clerk.

I watched a swift and confused panorama sweep before me.

Kilduff raced up and down the hall. Police captains barked at each other. Two priests hurried in behind a Secret Service agent. A police lieutenant ran down the hall with a large carton of blood for tranfusions. A doctor came in and said he was responding to a call for "all neurosurgeons."

Then Kilduff and Wayne Hawks of the White House staff ran by me, shouting that Kilduff would make a statement shortly at the far end of the hospital.

We reached the door of the conference room and there were loud cries of "Quiet!" Fighting to keep his emotions under control, Kilduff said "President John Fitzgerald Kennedy died at approximately one o'clock."

After calling my office I ran back through the hospital to the conference room where a White House aide grabbed me and said Kilduff wanted a pool of three newsmen immediately to fly back to Washington.

I ran down the stairs and into the driveway, only to discover Kilduff had just pulled out in our telephone car.

HOP POLICE CAR

Charles Roberts of Newsweek Magazine, Sid Davis of Westinghouse Broadcasting and I got a police officer to take us to the airport in his squad car.

As we piled out of the car about 200 yards from the presidential aircraft, Kilduff spotted us and said the plane could take two pool men to Washington; that Johnson was about to take the oath of office aboard the plane and would take off immediately thereafter.

I saw a bank of telephone booths beside the runway and asked if I had time to call in the news. "For God's sake, hurry," he said.

All circuits were busy to the Dallas office and even Washington. I finally called the New York bureau of UPI and told them about the impending inauguration of a new president aboard the airplane.

Aboard Air Force One on which I had made so many trips as a press association reporter covering President Kennedy, all of the shades of the larger main cabin were drawn and the interior was hot and dimly lighted. The plane sat on the ground throughout the ceremony.

Kilduff propelled us to the President's suite two-thirds of the way back in the plane. The room normally could accommodate eight to ten people seated.

ROOM IS JAMMED

Johnson waited for Mrs. Kennedy, who was composing herself in a small bedroom in the rear of the plane. She soon appeared alone, dressed in the same pink wool suit she had worn in the morning when she appeared so happy shaking hands with airport crowds at the side of her husband.

She was white-faced but dry-eyed. Friendly hands stretched toward her as she stumbled slightly. Johnson took both of her hands in his and motioned her to his left side. Lady Bird stood on his right, a fixed half-smile showing the tension.

"Hold up your right hand and repeat after me," the woman jurist said to Johnson.

Outside, a jet could be heard droning as if landing.

TAKES OATH

Judge Hughes held out the Bible and Johnson covered it with his large left hand. His right arm went slowly into the air and the jurist began to intone the Constitutional oath. "I do solemnly swear I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States."

The brief ceremony ended when Johnson in a deep, firm voice, repeated after the judge, "..And so help me God."

Johnson turned first to his wife, hugged her about the shoulders and kissed her on the cheek. Then he turned to Kennedy's widow, put his left arm around her and kissed her cheek.

The two - minute ceremony concluded at 3:38 p.m. EST and a second later, the President said firmly, "Now, let's get airborne."

Several persons, including Sid Davis of Westinghouse, left the plane at that time. The White House had room for only two pool reporters on the return flight and these posts were filled by Roberts and me.

WALKS TO CASKET

When the President's plane reached operating altitude, Mrs. Kennedy left her bedchamber and walked to the rear compartment of the plane. The casket had been placed in this compartment.

Mrs. Kennedy went into the rear lounge and took a chair beside the coffin. There she remained throughout the flight. Her vigil was shared at times by staff members close to the slain Chief Executive.

Johnson walked back into the main compartment.

"I'm going to make a short statement in a few minutes and give you copies of it" he said. "Then when I get on the ground, I'll do it over again."

When the plane was about 45 minutes from Washington, the new President got on a radio-telephone and placed a call to Mrs . Rose Kennedy, the late President's mother.

"I wish to God there was something I could do," he told her. "I just wanted you to know that."

"We feel like the heart has been cut out of us," Mrs. Johnson told the elder Mrs. Kennedy. Then she broke down for a moment and began to sob. Recovering in a few seconds, she added, "Our love and our prayers are with you."

WASHINGTON EXPERIENCE

Johnson Is Well-Trained For Presidential Tasks

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Chief, World Capital Bureau

WASHINGTON — Lyndon B. Johnson, who came to Washington in December, 1931, as a 23-year-old secretary to a Texas congressman, came back to Washington Friday as the 36th President of the United States.

At 55 he became occupant of the mightiest office in the world at an unprecedently dangerous time as the fourth President in this nuclear era.

No other President came to that office after so long a preparation for it. He has been on the Washington scene for 32 years well more than half of his life.

I remember especialy a day in April, 1937, after he had been chosen representative from the 10th Texas congressional district in a special election to succeed a veteran member of Congress who had died in office.

He had been stricken ill almost immediately after his election and had a close brush with death. Still ill, he boarded the special train brining President Franklin D. Roosevelt through Austin on a return from a fishing trip to the Texas Gulf coast. The young congressman-elect came to the compartment of this writer, rested awhile and went back to the President's car for a long visit with the President.

Whatever ambition Lyndon B. Johnson had before that day, I do not know. I do not doubt that from the talk he had with Roosevelt on that day, he began to prepare himself to be President of the United States.

He became a congressional lieutenant of Franklin D. Roosevelt almost from the first day of his service in the House of Representatives.

He was a relatively new United States Senator when he became Democratic leader and won acclaim as the most powerful occupant of that role in his party's history.

He gave up that powerful place to become Vice President — an office in itself of feeble powers. But in it he had training for the presidency approached by only his predecessor, Richard M. Nixon.

What kind of a President will Lyndon B. Johnson be? That question is being asked by a nation stunned by the assassination of John Fitzgerald Kennedy. It is being asked in the capitals of a hundred nations.

Certainly every writer in this news capital of the world is asking it. This writer who has covered the national scene while nine presidents left office, three of them in sudden death, and who has known Lyndon Johnson for more than 30 years, asks himself the question.

And the best answer is the statement of the new President. "I will do my best. That is all I can do."

That best of Lyndon Johnson I think guarantees the nation a competent President — I believe a great one.

That he will be nominated to succeed himself at Atlantic City next August is unquestioned. No President since Chester A. Arthur has been denied nomination by his party.

Johnson must go before the voters sooner than any President who has come to the office from the vice presidency although, Calvin Coolidge was in the White House from August, 1923, until he again faced the voters in November.

Theodore Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman had most of the McKinley and F. D. Roosevelt four-year terms to finish out.

The new President is in his middle 50's the age at which the nation customarily thinks of a President coming to the White House. He is the sixth vice president who became President about that age level, the exceptions being Theodore Roosevelt at 43 and Harry S. Truman at 60.

HEALTH GOOD

Despite his heart attack a few years ago, he is apparently in excellent health. He could conceivably be elected and re-elected and serve a little more than nine years, longer than any President other than Franklin D. Roosevelt.

That is something for the future to tell, and some things having a bearing on events, will be told very quickly.

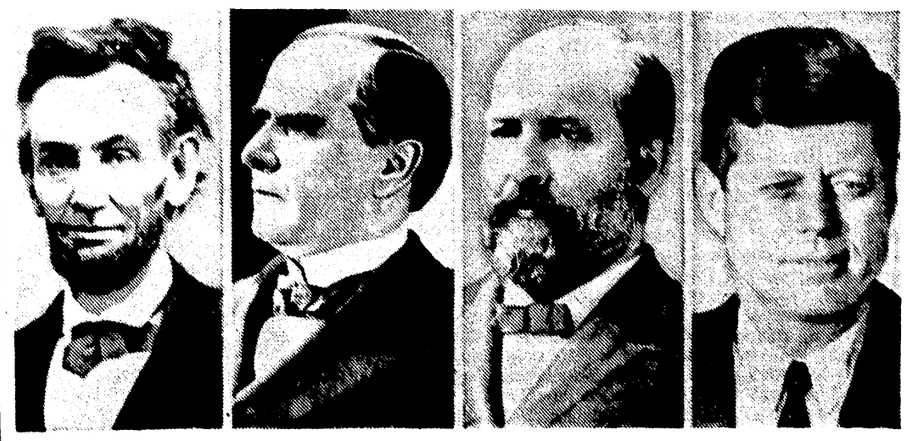
When this week began, people were talking of major party realignments especialy in the South in 1964. But who in either major political party would feel like speculating on such things today?

Of the 19 presidents since the Civil War, only the two Johnsons, Andrew and Lyndon, came to the office as a resident of a Southern State.

Wilson was Virginia-born but governor of an eastern seaboard state at the time of his election. Eisenhower, born in Texas, lived his young manhood in Kansas and most of his mature years in military service.

But Lyndon Johnson, the southern-born, has long been a national figure. In his legislative tasks where he made his great reputation, his careful judgment of the pros and cons of the national problems accounted for his success.

He brings to his executive tasks a thorough knowledge of his country.



THESE ARE THE four U.S. Presidents who have been assassinated while in office. From left: Abraham Lincoln, died April 15, 1865 after he was shot in a Washington theater. William McKinley, died Sept. 14, 1901, was shot eight days earlier at Pan American Exposition in Buffalo, N.Y. James A. Garfield, died Sept. 19, 1881, was shot on July 2 of that year in a Washington railroad station. John F. Kennedy assassinated Friday while riding in a motorcade in Dallas, Texas. (AP Wirephoto)

State Governor's Race Is Jarred By Assissination

By JAMES MCLEAN

BATON ROUGE (AP) —The assassination of President Kennedy sent a shock wave through Louisiana Saturday and jarred the 10-man Democratic race for governor.

Loud drumbeats of political oratory were stilled suddenly. Many candidates quickly announced a halt in their campaigns out of respect for the dead president.

But the halt will be only a brief one, for the first primary is Dec. 7 — just two short weeks away.

For more important to the candidates themselves is the possible upset in their campaign tactics. The late President —because of his civil rights drive— had kindled a bitter opposition and the campaign showed it.

Attacks on the President and his program flared into a big issue in a state where politics is seldom mild.

What happens in the renewed contest for governor may be affected by what happens in Washington in the next several days. A southern Democrat, Lyndon B. Johnson, is President.

In the view of some politicians, President Kennedy's death might install in the state campaign a strong potential for change — but not necessarily so.

There is another current view in the Capital City that the dramatic end of attacks on the President will help those candidates who have attempted mostly to stick to state issues.

A third view is that voters of Louisiana may still be stunned when the election time comes around — with their reaction highly uncertain.

There seems to be little doubt it's an awkward situation for those who have most strongly assailed the President. But it must be remembered political candidates often reflect only what they sense the people are thinking.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis cannot succeed himself.

Among the major candidates for governor, deLesseps Morrison, who was Kennedy's U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, departed for Washington to join mourners.

The onetime New Orleans mayor in a recent campaign speech said some candidates seem to believe the criteria for selecting a governor should be "who can hate President Kennedy the most." He called for election of a governor now and the President next year.

Morrison, however, argued just because he had filled a federal post did not mean he had the Kennedy label on him.

Rep. Gillis Long has been attacked by some rivals as an assistant House whip for the Kennedy administration. But Gillis, backed by Sen. Russell Long, flared back he "owed nothing to the Kennedy administration." Sen. Long was a personal friend of the President, although he has voiced political differences.

U. S. Rep. Edwin E. Willis, who endorsed Gillis Long, told an Arnaudville audience—while on a platform with Gillis—fighting the Kennedys and the Democratic party in the governor's race was "nonsense."

Former Gov. Robert Kennon, who was an Eisenhower Democrat, tagged Morrison, Gillis Long and a third candidate, John McKeithen, "the Kennedy triplets." His platform called for opposition to the nomination or re-election of President Kennedy.

Earlier this week, Leander Perez, strong segregationist and free elector leader, spoke up for Kennon, asserting "his record as governor. . .and his solid, unswerving stand against the Kennedys" justified the voters' vote and confidence.

Public Service Commissioner McKeithen, who had supported Kennedy in 1960, jumped on the Kennedy civil rights program and later proclaimed:

"All the power that the Kennedys can muster, all the federal patronage that can be brought into play, is being sent into Louisiana in an effort to elect Ambassador Morrison or assistant whip Gillis Long."

Shelby M. Jackson, a strong States Rights advocate, said at Bunkie recently the Kennedys were pouring money into the governor's race and that "the people are not going to elect a governor supported by the national administration."

Claude Kirkpatrick, an independent who styles himself "a moderate conservative Democrat," has placed his emphasis on ways to promote state growth. While Kirkpatrick once said, "I will not support President Kennedy," he has spent more time on other questions.

State Rep. Louis Michot of Lafayette told the Louisiana Chamber of Commerce in a gubernatorial panel session here several weeks ago he would back Sen. Barry Goldwater—if it became a question of Kennedy or Goldwater.

Michot has been aiming most of his blows at what he calls bad government in this state.

What Creates An Assassin?

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — What leads an assassin to squeeze the trigger?

Can more assassinations be prevented?

Prominent psychiatrists gave these views in telephone interviews with The Associated Press.

Dr. Karl Menninger of the Menninger Foundation, Topeka, Kan.: "We must each ask ourselves, what was our own responsibility in this terrible tragedy?

"There is no single, simple cause for violence. Whatever becomes known about the man who pulled the trigger, the danger is that in our anger and anguish we will seek a scapegoat.

"I don't think we have ever taken the problem of crime seriously enough. Crime is a great problem in this country, in big form and little form.

"We assume that violence in human beings is under pretty good control most of the time. It isn't.

"Every president has been assassinated one thousand times by words. Bitter, scathing and hostile things have been said about each president.

"Personal vituperation of the president tends to influence people who are suggestible, who will displace to the person of the president all the feelings they have against other people, all their animonisites and hates and fears.

"It is an easy step from phantasy to action for some people. Hate, frustration, hurt pride and bitter feelings lead them on to pull the trigger."

Dr. Sandor Lorand, New York City: "Whatever the assassin's obsession was, he was a "father' murderer.

"Many normal people are full of violence. We learn to control it. When the controls break down, a person can want to attack the whole community and everyone he thinks is mistreating him. He thinks of himself as a figurehead saving the world.

"The responsibility lies in all of us to maintain and strengthen the controls over our violence. It lies particularly with those leaders, whoever they be, ment of individuals by preach- who disrupt the normal adjusting violence, who encourage the view that rebellion and opposition are all right even if carried to the point of violence. Then violence has to break through.

"We must not be led by those who try to disrupt, who express violence. President Kennedy was far from challenging people to violence. He believed in compromise."

Dr. Kenneth Apple, Philadelphia, past president of the American Psychiatric Association: "We have had a lot more assassinations than England. Whether this goes with high emphasis on individuality and aggressiveness and a high crime rate and lack of respect for authority, as compared with England, needs to be thought through. Encouraging the idea that a person can do anything he wants to do is unwise.

"In England, there is more tolerance, more respect for authority, and more of a feeling for gradual change."

Compared with the usual murderer, Appel said, the assassin "has more background of grandiosity. Hitler suffered from a great deal of personal frustration and severe inferiority. He had friends shot. It is the same sort of personality."

Dr. Daniel Blain of Pennsylvania Hospital, Philadelphia, former medical director of the American Psychiatric Association: "There are fanatics, superpatriots and delusional paranoids who transfer their own inner problems to others, particularly to people of prominence, such as world leaders.

"They make the leaders the victims of rumor, especially of a slanderous nature, or physical violence in seeking revenge.

"It is logical to believe that assassins, and people who join unwieldy mobs, feel themselves to be members of a persecuted group. They go beyond reason or logic.

"A main defense is against any form of extremism. By theory, this type of action stems from unsolved anxieties among masses of people. A defense is to get their confidence. We need more study of how we can sublimate or substitute for their antisocial drives.

"Current stresess in the nation are apt to breed more people like this than at times when there is less national anxiety and phenomena of rapid change. Reactions to change bring out the vulnerable people who are frightened.

State, Federal Offices To Close

All federal and state offices in the Twin Cities will be closed Monday in observance of a national day of mourning for the late President John Kennedy who was killed Friday.

Some municipal offices may close for part of the day, but most businesses will remain open, although several businessmen said they would close between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., the hours of the late chief executive's funeral in Washington.

Both the Central Savings Bank and Trust Co., and the Ouachita National bank will be closed all day. However, the First National Bank of West Monroe and the Sterlington Bank had not finalized plans for Monday by late Saturday night.

Monroe Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard said he would meet with the city council at 8 a.m. Monday and recommend that City Hall offices be closed down at 10 a.m.

West Monroe Mayor J. Allan Norris said he would issue a statement "sometime today" on what action would be taken there.

Ouachita Parish Police Jury President L. B. Pettit said the parish courthouse would be open as usual Monday.

"I haven't issued any orders that they be closed," he said.

Monroe Postmaster Woodrow W. Hathorn said that all postal functions will be closed Monday except for certain essential services such as special deliveries, dispatches and the placing of mail in boxes. A skeleton crew is scheduled to be on duty at the postoffice, but no windows will be open. A similar statement was issued by Homer Roark, West Monroe postmaster.

In a joint statement, Lee Vanderpool, president of the Ouachita National Bank, and Conway Crossland, president of the Central Savings Bank, said: "Out of respect for the late President and in observance of the national day of mourning we believe it fitting to not open for business on Monday and will remain closed the entire day."

Comptroller James J. Saxon gave his approval to the closing of all banks throughout the nation on Monday and urged that all do so where the law allows it.

The national day of mourning was proclaimed by President Lyndon Johnson.

In Louisiana, Gov. Jimmie H. Davis also set aside Monday as a day of mourning in the state. He directed that all functions of state government, except those indispensable to the public health and safety, be "put aside out of reverence to the late President."

He also directed that all flags over all public buildings throughout the state continue to fly at half mast for a period of 30 days from last Friday.

At Northeast Louisiana State College a special memorial to the late President will be observed when all offices will be closed and classes suspended during the funeral hours. The cafeteria and snack bar will remain open noted college officials. They said this would permit faculty members and students to participate in various memorial services there.

Other colleges and universities in the state to be closed include Louisiana State University and the University of Southwestern Louisiana. LSU president Dr. John A. Hunter said that all classes will be cancelled Monday. At Southwestern also all classes and offices will be closed.

UNAPPRECIATED HEROICS

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — When Police Lt. W. T. Nelson spotted an apartment house fire and ran inside to rouse its sleeping occupants, not everybody appreciated his efforts.

One apartment dweller sleepily yelled, "go home, drunk!" Thanks to Nelson, nobody was injured.

New President's Health Excellent, Doctors Say

NEW YORK (UPI) —President Lyndon B. Johnson has completely recovered from the heart attack he suffered eight years ago and will be a vigorously healthy chief executive, according to heart specialists here.

They pointed to the active life Johnson has led since his months - long recuperation in 1955, including the 1960 election campaign as President Kennedy's running mate.

"You could have no better proof of his complete recovery," said one professor of medicine who for reasons of medical ethics spoke anonymously. He and other specialists deferred to Johnson's own physician, Dr. J. Willis Hurst of Emory University, Atlanta, who was en route from New York to Washington.

They could speak of what medical science knows in general about recoveries from heart attacks. Each week, each month and each year the victim survives his personal disaster, his heart muscle is healing itself and ridding itself of scar tissue.

SOME REMAINS

Some scar tissue always remains as a residue but it need not interfere with healthy heart function, they said. In the unanimous opinion of three specialists, a man who has had a complete recovery of years-long duration can face up to the most exacting tasks, including that of being president.

They pointed to the example of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who suffered a heart attack during his first term, went on to win re-election and still is vigorously healthy.

To be sure, the man who has had one heart attack has demonstrated "susceptibility," one specialist said. But, after he has recovered, this "susceptibility can be minimized to zero by proper living."

Johnson's physician, Dr. Hurst, has told colleagues that his patient "has devoted himself unstintingly to his recovery." At the time of his attack he weighed well over 200 pounds. Now his weight is around 180 pounds which is considered an "optimum" weight for a man who is six feet three inches tall with heavy bone structure.

SHOCK NOTION

The specialists rejected the layman's idea that a sudden emotional shock — such as the assassination of a beloved superior and being elevated in a flash into the nation's highest office — was "bad for the heart."

It is not "bad" for the healthy heart, they said. The healthy heart adjusts itself to all the situations of living without any damage to itself. They were convinced on the evidence available to them that Johnson has a healthy heart since his attack occurred on July 2, 1955, and he has had many shocks since then, even though none could be in any way comparable to the shock he had Friday.

NEVER-ENDING STREAM

Grieving Nation Paying Tributes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A grieving nation and a sympathetic world poured out a never-ending stream of tributes Saturday to President Kennedy.

From almost everywhere—Red China was a lone exception—came words of regret and grief and condolences for Kennedy's young widow.

Messages of shared sorrow came, too, to the slain President's mother and father.

It was not until Saturday that Joseph P. Kennedy, ill at the family home in Massachusetts, was told of the death of this son in whom he took such pride.

In high places and low the sadness—and some burning anger—carried over from the feeling of stunned shock that came from the first, almost incredible news that America's brilliant young president had been assassinated.

In Rome Pope Paul VI prayed for Kennedy's soul, gave him absolution, and expressed "prayerful wishes that his death may not hinder the cause of world peace."

In a message from Moscow, Premier Khrushchev cabled Jacqueline Kennedy of his deep personal grief and said: "All people who knew him greatly respected him, and I shall always keep the memory of my meetings with him.

"Accept my most sincere condolences and expressions of wholehearted sympathy with your grievous bereavement."

In Communist China, where Kennedy often had been called a warmonger, the assassination was reported matter of fact, without comment.

There was one unfortunate incident in England. After broadcasting the news of Kennedy's death, the British Broadcasting Corp. put a comedy on television. Angry complaints deluged BBC immediately, and the network went back to church music and tributes to Kennedy.

Queen Elizabeth II's husband, Prince Philip, will represent the British crown at the funeral Monday, it was announced. He will fly from London Sunday with Prime Minister Sir Alec and Lady Douglas-Home.

The queen said she had been shocked and horrified by the tragedy.

The prime minister was one of more than 5,000 who attended a Requiem Mass for Kennedy Saturday at the Roman Catholic Cathedral of Westminster.

Representing France at the funeral will be President Charles de Gaulle. De Gaulle said Kennedy had "died like a soldier, under fire, for his duty and in the service of his country."

Another towering figure of World War II, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, also struck the military theme.

"As a former comrade in arms, his death kills something in me," MacArthur said in his message to Mrs. Kennedy, sent from New York.

"A great statesman, and a wise and valiant man" was the tribute from Sir Winston Churchill, who had listened in London to television accounts of the assassination.

Former Presidents Herbert Hoover and Dwight D. Eisenhower gave their statements in New York. Hoover said Kennedy "has given his life for his country," and Eisenhower said he had shared with all Americans a feeling of shock and dismay.

Former President Harry S. Truman, in Independence, Mo., said he was shocked beyond words.

The reaction cut across political and all other lines.

Among Republican presidential possibilities, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller decreed a 30-day mourning period for New York.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona called the President's death "a profound loss to the nation and the free world." Richard M. Nixon, who ran against Kennedy in 1960, called his death "a terrible tragedy."

Former Vice President John Nance Garner was described as badly shaken by the news. Kennedy had called Garner at Uvalde, Tex., a few hours before the President was killed, to congratulate Garner on his 95th birthday.

Negro leaders compared the loss of Kennedy to the death of Abraham Lincoln, felled by an assassin in 1865.

"The second emancipator of black people from the serfdom of racial segregation has been struck down," said A. Philip Randolph.

And Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the nation and the world, in Kennedy's death, had been deprived of a stalwart leadership "in the ageless struggle for human advancement."

Two southern governors who fought Kennedy's proposals for Negroes, George C. Wallace of Alabama and Ross Barnett of Mississippi, joined in deploring what Barnett called "the cowardly act."

Wallace said the assassin "must be filled with universal malice."

Dallas, where the fatal shots were fired, was grieved and angry, too.

Mayor Earle Cabell said that never before had the city welcomed any guest with the enthusiasm it showered on Kennedy. Yet, he said, everything had been tragically married by "the irrational act of one man."

A Dallas cab driver told a passenger: "I got a hard knot in my belly. I love Texas. I have been in a lot of places where there are nuts. I never thought we had those kind of nuts in Texas. I'm going home when I drop you. I gotta unwind. Stupid, stupid!"

A Japanese who had a unique spot in Kennedy's career expressed regrets. This was Kohai Hanami, captain of the destroyer that almost killed Kennedy in 1943 when it rammed his torpedo patrol boat.

"The world has lost an irreplaceable man," Hanami said.

Condition Of Connally Said 'Improved'

By JERRY PILLARD

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Gov. John B. Connally, painfully wounded by the assassin who killed President Kennedy, showed much improvement Saturday.

The possibility arose that Connally may have been an equally deliberate target along with Kennedy.

The man charged with the assassination, Lee Harvey Oswald, 24, wrote Connally when Connally was secretary of the Navy.

Oswald asked a reversal of Oswald's undesirable discharge from the Marine Corps.

Connally replied by noting that he had resigned as secretary of the Navy and had no power to reverse the discharge.

Oswald had written Connally from Minsk in the Soviet Union.

Connally, 46, received the news Saturday that President Kennedy was dead.

"That's what I was afriad of," Connally said.

Dr. Robert Shaw, his attending physician, said the bullet apparently struck Connally in the back, went through his chest into his wrist and then embedded in his thigh.

A late medical bulletin reported Connally's color, pulse and blood pressure good. He is lucid and has talked with members of his staff and Mrs. Connally.

The bullet splintered a rib, causing considerable damage to the surrounding area. He may be in the hospital 10 to 14 days.

3 Previous Assassins Were Killed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The assassins of the three presidents murdered in office before President Kennedy ultimately paid for their crimes with their lives.

John Wilkes Booth, who killed Abraham Lincoln in 1865, was pursued and trapped 12 days later in a barn near Bowling Green, Va., where he was shot by a cavalry sergeant.

Charles J. Guiteau, who shot James A. Garfield in a Washington D.C., railroad station on July 2, 1881, was tried, convicted and hanged in Washington one year later.

Leon Czolgosz, who shot William McKinley in Buffalo, N.Y., on Sept. 14, 1901, was tried in New York Supreme Court, convicted and electrocuted six weeks later in Auburn, N.Y., Prison.

All three used pistols at short range. Guiteau and Czolgosz made no attempt to escape.

Booth, a Southern sympathizer, thought he would find asylum in the South. Historians are not in universal agreement about his motives and planning.

Many think he was simply a fanatic. Others find evidence of a plot and hold that Booth was a hired assassin of a group of conspirators.

Three men and a woman were hanged less than three months later for complicity in the assassination. Four others were imprisoned. Juries failed to convict a ninth man.

By a rare coincidence, Lincoln's oldest son, Robert Todd, was at the scene of all three assassinations.

Mail Renewal Deadline Nears

Only three days remain in the advance renewal by mail program for purchase of 1964-65 auto license plates, but the mail order registration will continue throughout the formal tag sale, according to Fred Ussery Jr., manager of the Monroe district office of the Louisiana Department of Revenue.

In an effort to process as many renewals as possible before the starting date of the offical registration period, the local revenue office has been pushing the advance program.

Since the office will be closed on Thanksgiving Day and the following Friday, advance applications will be accepted only through Wednesday.

Ussery stressed the convenience of the renewal-by-mail program, both for the public and for his office staff. He urged Ouachita Parish residents to continue to utilize this system of tag renewal throughout the formal registration period.

After all the advance orders are processed and ready for mailing, Ussery said that he and one of his staff probably will take them to the post office Saturday so that car owners will receive them on Monday, Dec. 2, the first day of the registration period.

The district manager estimated that more than 1,200 orders will be processed by the end of the advance sales, thus relieving the clerks of that many applications during the two-month official registration period.

Persons desiring to take advantage of this early registration can pick up the necessary application forms at the revenue office at 611 N. 3rd St., or at certain service stations throughout the Twin Cities.

After completing the form in triplicate, the motorist should enclose the 1963 (pink) registration form and a check or money order for $6.20 and mail the order to: Louisiana Department of Revenue, P.O. Box 2897, Monroe.

GI's Shaken By News Of JFK's Death

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — The assassination of their commander-in-chief at home hit American GI's along the Communist border like a stab in the back.

"I couldn't believe it. I called home to make sure," said Airman 1.C. Albert W. Irons, 33, of Bennington, Vt.

"Here we are, serving all around the world, trying to show the world our way of life, and then this happens back home ... back home ..." he said.

In West Berlin, encircled 11 miles deep inside Communist territory, Army Doctor John Hitchcock of 1025 Fifth Ave., New York City, felt a taps-like silence move through his hospital.

"When we first heard the news, we did not believe it. It took some time before it sank in. Then a pall came over the hospital," Hitchcock said.

The boys from Texas, where the President was slain, possibly took it harder than the rest.

"It's a damn shame. It happened only 20 miles from where I live," said Spec 3 Ronald Whitford of Ennis, Tex., stationed here.

Whitford said he had to drink something quick — "to wash down the rotten taste in my mouth."

Sgt. Albert B. Carter, 46, of Albuquerque, N. M., said the news hit the non-commissioned officers club at Thein-Main Air Force Base "like an invisible bombshell."

"Suddenly someone yelled 'Shut up at the bar.' Only the radio spoke," he said. "Nobody said a word. Most of the boys put down their drinks. One went over and told the band to pipe down. A few minutes later I closed up the club. Nobody felt like drinking anyway. It was kind of awful."

It was Friday night — "The happy hour" — along the neon-spangled night club streets in Frankfurt that cater to the GI's. The lights went out about 8:30 p.m., a half hour after the word got around. Even the girls went home.

Fair Play For Cuba Group Is Red-Backed

NEW YORK (AP)—The Fair Play for Cuba Committee, in which Lee Harvey Oswald claimed membership, is a pro-Castro organization denounced in the U. S. Senate as financed and dominated by Communists.

Oswald was arrested Friday and charged with murder in the assassination of President Kennedy.

In a New Orleans radio interview last Aug. 21, Oswald claimed to be New Orleans secretary of the committee.

But Vincent Theodore Lee, national director of the organization, said in Buffalo, N.Y.:

"We have never issued a charter in that area. I don't know if Oswald is a member. He could be. . . There is no one, however, named Oswald who is an official of the committee anywhere in the United States."

Lee went from New York City to Buffalo for a speaking engagement.

New York police, fearing possible reprisal from outraged citizens after news of Oswald's association with the committee became public, sent 11 men to guard the committee headquarters — third-floor offices at Broadway and 11th St. During the night the force was reduced to six, who still stand guard.

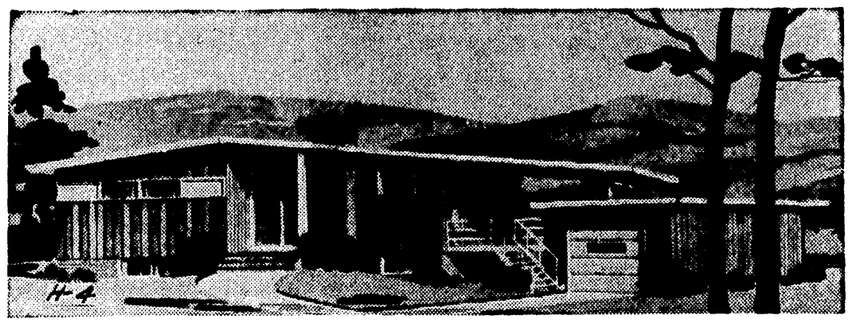
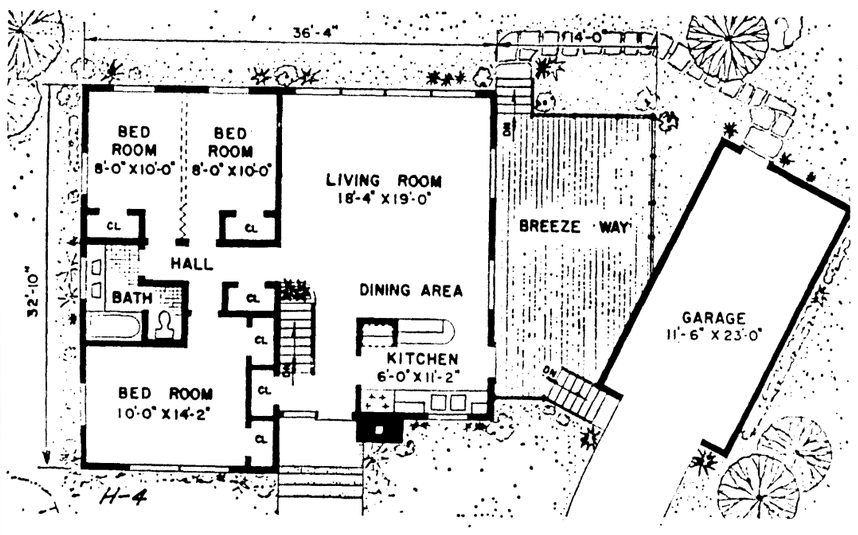
THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK

For Suburbia, Lakeside Or Retirement, A Fine Ranch



CONTEMPORARY STYLING: A free and uncluttered exterior facade is in perfect harmony with the open floor plan of this elegant little two or three bedroom home. The breezeway between house and garage could be screened or enclosed if desired.



FLOOR PLAN: The basic area of this house is a modest 1,100 square feet. Optional wall divides the two family bedrooms, or else designates one of the rooms as a den. Basement is located beneath the entire living area of the house.

This stylish little ranch type home was designed especially for modest sized families with modest sized incomes, but its contemporary design and straightforward room arrangement make it ideal for two other uses as well.

The house would make an excellent second home — a lakeside or mountain retreat suitable for any time of year and any type of climate. Or it would be ideal for retirement; not so large it would burden a housekeeper, but with plenty of room when the grandchildren come to visit.

A key feature of the design is an optional wall which would convert it from a two-bedroom to a three-bedroom home. If a master bedroom and a small second bedroom is all that a family requires, the wall still could be built and the additional room converted into a den.

The house is design H-4 in the weekly series, a product of architect William G. Chirgotis. Its basic area is 1,000 square feet not counting the breezeway and garage; dimensions are 32'-10" deep by 50'4" wide including the 14' breezeway, and the angled garage projects another 16'.

The architect's treatment of the garage and breezeway deserve special mention. The breezeway is at the level of the main floor, a few steps above grade level, and can be screened or enclosed as an extension of the living area.

Placed at an angle, the garage adds interest to the contemporary facade of the house, becoming a part of the design rather than merely an appendage.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

The free and uncluttered exterior of the house is in perfect harmony with the open living pattern within — a pattern characterized by maximum use of every square foot of floor space.

A cathedral ceiling, which follows the roof line, increases the feeling of spaciousness in the combination living room and dining area. This is further enhanced by floor to ceiling four-sectional picture windows with bottom ventilating hinged sashes at the rear of the living room.

The kitchen is located at the front of the house, an ideal arrangement which puts both the main entry foyer and a side service entrance only a few steps away. An excellent feature and fine example of Chirgotis' spacesaving skill is the kitchen serving counter. It provides handy access to the dining room, gives additional countertop work area, and can be used as a built - in breakfast bar.

Another benefit of the open serving counter is that it permits a view of the backyard directly across the living room. The front yard, of course, is visible through the window above the double sink.

The bedroom area is nicely laid out with an abundance of closet space, excellent ventilation and just enough hall space to permit easy circulation.

The house contains a full basement — but it isn't just another dreary cellar; far from it. This basement has sliding glass windows above grade level, allowing plenty of natural light and air so that it becomes, in effect, bonus living area. The area can be developed to the owner's taste for recreation, storage and laundry facilities.

The garage is single-car width, but it also has built-in storage space because of its extra length. A separate door at the rear is handy for putting away garden tools, lawn chairs and the like.

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La. and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-4.

Famed Arkansas Choir Scheduled For Appearance

RUSTON (Special) -- Schola Cantorum of the University of Arkansas, a famed choir, will appear as the next Louisiana Tech Concert Assn. attraction in Howard Auditorium here on Dec. 7.

A student concert is scheduled for 1:15 p.m. and a performance for the public will be given at 8 p.m.

The University of Arkansas group is the first American choir to win first place in the Guido d'Arezzo International Polyphonic competition in Italy.

The choir, consisting of 15 men and 16 women and directed by Richard Brothers, competed last August with 26 of the world's finest musical groups.

After being refused financial assistance for the trip by the American National Theater and Academy, the group received the money from friends and well - wishers all over the state of Arkansas. They went to Italy, won the "International," and returned to the United States to present a command performance for President Kennedy and the same day appeared in the new Senate Office Building in Washington, D.C.

No Evidence Reds Involved

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department authorities said Saturday they have no evidence indicating involvement of the Soviet Union or any other foreign power in the assassination of President Kennedy.

Lee Harvey Oswald, a former Marine who spent three years in the Soviet Union, has been charged with the shooting in Dallas, Tex., Friday.

When Oswald, 24, went to Russia he announced his intention to renounce his American citizenship. He told the U. S. Embassy in Moscow he was a Marxist.

After having a change of mind and returning to the United States last year, Oswald reportedly became an active sympathizer of Prime Minister Fidel Castro's Cuba.

State Department authorities said they also know of no evidence that Cuba was involved in the assassination.

Property Tax Returns Coming In 'Very Well'

Ouachita Parish property tax returns are continuing to come in very well, reported C. D. Meredith, chief civil deputy for the Sheriff's Department tax division.

As of Nov. 21, a total of $178,568.66 had been received so far this month.

No large corporation taxes have been paid to date, Meredith said, with the exception of the homestead exemption.

"We appreciate the early response," continued the deputy, "especially on these small individual amounts. Prompt payment of these taxes lessens the responsibility of our office to the public toward the end of December."

"The public is urged to attend to the payment of these taxes as soon as possible, especially those people who have not received tax notices through the mail," Meredith said.

"We also urge all mailing checks in to attach the yellow notice to the payment to help facilitate the handling of the accounts," he added.

Total collectable taxes for this year amount to $4,708,549.30, according to Meredith. Deadline for payment is December 31.

BILLY HARGISS

Billy Hargiss To Head State Beauty Pageant

The past president of the Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce, Billy Hargiss, will be general chairman and director of the Miss Louisiana Pageant for 1964, announced Monroe Jaycee president Jack Murphy.

Hargiss, manager of a local advertising firm, and past president of the local Jaycees, made the following statement upon acceptance of the job:

"Sponsoring it is one of the greatest responsibilities ever undertaken by the Monroe Jaycees. With the encouragement, help and cooperation of the people of Monroe, as we have experienced in the past with such projects as the 1960 Air Show, the Ole Fashioned 4th of July and the Oral Polio Vaccine Project, the Monroe Jaycees will be able to produce a pageant of which Monroe and Louisiana can be justly proud."

The pageant director said that a meeting has been scheduled for Monday night to set a date for the pageant. He announced the following Jaycees as members of the pageant committee:

Also participating with the committee in an advisory capacity will be Mrs. Lou Fleeman of Lake Providence, a member of the Miss America Advisory Board and a national coordinator for the Miss Louisiana Pageant.

Traffic Counts Keep Lawmen Busy Saturday

Traffic violations topped police activities in the Twin Cities Saturday when both city departments logged numerous driving counts.

Otis Dean Washington, 31-year-old Bosco Negro, was booked at 1:10 a.m. for DWI, reckless driving, no driver's license and improper mufflers. He was taken into custody in the 2600 block of Renwick Street and released under bonds totaling $543. At 3 a.m., Harold L. Tademy, 20, Negro, of 903 Burrough St., was booked for DWI, reckless driving and speeding after being arrested at S. 12th and Orange Street. Bond was set at $455. Another Negro, Colie Bud Marzett, 63, 510 Jack McHenry St., was booked for DWI and reckless driving at 3:25 p.m. Saturday. He was taken into custody in the 2500 block of South Grand Street after being involved in a collision with three other cars.

West Monroe police booked an 18-year-old Negro, Jimmie Earl Goff, Dunlap Street, Monroe, for DWI at 11 p.m. late Friday. He was taken into custody on North 4th street on the charge.

The West Monroe department was also probing a theft report late Saturday. Maurice H. Pearson, 1303 N. 2nd St., reported that a 7.65 mm-Mauser pistol, blue steel with wood grips, was taken from his residence along with a hunting knife and scabbard and toy pistol and scabbard.

Family Breaks News Of Death To JFK's Father

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) —A heart-sick family broke the sad news Saturday to ailing Joseph P. Kennedy that his son was assassinated.

A doctor was in the family midst for fear disclosure of the tragedy might worsen the condition of the 75-year-old patriarch of the Kennedy clan.

The elder Kennedy's reaction was not known outside the sprawling white house overlooking Nantucket Sound where he and President Kennedy sailed and frolicked in happier days.

Running the Scales

By JOHN CALE

Tennessee Williams and Guiseppe Verdi are in the news this week. The former's "Glass Menagerie" will open at Strauss Playhouse here Friday for a split six-day run, a Little Theatre of Monroe production.

If you want Verdi, both Shreveport and Dallas are running operas by him — "Trovatore" in Shreveport and "Masked Ball" in Dallas.

The Shreveport production will open the 15th season of the city's Civic Opera Tuesday at 8 p.m. Apparently, it's a one-night-only affair at the Municipal Auditorium following a free Act II preview for children and students at 3 p.m. today.

Reports from the Red River city say that stage director Rexford Harrower of Amsterdam, Holland, has already arrived with the Italian - designed scenery. There are eight scene changes. Harrower said this was part of a new venture for him and his associate, N. G. Fiore, of the Casa D'Arte Fiore costume company of Italy.

The company is trying to bring a "La Scala" atmosphere to America where such full - scale production of opera is generally unknown. The "Trovatore" settings cover 4,000 yards of material which will extend into the upper reaches of the Shreveport stage. It will require stage hands three days to mount on over 50 lines.

As for the music, those who recall the old Marx Brothers movie, "Night at the Opera" would feel right at home with "Trovatore." The boys had a wonderful time with that one, dropping a fruit stand smack beside Azucena the gypsy as she crooned some evil prophecy.

Dallas

Farther to the West, Verdi's onstage again in the Dallas Civic Opera's presentation of "The Masked Ball." The production today will wind up the civic opera season for the Texas city, although there will be a presentation of Handel's "Messiah" by the organization in December.

By the way, Dallas will also be the location for regional auditions for the Juilliard School of Music, according to Dr. Peter Mennin, president of the school. Scholarship auditions will be held January 8-9 for orchestral instruments: violin, viola, cello, string bass, oboe, English horn, bass clarinet, bassoon, trumpet, trombone, bass trombone, tuba and French horn.

Auditions for scholarships in opera theatre will be held February 12. High school graduates of next spring are eligible to participate in these auditions as well as performers on the college and graduate levels. Complete information may be obtained from Mrs. Betty Lief Sims, Juilliard Association of North Texas, 6430 Prestonshire Lane, Dallas.

Value of Art

Suddenly, the art world has been shaken by the emergence of Andrew Wyeth. He painted a picture and collected money for it. He got $65,000 for one painting. This might be the greatest sum paid a living American artist for one effort.

Now and then, someone raises the question of how much a certain work of art is worth. It's a query which defies every reasonable attempt to give a straight answer.

Unlike rare coin collecting, art collecting requires investment capital and at least a degree of intelligence to understand how the collectors reach their decisions as to the value of certain paintings.

Scarcity has something to do with it, for example. Picasso realizes this, and therefore keeps many of his paintings off the market for fear of driving down his own fabulous prices.

For the past 10 years, Jackson Pollack's drippings and streamings have yielded big money. But the value climbed only after Pollack was dead.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

How To Build Up Book Collection

By FRANCIS FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Building up a Library Collection is a matter of adding to the subject fields, which patrons of the Library need as well as providing the latest books for home reading. This week we have a wide variety in the non-fiction field and there are books which are certain to interest everyone. "A Guide to Mushrooms and Toadstools' by Lange is an interesting and informative book. Many people in this area are interested in horses and complain that they do not find information when they come to the Library. We do have a number of books on the subject, but not enough to meet the demand. We are working to build up this collection and this week there are three new titles. "The Quarter Horse Breeder" by M. H. Lindeman is the basic text and reference on the American Quarter Horse. "The Horse, it's Action and Anatomy" by Lowes D. Lurad should be very valuable for a person who wants to paint or draw pictures of horses. "Light Horse Breeds" by John W. Patton discusses the origin, characteristics and principal uses of the different light horse breeds. Another book of interest to sportsmen is "Companion Dogs: How to Choose, Train and care for Them" written by Arthur Liebers. Cookbooks enthusiasts will welcome a new book by Craig Claiborne called "An Herb and Spice Cook Book."

Books about far - away places are always interesting and there are a number of such books in this week's category. "A Guide to Crete" by John Bowman would be invaluable to the traveller, planning to visit this interesting island. "Turkey" by Miroslav Zikmund is a beautifully illustrated and fascinating book. The same author has also done one on "Kurdistan" a land about which most of us know very little. Bernard Lewis is the author of "Istanbul and the Civilization of the Ottoman Empire, a most enlightening book. "Asia A to Z" is the latest book by Robert S. Kane and is a gold mine of information about countries of Asia.

Black Peasants and Voodoo' is the sub-title of Alfred Metraux's volume on Haiti and gives a good description of it's contents.

Biographies are always in demand and there is an interesting variety from which the reader can choose this week. "Andrew Johnson" is the title of the biography by Margaret, Shaw Royall, which sheds much new light on the reconstruction period and which will be very valuable to students of American history. "Robert E. Lee" by Philip Van Doren Stern is an excellent biography of the man and the soldier and it too should be useful to students of American history. Biographies of two literary figures should be useful. One is "The Early Years of Alec Waugh" written by Mr. Waugh himself. The other is "From Pampas to Hedgegrows and Downs" by Richard E. Haymaker. This is the study of the life and work of W. H. Hudson. "338171 TE" by Victoria Ocampo is an account of the activities of Lawrence of Ariabia. It is a true story, but reads like a spy thriller. "Men of the Contrail Country" by Ed Mack Miller is a collection of accounts of famous air pilots. "Earnest Victorians" by Robert A. Rosenbaum contains informations about six of the outstanding Victorian figures who molded the thought and life of England of that period.

BUS WITH THE BETA

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There's at least one big reason for the popularity of Beta Theta Pi fraternity men with coeds at Ohio State University — a 30-passenger bus.

The fraternity purchased the one-time school bus during the summer, and it's sent out each school day at lunch time to circle the campus and bring the Betas back to their house to eat.

Each week, they also select a sorority to transport, and the bus stops also for coeds from that house.

Stretch Lace On Lingerie Is Luxury

The age - old conflict between comfort and practicality seems to be solving itself in the instance of ladies' lingerie even before it has gotten a good start.

Perfected techniques with stretch cottons promised non-cutting shoulder straps, as well as bras and slips that give with body expansion and still retains its shape.

However, these dandy features seemed to rule out any asthetic treatments, such as lace. Recently the lace industry corrected this impression by announcing that it has also found a way to put a little give and take in its fancy fabric.

Still, the stretch lace on stretch lingerie will require a stretched budget for the woman who wants it. The lace itself costs twice as much as the already old fashioned non-stretch kind.

Roominess Is Big News In Handbags For Fall

There's a "big story" in leather handbag fashions this fall. In every shape, with every costume and for every occasion, women will be carrying large, spacious leather bags.

Hundreds of bags in luxurious leather textures, rich fall hues and smart shapes will be found this year. From the long, slim envelope to the tall, broadbased tote, this season's handbags are elegant to the eye, light in hand and practical in use.

The swing to bigger bags originates with the trend to fashions keyed to casual living. A larger, wider bag completes the custom look of the costume — as it finishes off the simple yet graceful lines of a tailored coat or suit.

The extra roominess of the new bags won't be exactly unwelcome to women who must carry so much whenever they leave home base. And handbag designers have given free rein to their imaginations, producing a huge variety of bags in grained, smooth, brushed and suede leathers.

This season's deep leather colors enhance the oversize bag image. Oblongs and squares in darkened greens, vintage hues, deep reds make a big splash against plaids, woolens and leather coats. In handbags and other leather accessories this season, it is equally smart to mix colors as to coordinate.

For dressy daytime costumes, grain and smooth leather bags look deceptively slender and streamlined. Envelopes, barrel-shaped bags and boxes show up well in the big, broad lines.

Casual costumes call for totes, satchels and pouches — again in large but not bulky proportion. Grained, brushed, smooth and antiqued leathers add a simple but smart note to suits and separates. Hardware is subdued, even on casual bags, except for teenage fashions where buckles, initials and fad emblems abound.

WASH BAKSETS

Before putting bread, fruit, or other table foods into new baskets, swish these through warm soap or detergent suds and rinses.

This is a sanitary precaution because most such baskets are made by hand — mainly in foreign countries — and go through countless other hands before reaching your home.

Yule Projects Planned By Garden Club

A program on Christmas decorations and plans for Christmas projects highlighted the November meeting of the Welcome Garden club held Monday afternoon at Julia Wossman Recreation Center.

Mrs. J. W. Golson, president, asked members to take home a doll to dress for the Salvation Army Christmas project and plans were also made to help with decorations for six convalescent homes in the Twin Cities in December, one week before Christmas.

A report was given on the district garden club meeting held in Tallulah in October, which five members of the club attended. New members were welcomed into the club.

Mrs. Alfred Christensen, program chairman, prsented Mrs. Henry Haas Jr., whose talk was on "Anticipating Christmas." Among the many holiday decorations she displayed was a door painting for use on doors or walls in artistic forms on backgrounds of reds and greens. She also used black candle holders with candles in white or gold for an added Spanish touch.

A moment of silent prayer was offered for Mrs. Marie Frazier, a member of the club, whose death was in October, followed by the benediction by Mrs. Amiee Cook.

Refreshments were served at conclusion of the afternoon by the hostesses, Mrs. Miller Christie, Mrs. H. G. Thompson, Mrs. D. C. Golson, Miss Fannie Oxford and Mrs. W. C. Feazel.

Members present were Mrs. J. L. Warren, Mrs. W. V. Clark, Mrs. Amiee Cook, Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, Mrs. E. L. Pipe, Mrs. C. T. Johnson, Mrs. R. B. Henry, Mrs. L. A. Branch, Mrs. J. R. Williams, Mrs. K. R. Young, Mrs. John Vernon, Mrs. M. M. Tabb, Mrs. E. A. Porter, Mrs. Lela K. Breard, Mrs. W. L. Ellis, Mrs. M. W. Montgomery, Mrs. S. W. Raby, Mrs. C. H. Modes, Mrs. D. C. Golson, Mrs. Miller Christie, Mrs. Fred Stricklin.

MISS MYRON CECILLE MOORE

Myron Cecille Moore To Wed Paul L. Bradley

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Myron Cecille Moore to Paul Lawrence Bradley is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Moore of Oak Grove. The future bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Helen Bradley of Oak Grove and John Bradley of Lewisville, Miss.

The wedding is planned for Sunday, December 22 at 4 p.m. in Sacred Heart Catholic Church at Oak Grove, with Father Germaine performing the ceremony.

A graduate of Oak Grove high school, Miss Moore is at present a student at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston.

Mr. Bradley was graduated from Oak Grove high school and is presently attending Northeast Louisiana State College. Following their marriage the couple will reside in Monroe where both will continue studies at Northeast.

Parker-Corbin Vows Read In First Baptist Church

First Baptist Church, Monroe was scene of the ceremony Friday, November 22 which united in marriage Miss Marilyn Ann Corbin and Charles Irving Parker. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. William Allan Corbin, 3405 Richmond, and Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Parker, 714 South Second, Monroe.

Jardinieres of white gladioli and branched candelabra holding tall white tapers, entwined with Southern smilax formed a setting for the exchange of vows at 7 p.m. with Rev. James T. Horton officiating. Pews were marked with white satin bows and smilax.

A program of wedding music was presented by James Perkins, organist and Dale Martha, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a short gown of white peau de soie, fashioned with fitted bodice, scoop neckline, elbow length sleeves and a full gathered skirt. Her veil of illusion fell elbow length from an open crown pillbox of white peau de soie. She wore white wrist length gloves and white satin slippers. Her bouquet comprised a spray of stephanotis centered with a white orchid atop a white Bible. Her only adornment was a single string of pearls.

Mrs. Thomas Edwin Davis, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Mrs. James Morris Parker, sister - in - law of the groom, served as bridesmaid. They wore identical gowns of crimson chromspun taffeta, with fitted bodices, deeply scooped back necklines, brief sleeves and full skirts. Circular nose length veils attached to bows of the crimson taffeta formed their headpieces and they wore strands of pearls, gift of the bride. Matching slippers and short white gloves completed their costumes and they carried nosegays of white chrysanthemums.

James Morris Parker served as best man for his brother. Candles were lighted by Donald Crawford Corbin, brother of the bride and Charles Hill, who with Thomas Edwin Davis and Tommy Poulan also served as ushers. Ring bearer was George M Corbin, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Corbin chose for the occasion a coffee - colored seeded crepe in sheath sytle with accessories of darker tones of coffee and a corsage of bronze chrysanthemums. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Parker, was wearing a sheath of Nile green with nude accessories and a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the social room of the church. All tables were covered with white satin floor length cloths. The guest book table held a white memory candle, encircled with greenery. The bride's bouquet was placed at the base of the tiered wedding cake which centered the round cake table. Crystal punch services were placed at each end of the refreshment table which was centered with an arrangement of white mums and white tapers in a silver footed epergne. Twin arrangements of white gladioli in white jardinieres formed a background for the receiving line.

Mrs. Hubert Trichel and Mrs. Harold Norman served the cake and Miss Jan Reagan and Miss Carolyn Causey poured punch. Miss Judy Atwell presided at the guest book and Miss Dot Rambin and Miss Sally Norman acted as tea girls and also distributed rice bags.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans the couple will be at home in Monroe. For going-away the bride changed into a mink trimmed champagne wool suit with which she wore a mink pillbox and malt patent accessories. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet.

The bride is a senior at Ouachita Parish high school. Mr. Parker will graduate in January from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute with a degree in industrial engineering. He is a member of Tau Beta Pi honorary fraternity.

Mohair Takes On Many Faces In Fashions

Mohair is everywhere in coats . . . suits . . . dresses. There are stunning solid-colored and printed prebrushed mohair souffle coatings. Many are matched with a companion dress fabric. Mohair takes on many faces. . . loop surfaces . . . plump curls . . . a chinchilla look . . . a furry look . . . and the long shaggy hair mohair.

The mood called "the sportive look" has brought a revival of tweeds. The fall silhouette is so slim and lean that fabrics can show off to advantage. Many tweeds have some of the precious fur fibers of reindeer hair combined with wool. Here again companion tweeds, either brushed or plain, are the designer's delight.

Knits are bigger than ever and also create the sportive look. But even bigger news is the use of knits for cocktail and evening fashions. Many of the knit fabrics take on a formal look through the use of jet, gold and silver yarns.

Suedes and simulated suedes run rampant in coats, vests, skirts, jumpers, dresses. They are combined in every conceivable design with tweeds and knitted fabrics.

Designers are doing themselves proud this year.

Social Events Planned For Bar Association Mid-Winter Convention

A schedule of social activities planned during the Mid-Winter convention of the Louisiana State Bar Association, to be held in Monroe December 12-14, with the 4th District Bar Association as host, was announced this weekend.

Wives of members of the Fourth District Bar Association, are serving on the planning committee to entertain visiting delegates and their wives.

William Brown is general chairman for the convention with Jesse McDonald serving as chairman of the social activities. Lewis D. Smith is president of the 4th district Bar Association.

Registration will be held Thursday, December 12 from 2 until 5 p.m. at the Frances Hotel. Meetings will begin on Friday morning and continue through Saturday noon.

A cocktail party is planned for Thursday night from 7 until 9 p.m. at the Lotus Club and on Friday morning, December 13 a sherry party and coffee will be given for the visiting ladies. The event will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert Layton.

Members of the bar association and their wives will meet for luncheon Friday noon at the Frances Hotel and a dinner dance is scheduled that night at Bayou DeSiard Country Club, starting at 7 p.m. The convention will end at noon Saturday.

Mrs. Kent Breard, Mrs. Thomas Leigh and Mrs. John Theus are in charge of the ladies activities, with other wives of local bar association members assisting.

Necklines Are Lowdown This Season

Anybody who has the lowdown on Christian Dior designer Mark Bohan's low-low down necklines is aware that no young lady dares lean over to pick up her own handkerchief this season.

In New York the celebrities are making the rounds of American designers in search of bosom - revealing cocktail and dinner gowns, and with good luck.

Besides plunging V's and deep U's, are also necklines that slash to the midriff, sending male blood pressure soaring.

The safest low - neck version around is the garment district Hannah Troy's with a drawstring that ties up the modesty problem nicely.

PREVENT CUP STAINS

You can prevent your plastic cups from developing tea and coffee stains if you add a couple of teaspoons of baking soda to the wash water regularly. If minor staining has already occurred, it can often be erased by applying the soda dry with a damp sponge. This will not scratch the finish of the cups.

Christmas Ideas Given Northeast Women's Club

Christmas Decorations for the Home was the program theme when the Northeast Louisiana State College Women's Club met Monday, November 18 at the College Union Auditorium.

Mrs. Daniel Dupree, president, conducted the business meeting during which it was announced that in memory of Dean Harry Lemert the Women's club would contribute to the Dr. Harry M. Lemert scholarship fund. The fund had been established to aid a student majoring in the fine arts.

Announcement was made of the Christmas banquet to be held December 14 in Gunby Dining Hall, by the chairman in charge, Mrs. Fred Vogel.

Mrs. D. V. Loftin, guest speaker for the evening, gave an instructive talk on Christmas Decorations for the Home, during which she demonstrated varied ideas for decorations during the yuletide season.

Refreshments were served from a gaily decorated banquet table which was covered with a Christmas cloth and centered with a pyramid arrangement of pink poinsettias accented by pink ornaments and silver foliage in a silver footed compote. The assorted party refreshments were made by the hostess committee who presented to each member and guest a booklet of the holiday recipes that were served.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. August Dantl, chairman; Mrs. Elton Barrett, co-chairman; Mrs. Robert Bobo, Mrs. W. C. Buchanan, Mrs. Robert DeMoss, Mrs. Leslie Fisher, Mrs. Prentice Gray, Mrs. Herman Sigler, Mrs. Derrell Spiva, Mrs. Lenice Stephen, Mrs. Jewell Watson, Mrs. Pauline Hyman, Mrs. Lake Oxford and Mrs. Wilbur Perkins.

Well, Its's face it. For your true Louisianian, rainy weather is homey and nice. And after what we've had the past several months, a misty, moisty morning is something to glory in. Take Wednesday and Thursday - - - - - weren't they lovely? A slow, steady gentle rain: fun to walk in; fit setting for Christmas shopping; good to come in out of.

(And how's that for ending a sentence with a preposition? Did you hear the classic with the five prepositions at the end? The little boy was sick in bed and his mother came upstairs with a book to read a story. His comment:: "What did you bring that book I didn't want to be read to out of up for?")

But we digress.

A steaming cup of coffee and cheery company was a double delight on Wednesday and Thursday. Several morning parties around town provided the needed glow after a ride through the rain.

On Wednesday morning, JUDY TURPIN and VELMA WILLEY entertained at Bayou DeSiard country club between the hours of ten and twelve. The party was held in the ballroom, where three refreshment tables, all covered with green, were placed the length of the room. On the round center table was a tall brass compote filled with yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, Bird of Paradise blooms, and not - quite - turned berries from the Burford holly.

Two long tables at each side were each decorated with one tall brass candlestick holding a golden candle tied with chrysanthemums. Copper coffee urns were placed at one end of each table. Those who poured were BARRIE SPENCER, GEORGIE TOUCHSTONE, ALMA NICHOLS, DOLLY DAWKINS, and VIRGINIA GUERRIERO. All who assisted wore corsages of copper colored chrysanthemums.

Opposite the coffee urns were copper chafing dishes holding cheese dip and hot crab dip. Trays of hot spiced tomato juice were passed. Other goodies included rum cakes, dainty sandwiches, cheese-wrapped almonds, several kinds of cookies.

On the porch, the refreshment table was centered with a foliage arrangement incorporating pine boughs, tallow tree branches, wheat stalks, and Buford holy berries. Others who assisted at the party were MARY ANN JOHNSTON, MARY FRANCES PERRY, DOT AMMAN, HUGH TOUCHSTONE, MARY EMMA WILSON, SNOOKY GODWIN, and MAE WALSWORTH.

□ □ □

Two of Monroe's most gifted hostesses combined their talents when MARY ELLEN WALKER and ELISE MAPP entertained at luncheon on Thursday. The party was held in the Walker home, which was decorated throughout in a harvest motif. In the living room, a pineapple - shaped form was completely covered with yellow chrysanthemums, with natural foliage at the top. First course for luncheon, hot Canadian cheese soup in demi - tasse cups, was served in this room before guests were invited to the table.

Red button chrysanthemums were used with fall foliage on the dining room table. The buffet held a candelabra with yellow candles and yellow chrysanthemums garlanded with natural oak leaves and gilded nuts.

Two other tables were set up in the family room. These held similar arrangements of bronze mums, yellow pompoms, wheat stalks and autumn leaves. Natural linen cloths covered all three tables, and placecards were tied with autumn leaves.

Decorations, of course, are Elise's department, while Mary Ellen is an inspired cook. The menu prepared for Thursday's party included, in addition to the above-named cheese soup: boned chicken breasts stuffed with ham and cheese and served with sherry sauce; asparagus with dill; and hot curried fruit. For dessert, grasshopper pie and coffee. Twenty-five ladies attended.

Leaving Thursday for Africa was VIRGINIA PIERCE, off for a visit with her children, PEGGY and RONALD WYATT in Dorkingkop.

On Tuesday, KITTY TALBOT and JACKIE CHAPMAN honored Virginia at a farewell luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club. The table in the main dining room was covered with a green cloth and centered with bronze chrysanthemums.

Wives of men in the new project engineering department at Olin were invited for luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club by ELAINE SHOUDY on Friday. The twenty - eight guests included a number of ladies who have moved to the Twin Cities in the past year and several who have lived here for a longer period. Three tables on the porch were each covered with a green cloth and appointed with green cyrstal. Centerpieces, each different, incorporated yellow candles with asters and fall foliage. At the center table, a ceramic duck highlighted an arrangement of dried flowers.

And speaking of newcomers, BETTY and WALTER HASTINGS have returned here after several years residence in Lake Charles. Betty was welcomed home with a luncheon given by BETTY MOORE Tuesday at Bayou DeSiard country club. A horizontal arrangement of pink chrysanthemums in a silver Revere bowl centered the table where six guests were seated.

BERNICE BARTLETT prepared a special menu Friday when she entertained at bridge-luncheon. Guests were members of a club with which Bernice is a frequent substitute. Lunch included devilled crab beans with almonds, and spiced fruit, with pumpkin pie for dessert. There were twelve guests.

Members of Bayou DeSiard country club are anticipating two special treats at the club this week. On Thursday, the traditional Thanksgiving buffet featuring turkey and all the trimmings will be served from noon until two - thirty . . . Saturday night is set aside for the season's first oyster roast. These affairs, vey popular with club members, feature oysters prepared in several ways; boiled shrimp; barbecued ribs; assorted salads; baked beans and draught beer, on an all-you-can-eat basis.

There's nothing like a trip out of town to celebrate a birthday. And for a growing up thirteen year old girl, what could top a trip to Dallas with birthday lunch at Neiman Marcus and lots of window shopping? This was the treat for ANN ALLEMAN on her thirteen birthday last weekend. She was accompanied by her friend MIMI PEAT. The girls, who went with grown up ALICE ALLEMAN, JEAN M'CALL, and ALICE PEAT, visited Ann's grandparents, MR. and MRS. E. O. SCOGGIN.

On her ninth birthday Monday, BETTY COLE invited ten little girls for al fresco supper at home. After Bingo games, hot dog supper was served, with cake and ice cream for dessert.

A circus party honored DEDE FRAZIER on her eighth birthday last Friday afternoon. Fifteen guests attended the party in the young people's room at Bayou DeSiard country club. The table was decorated with a large cut-out of a clown at one end; a sheriff at the other. Centerpiece was the birthday cake, a merry-go-round with a canopy and plastic animals. Tiny walking animals were favors at each place. A sandwich supper was served, with birthday cake and ice cream.

Entertainment was provided at Dede's party by FATHER BILL PROVOSTY with his electric guitar. He accompanied SUSAN HAYES in her impromptu rendition of "Hello, Mudder, Hello, Fadder" . . . Winners in the games were MELANIE WALKER for the limbo contest; JANE ZENTNER for musical chairs.

Always fun is a surprise party, shch as that given JIMMY BRIGHT last Saturday night. On his fourteenth birthday, Jimmy had a quiet family dinner and went out with his father to buy some new records. When they returned, fourteen friends had gathered for the surprise. There were games and dancing to the hi-fi. Refreshments included dips, bottled soft drinks, and birthday cake.

For our Thanksgiving poem, here are a few lines on "Pilgrims and Puritans" from Stephen Vincent Benet's "Book of Americans":

The Pilgrims and the Puritans were
Were English to the bone
But didn't like the English Church
And wished to have their own
And, so, at last they sailed away
To settle Massachusetts Bay.
The stony fields, the cruel sea
They met with resolution
And so developed, finally,
An iron constitution
And, as a punishment for sinners,
Invented boiled New England dinners.
They didn't care for Quakers but
They loathed gay cavaliers
And what they thought of clowns and plays
Would simply burn your ears
While merry tunes and Christmas revels
They deemed contraptions of the Devil's.
But Sunday was a gala day
When, in their best attire,
They'd listen with rejoicing hearts,
To sermons on Hell Fire,
Demons I've Met, Grim Satan's Prey,
And other topics just as gay.
And so they lived and so they died,
A stern but hardy people.
And so their memory goes on
In school house, green and steeple,
In elms and turkeys and Thanksgiving
And much that still is very living.
And when we face a bitter task
With resolute defiance,
And cope with it, and never ask
To fight with less than giants
And win or lose, but seldom yell
Why, that's the Puritan as well.

HOSTESSES FOR COFFEE on Wednesday morning were Mrs. Felix Willey Jr., and Mrs. Corbin Turpin, here pictured awaiting their guests in the ballroom of Bayou DeSiard country club. Centering the table was a tall brass compote overflowing with bronze mums, Birds of Paradise blooms, and Buford holly berries. Approximately two hundred guests called between the hours of ten and twelve.

Cocktail Table Defined An American Institution

To Americans, basic furniture apparently includes something to sleep on, something to eat on, something to sit on, and a cocktail table.

Actually American aren't exclusive in their preference for this useful and decorative piece of furniture. Its ancestry is at least as old as ancient Greece. Drawings show that tables similar to our modern cocktail table were in abundance, often used next to a couch for serving food and drink.

Today the range of cocktail tables includes every imaginable size, shape, color and design. Because of their relative smallness, expensive veneers are often used. Materials and embellishments such as leather, inlaid bandings, marble, and centered medallions are frequently seen in furniture lines that generally offer several choices within one group.

In selecting a cocktail table, the Home Furnishings Industry Committee recommends that you consider several points.

The lines, not the size, of the cocktail table should be compatible with other furniture. A long slender sofa may have a large total size, but the slender lines, rather than the overall bigness, should guide you in selecting a complimentary table.

Ski Clothes Are Worn On Slopes Or Off

Ski looks are fashion news this year. And designers are making fashion news with a new and spirited line of ski clothes that are A-OK off the slopes and on. They're young, they're fun and the colors are loud and clear.

In choosing ski wear, whether you're planning to improve your slalom or off to build a snowman, the outfit is much the same.

Start with stretch pants — they're the cornerstone of any ski outfit and should be your first consideration. Tapered for figure flattery and in a variety of weights, they also come in proportioned lengths to insure that thoroughbred look.

Add color-coordinated tops to your taste from a giddy selection of textures and shapes — bright patterned knit sweaters with Scandinavian and Tyrolean motifs — easy and comfortable parkas and racing shells — fuzzy - warm tow coats and the exciting new fake furs. There are even "walkjankers" the popular "boiled" jackets. And to wear with them all — for a snap of contrasting color — the universal ski undergarment, the turtleneck sweater.

Enliven Room With Bright Accessories

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: We have an old Victorian style house and the furniture I brought with me is contemporary. Sofa is burnt orange, two chairs are covered in a black, brown and white tweed. Rug is also tweed in these colors. Walls are autumn beige. There is a marble fireplace in the room as well as a bay window and two windows on another wall. I have not brought draperies as yet and would like to know how to treat the windows. Also, what should be the focal point of the room and how can I bring life into what is now an uninteresting room? Would gold draperies for two windows and white for the bay be all right?

A: Treat all the windows alike and in a beige, somewhat lighter than walls. Make the fireplace the center of interest by furniture arrangement and by a strong interest over and around the fireplace, such as handsome painting above the mantel and good fireplace accessories. Enliven the room with other attractive objects and paintings. Use bright orange for some accessories and for pillows.

FORTHCOMING marriage of Miss Joy Fae Dowdle to Bobby O'Neal McLemore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Odell McLemore of Huttig, Ark., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Dowdle of Delight, Ark. The wedding will take place December 6 in the home of the bride-elect's sister, Mrs. M. C. Canterberry at 7:30 p.m. After a short wedding trip the couple will reside in El Dorado, where both are employed.

Review Club Has Study On Civil War

The bi-monthly meeting of the Review Club was held in the new home of Mrs. Thomas Dansby at 3703 Gouville Drive, Monday, November 18.

Mrs. W. T. Davis, president, called the meeting to order and lead the members in repeating the club collect. Mrs. L. V. Henderson, Jr. from Duero, Texas was introduced as guest of Mrs. Dansby's.

Observance of Thanksgiving was presented by Mrs. Davis as she gave a short devotion and closed with a prayer. Plans were made to remember honorary members at Christmas.

The Education Chairman, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Jr. announced that information had been received regarding a literary sorority, Epsilon Sigma Omicron. It was noted that the local library would help any interested persons to meet the requirements of membership.

Mrs. Claude Smith, public affairs chairman announced that the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs will meet in New Orleans December 9 and 10 where the slogan "Women's Crusade for Seat Belts" will be used.

Pennies were collected by Mrs. Nat Spencer, fine arts chairman, to be used by Louisiana Federated Womens Clubs to sponsor the annual "Pennies for Art" contest.

The program for the afternoon, "Through Retrospection" was introduced by Mrs. DeWitt Henry. She explained that retrospection is obtained by an accumulation of experiences from the past. With this definition in mind Mrs. Craig Morgan reviewed the book "The Civil War in Louisiana" by John D. Winter. This work gives a complete picture of the military action without losing focus of the other elements involved: politics, economics, and social interaction. It presents a picture of the people of Louisiana during the tramatic experiences of seccession and civil war. Mrs. Morgan had the unique experience of helping type this book from manuscript for which the author included her name in the book. A copy of a newspaper printed in 1925 was shown to the members for it contained a letter written Dec. 23, 1896, by Mrs. Morgan's great grandfather who served on the gunboat, Webb, mentioned in the book.

With this background on the Civil War, Mrs. James Brown, reviewed the book "Judah Benjamin" by S. I. Neiman, a history and discussion of the life and times of Judah Benjamin.

At the conclusion of the afternoon a dessert course was served the members in the formal dining room where Mrs. Davis assisted at the coffee service. Members attending were Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. W. T. Davis, Mrs. Thomas Dansby, Mrs. Calvin Folds, Mrs. Herschel Gentry, Jr., Mrs. Allen Givens, Mrs. Prentice Gray Jr., Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Mrs. W. M. Inabnet, Mrs. John Loftin, Mrs. Craig Morgan, Mrs. Claude Smith, Mrs. Sam Smith, Mrs. Nat Spencer, Mrs. George Walker, and the guest.

Scots Complain About Skirts On Women

American men may dislike women in pants, but Scotsmen are complaining about women in skirts, kilts, that is.

Scotsmen have been deserting the kilt because the girls insist on wearing them. At national dance competitions the ladies wear the full Highland regalia, from buckled shoes to sporran and feathered bonnets.

The Scotsmen indignantly point out that this costume is traditional masculine attire. Ladies are supposed to wear the "aboyn": full tartan skirt, white blouse, velvet weskit, bare legs and ballet slippers, a ribbon in the hair.

Swim Suits In Leather On Horizon

Years ago a bathing beauty would have done more sinking than swimming in such a suit. However, recent technological improvements have produced a light weight, malleable leather which kisses off water and retains its (and the wearer's) shape.

Bosoms Back For Evening

By FLORENCE DeSANTIS

Fashion may be all sportswear by day, but evenings this year will be happy hours for girl watchers. Dior has brought back bosoms, figuring that we should go Empire all the way.

That fashion period was one of demure dress lines and startlingly uncovered bosoms. At Dior the idea was developed in dresses that V'd way down to there, square necklines that cut across you-know-where, sweetheart necklines anything but demure in the low cut.

To accent his meaning, Marc Bohan showed his lace dresses with revealing necklines with big pins right where the cleavage ended. No more of this covered look for Mr. B. He's giving men something to look forward to, and girls with decollete something to be proud of. Flat chests are out, and bosoms are back.

"We do a big business with the girls selling cotton knit pullovers," says one Westchester county, N.Y., department store clerk. "The ones we carry are a couple of dollars cheaper than those are upstairs," he says, indicating the girls' high school shop.

Flower Bedecked Purse Smart Look This Season

More and more fashionable women are pinning flowers on their handbags, a leading New York floral designer reports.

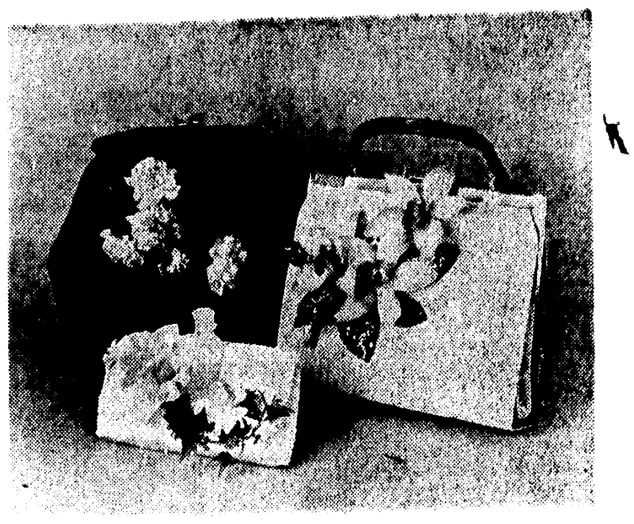
The fragrance of the flowers can be enjoyed, and the appearance of a flower-bedecked purse is very smart this season.

If the bag is of fabric, simply attach the corsage with a pair of long florists' pins, suggests the Society of American Florists. The tiny pin holes won't be visible when the flowers have been removed.

With leather handbags, use strips of transparent plastic tape. These will hold the flowers firmly in place and will do no harm to fine leather.

The same care should be exerted in choosing flowers to be worn on handbags as is taken at any other time. A delicate cattleya orchid is perfect for a dainty satin bag. Carnations, for example, would be more suitable for a leather bag to be worn with a tailored suit. Two or three small orchids of the cymbidium variety are also good on a more sporty bag.

Your imagination and the guidance of your florist can know no bounds when it comes to other variations.



Why Grow Old

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

New experiences add zest to life! Every time you hang back and refuse an invitation or a chance to try your wings with a new experience or pass by an opportunity because you are shy, you grow a little older.

Every time you tackle something you were afraid of and make a success of it you feel and look 10 years younger. I think it really makes you younger because it broadens your horizons and increases your feeling of self-confidence and self respect.

Today so many women are active in civic, church, club and school affairs. Many thousands of them are called upon for the first time to make a speech now and then. Don't fail to accept this challenge whether it is to be a group of 20 people or 300. There are tricks which will help you, and you would not have been asked unless everyone feels that you are qualified to do the job or have something worthwhile to say.

Aline MacMahon, one of Hollywood's outstanding character actresses and veteran public speaker said, "It's a revolutionary idea, but I advise anyone who is asked to make a speech to request that they may speak before luncheon or dinner instead of afterwards.

MANY ADVANTAGES

"This has many advantages. The audience is more alert (I might add, so are you) and you will not be speaking to nervous watch - watchers, tired of sitting.' '

Miss MacMahon, who is currently re-creating her original Broadway role in the film "All The Way Home," began making speeches when she was selected president of her sophomore class at Barnard College. Her most recent appearance as a speaker was for the United States Information Service. The following are some more of her first aids, with all of which I thoroughly agree.

Don't read a prepared speech. You might as well pass out typewritten copies and let the audience read it themselves.

If you are going to speak before a microphone, test it ahead of time to be sure it is right for you.

Keep your voice conversational as if you were talking to the person across the table from you. A nervous speaker tends to become shrill. Consciously lower your tone.

TIGHT GIRDLE

If you have notes or statistics to read be sure ahead of time that the lighting is adequate.

When asked how a speaker should dress, Aline MacMahon said, "Dress comfortable. No woman can deliver a smooth address while a tight girdle pinches her ribs."

Perhaps the most important advice of all is, "Be yourself, and really feel what you are saying and all nervousness will pass."

I can just hear what the men who read this column are saying or thinking: "Women already talk enough. Why, oh why, does she have to urge them to talk more?"

MR. AND MRS. T. J. WILLIAMS

Candlelight Vows Unite Delhi Couple

The wedding of Miss Mary Jean Patrick, daughter of Mrs. Myrtle Patrick and the late E. J. Patrick of Delhi to T. J. Williams, Delhi, son of Mrs. Mildred Williams and the late J. V. Williams of Epps, was solemnized Saturday, November 9 in the First Baptist Church at Epps. Rev. Basil Halbert performed the double ring ceremony at 8 p. m.

Vows were exchanged before an arch entwined with greenery and centered with a white satin bow. Flanking the arch were seven branched candelabra and baskets of white gladioli and pompons.

Gary Miller played traditional wedding music.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Leo Coleman. Her short gown featured a fitted lace bodice and organaz skirt over white satin, with jewel neckline and long tapered sleeves. A bandeau of mock orange blossoms, edged with peau de soie held her shoulder length veil and she carried a bouquet of lily of the valley encircling a white orchid.

Mrs. Betty Treadway, matron of honor, wore a blue satin model with white organza overskirt and carried a bouquet of rose pixie carnations with matching tulle and satin streamers. Bridesmaids were Miss Gwendolyn Patrick and Miss Bobbie Joe Patrick, sisters of the bride, who wore gowns of pink satin with organza overskirts. They carried bouquets of rose pixie carnations with matching tulle and satin streamers.

Rochelle Morris served as best man and ushers were Tommy Morris and Lawrence Perry. Randy Slayter acted as ring bearer.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Patrick was wearing a pink wool suit with black accessories and a corsage of garnet roses. Mrs. Williams, mother of the groom, wore a brown tweed ensemble with orange accessories and a garnet rose corsage.

A reception followed in the church social room, where the bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth over blue. The bride's attendants bouquets were placed at the base of a triple branched candelabra, which formed the centerpiece. Miss Linda Copes and Mrs. C. E. Corley served cake and punch and tea girls were Miss Wanda Yeager and Miss Sharon Leggitt. Miss Bonnie McPherson, in charge of the bride's book, sat at a table which held the register, a memory candle and the bride's bouquet.

For a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark., the bride changed into a red wool suit with black accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. They will be at home in Delhi. Mrs. Williams, a graduate of Delhi high school, attended Northeast Louisiana State College. The bridegroom is a graduate of Epps high school.

ENGAGEMENT OF Miss Patricia Jeanette Cockerham, daughter of Mrs. Mary Cockerham and the late Arnold R. Cockerham, to Thomas Albert Herrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Herrington, all of Winnsboro, is announced by her mother. The wedding will be solemnized December 31 at 6 p.m. in Oak Grove Baptist Church near Winnsboro.

DIRT IS COSTLY

When dirt becomes entrenched any where, it costs you plenty in time and money — time for the back-breaking scrubbing that should never have been necessary, and money for the replacements required when things deteriorate from soil. It is never worth while to be negligent, when suds and water are so readily available, and so inexpensive.

Leather Fashions Still Big

Country and city clothes are kissin' cousins this fall, as country clothes, with all their casual flavor and marvelous mobility, have taken fashion by storm.

Expressing the insouciant look of town and country clothes to perfection is leather, smooth and suede.

Following this fashion theory, the full - length leather coat takes an important place in the fall wardrobe. Worn belted or loose, it is designed for easy movement. Style details are kept to a minimum — perhaps contrasting binding, novel buttons or unusual cut of a collar or neckline.

For warmth without weight when the frost sets in, leather coats of all lengths — fingertip, full or suburban — offer shearling linings, many of which conveniently zip out.

Last year's pet, the leather shift, is back, sassier than ever, in smooth leather and suede. Brushed with the shades of autumn—deep browns and greens, orange, winey red—this colorful favorite is often combined with a jacket or coat of contrasting leather or fabric for a fashionable costume.

Epitome of the sportive look is the casual leather suit composed of easy A-line skirt with cropped or high-riding jacket, in a rainbow of colors and smooth or suede textures. Late-day leather suits retain simplicity of line but take on the sparkle of jeweling or the softness of fur trim.

In separates, tailored leather jackets and overblouses team jauntily with shifts, skirts and sweaters, whether cashmere, mohair, tweeds or knits.

Schussing into the ski and apres-ski category is an assortment of smart leather outfits. Ski pants of smooth leather pair with smooth or suede parka or jacket, shearling lined. Apres-ski or at-home fashions show leather pants and long skirts partnered with tops of fabrics or leather or combinations of both. Imaginatively printed or embossed leathers make other fun toppings.

For evening are be-furred or be-jeweled leather capes and coats. Bronze and gold smooth leather appears elegantly in full length gowns or pants and top ensembles for the hostess.

EXOTIC JUNGLE LEOPARD is the fashion pattern for this new waterproof reversible raincoat by Dolphin. The smartly spotted "fur" print graces a luxurious taffeta and the coat reverses to a solid color bone in Dolphin's exclusive rain resisting fabric. There are roomy pockets on each side and buttons are self-covered and reversible for added good looks. Complete with an extra large, matching reversible kerchief.

Winter Coat Silhouette Varied

Shopping for coats should be a delight this fall because designers have outdone themselves in creating flattering silhouettes, interesting fabrics — and the most exciting color palette to date. Coat silhouettes in three basic shapes — full, slightly flared and oval — depend on meticulous tailoring, whatever the price level, reports the National Board of the Coat and Suit industry.

With padding eliminated, the new raglan shoulders are soft, their slightly increased width controlled with seaming.

Fabrics are brilliant and seemingly endless in inspiration. Bubbled, carved, twisted, blistered — furry, smooth, tight - woven or lush, surfaces are fashions in themselves. Tweeds are ropy or furry — some with mohair — as in a textured tweed of black, charcoal and white.

CHECKS CERTIFIED BY FASHION

Mohairs in solid tones are opulent, as are precious fur fibers and meltons. Worsteds are crisp and are given more body with new surfacing. Checks get fashion certification.

This season's coats look just that because of the numerous style changes. Sleeves are longer and slimmer, some with shirtcuffs. Higher lines are newly emphasized with more subtlety than the full-fledged empire look—a youthful indentation of the bustline. Capes and cape effects show up importantly in the coat picture. Buttons, large and striking, are twisted, gilt, elongated.

To fur or not to fur is every woman's own fashion decision, for there are coats sans fur with scarf or chin-deep collars, no collars — or small, unobtrusive lapel or wing types. When furred, coats lean to collars and cuffs of almost every pelt in the animal kingdom — minks in various tones, sable, nutria and beaver, black or natural; leopard, civet cat. Fox returns with all its flattery.

For elegance and toasty warmth, consider, the fur-liners, leading an inner life with sable for the sophisticated, civet cat for the sportive.

Slated for succes is the citified-sportive look with softly relaxed silhouette in soft, townish tweeds. Sometimes the touch of leather at buttons or trim gives these jauntiness. And all suede or leather is popular this fall for the true country air.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Adopted Children's Origin Can Be Checked

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: This past summer we spent three weeks at a lake resort. Our 17-year-old daughter Camille became infatuated with a young man from Scranton whose family had rented the cottage next to ours. Toward the end of the vacation they were together 18 hours a day.

Now that the love-birds are apart they are burning up the mails. He goes to school at Penn State so naturally she wants to go there next fall.

So what's the problem? Camille is adopted and so is the young man. They look so much alike it is frightening. What if these two are brother and sister?

I haven't mentioned this possibility to Camille but both my husband and I are deeply concerned. Advise us, please. — Q. P. J.

Dear Q. P. J.: The origin of adopted children can be checked by your attorney through the agency which arranged for the adoption. I suggest you discuss this situation with the boy's parents and compare reports. It's a million to one shot that these two are related but the possibility should be investigated, for your own peace of mind.

Dear Ann Landers: Please set a friend of mine straight. She is a nut who insists that daily dips in a certain little brook near her home have cured her backaches.

She tells everyone that last year at this time her back ached her so badly she could hardly do her housework. She wore a special corset and took three kinds of medicine. Finally her back got so bad she couldn't get a night's sleep, even with pills.

This spring she decided to take a dip in this little stream near her home, just to cool off. The stream is not deep enough to swim in. She just sort of dunked in it and floated around on her back. The woman insists that after the first dip her back showed definite improvement so she kept at it. Now she claims her back is as good as new.

I don't believe in magic and every time I hear her tell about the miraculous cure I boil. I've always found your column to be sane and sensible. Will you please dispose of this loon once and for all? — Irritated

Dear Irritated: It may well be that the soothing action of the current had some therapeutic value, or it may have relieved her of tension and made her feel better. So why don't you go back to whatever it was you were doing before you got so involved in this lady's business?

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married for 20 years and we are still very much in love. He has said over and over that he would never remarry if I should die first. Now, he wants me to promise him that I will never marry again if he goes first and frankly, I don't want to.

He seems to think this is a sign that I don't love him. Right now I feel that if my husband died first I'd probably grieve myself to death, but even so I don't want to make any promises.

Please print this letter and your answer. It's become a serious problem between us. — His and Hers

Dear H and H: It is impossible to predict what you feelings will be in 30 years.

Tell "His" that sometimes when a widower refuses to remarry it is because he had such a lousy time of it that he wouldn't risk a second calamity for all the tea in Ceylon. That should get him to change the needle on the broken record.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HE CHOSE TO CLEAN UP

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — A 22-year-old youth spent 45 minutes recently sweeping the sidewalk and gutter on both sides of Copper Street NW, between Fourth and Fifth, rather than spend 101 days in jail for breaking beer bottles in the area.

The young man, charged with violation of the antilitter ordinance, was given his choice of sweeping the side walk or spending a few days in jail, by Municipal Judge James A. Manloney.

He chose to sweep and the city provided him a broom.

CURTAIN CALL

Can anyone help us locate some miniature glass animals or reasonable facsimiles thereof to augment the collection we need for "The Glass Menagerie?" We thought these would be easy to find, but they have proved very elusive. If you know of any, please call Richard Clark at FA 3-1235.

With "The Glass Menagerie" scheduled to bow on Friday of the coming week, the box office on Lamy Lane will open Wednesday to take reservations. Box office hours will be 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday this week and next week.

The show itself will run Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, November 29, November 30 and December 1 and again the following weekend, December 6, 7 and 8. Members may secure advance reservations by using the form they received in last week's mail.

PARENTS PLAN

With so many students coming home for Thanksgiving weekend, we suggest that parents make plans for them to see "The Glass Menagerie," a play that is on the drama list of most college English departments. Lest it sound like stuffy required reading, let us hasten to add that Tennessee Williams is never dull. In this play he brings to life some unforgettable characters caught in a family situation that will bring flashes of recognition to every parent and grown up offspring.

If "The Glass Menagerie" is not light comedy, neither is it heavy drama. We believe it will prove a rewarding personal experience for each viewer and our sophisticated membership should flock to it.

CAST

The cast consists of Eula Davenport as the mother, Pauline Varino as the daughter, Bob Jones as the son and Claude Fuller as the gentleman caller. Jerilyn Gilstrap is assistant to executive director Richard M. Clark and Lonny Fraze is designer and technical director.

Stage manager Don Ouchley will be signaling to W. J. Haddad and Paul Wank on lights, Stanley Wyatt Jr. on sound and Bruce Jones on stage crew. Costumes have been executed by Nancy Franklin, Ginger Donald, June Sherman, Eva Fuller and Sybil Fuller, while Carolyn Friis is handling wardrobe. Set construction and painting received the helping hands of Juanita McDonald, Val Nichols, Francis Yeldell, Bob Evans, Henry Haas, Bob Jones and Dick Vail.

CHILDREN'S PLAY

Try - outs for the winter children's play have been called for this afternoon and tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 at Strauss Playhouse. Under the direction of Lonny Fraze the show will go into rehearsal at once and open its run right after Christmas.

For this eagerly awaited production, the play reading committee and Lonny have chosen "The Sandalwood Box," adapted from Washington Irving's "Legend of the Moor's Legacy." Colorful Spanish costumes, a candle that seems to possess a will of its own, a wall that opens to reveal hidden treasure and men strangely turned to stone, are but a part of its excitement and mystery.

There are 14 in the cast, most of whom will be drawn from high school students, but there are also parts for two younger girls and a boy. All who want to participate in this intriguing show are urged to attend tryouts today or tomorrow.

This will be a non-membership show for which tickets will be on sale before Christmas, so you can start thinking about putting them in Christmas stockings or organizing a party of youngsters to send to "The Sandalwood Box" as a special holiday treat.

The ranks of future Little Theatre members have been increased by daughters born to Charlene and Dan Slakter and to Kay and Chuck Morgan. If they inherit their parents' talents, the stage beckons them.

"Redskins On Parade" gave Monroe a chance to view the abundance of talent possessed by Northeast students. Director was Bill Wells whose last Little Theatre role was in "Send Me No Flowers." AOPi presented the Telephone Hour number from "Bye Bye Birdie."

FLASH! and you have captured another priceless moment of family life indoors. Watch the background, come in close and anticipate the instant of peak expression or action. Many picture situations like this one need a flash to stop the action or capture it in color.

CAMERA Angles

I met a camera fan who is strictly the outdoor type. His family album had a great set of pictures of their activities — provided they took place out of doors and the sun was somewhere around.

How come he had no birthday party of any other indoor pictures?

"Too much trouble," he argued. "I tried to use flash some years ago and got all messed up. Some of the pictures were so dark you couldn't see anything; others were so light the faces were like spooks. And at some crucial moments, the flash wouldn't go off at all."

NO ADJUSTMENTS

It didn't take too much probing to find out where this chap had gone wrong. He figured the flash, like the sun, provided the light and it made no difference whether he was shooting someone close or far away. He had never made any adjustments for distance. And many months later when he hauled out the flash, it didn't work. No, he never looked at the battery or put in a fresh one. He just put the unit back in a drawer and stuck to the great outdoors ever since.

Nowadays, with simple dependable flash units and small compact speedlights, there's no reason why any camera fan should miss the many picture opportunities of indoor activities. But that same fan should read the instructions, follow the simple rules of exposure based on distance of subject and give the small amount of attention necessary to maintain the unit's efficiency.

Every camera of today is designed for a flash attachment. It is essential in most cases to set an adjustment for either flashbulb (M setting) or electronic flash (X setting) because there is a difference in synchronization. You will get no pictures if your camera is on "X" setting and you use regular flashbulbs, or if it is on "M" setting and you use a speedlight.

The light from your flash has a rated strength or guide number. This will be found on the carton holding the flashbulbs or in the instructions with an electronic flash. It is essential that you set your lens opening according to the distance of your subject by dividing that distance into the guide number. The answer is your lens opening.

Example: A small speedlight has a guide number of 40 for Kodachrome II. The camera is set on "X". At five feet away, with the shutter speed at 1-100th, the lens opening is (40 divided by 5) f-8. The camera shutter speed makes little difference with an electronic flash but it should be fast enough to stop any possible camera motion. With the subject at 8 feet, the lens is set to f-5; at 10 feet, the setting is f-4, etc. If your camera has an f-3.5 lens, the maximum distance for the flash in this case is case is about 11 feet.

MATCH TYPES

When shooting indoors, you must match the type of flash with the type of color film you are using. Clear flashbulbs are used with type "B" and Kodacolor films. Electronic flash and blue flashbulbs are used with Daylight - type color films.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Arranging With Mums

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Welcome back, Dr. John Wright, LouisianaTech horticulture professor and flower arranging artist, and one of Garden Clubbers best friends. Our T.V. and Fifth District Garden Center was blessed with another wonderful program last Wednesday, given by Dr. Wright. "Arrangements with Mums," was the theme for his white cornucopia container used with spider mums in shades of bronze and white, accented with a smaller red mum. For interest, a cluster of red bell peppers was placed in the focal area. Oasis was used to hold the stems of the flowers. It was a very unusual, colorful seasonal design.

Very modern in feeling was the next design, made of castor bean seed pods, for line, combined with a vertical line of red bell peppers that had been individually picked and placed within the primary line of the triangle design. The container was a low, narrow, soft green bowl. At this point the design was very lovely as a line design, then, Dr. Wright added a filler of bronze spray type mums pom pons creating a massed line design — which was very pleasing. The mums had a tendency to soften the line of heavy seed pods and peppers.

SINGLE STALK

Another modern design — A single stalk of castor bean (without foliage or seed pods) formed the line in a low mingled gray pottery container. To this he added three clusters of pink-orange colored spray mums in a zig-zag line completing the vertical design. It was simple and pleasing.

Ultra - modern in feeling was the next design — featuring two large, dried sunflower seed pods placed within a swirling line made of a single branch of dried honeysuckle vine that was anchored into a tall textured (amber and white colored) cylinder vase. The seed pods had been dipped in yellow paint. The same color was sprayed on the curving vine, creating a perfect color blend with the container. It was as simple as that, a beautiful, modern design.

A striking color scheme, black and white, was the feature of the next design. A massed line design using at least 10 white spider mums to form a scalene triangle design in a black usubata container proved very unusual and very pleasing for the modern home setting. As a rule, at least three to five of these mums would be a satisfactory number for a good design, but since these were small spider (Tokyo) mums a greater number could be used. Dr. Wright told that this was a very good variety for our location.

Dr. Wright finished his program by displaying a lovely massed design featuring at least four types of mums, colors of white and yellow. The starburst (spider) softened the outer edges of the large oval design. The central section of the design contained the golden yellow Harvest giant (golden arrow). A filler of the branches of the "burning bush," red Kochia, added interest and contrast. A delightful arrangement for the church altar during the Thanksgiving season.

Dr. Wright has given me a list of the many varieties of mums suitable for our section of the country, some of which I have listed previously. The Gloeckner Chrysanthemums Manual for 1963 lists over 600 varieties. This manual is available at the garden center for those who might be interested in selecting types suitable for their gardens. This manual is the source of information that is recommended by Dr. Wright. From his weekly article, "Garden Diggin's," I have found helpful information that I would like to pass on to you — the grouping of the hundreds of varieties into the following categories with sub-groups as:

I. Standards (large flowers grown one flower per stem)
1. Incurved (petals curve toward top)
2. Reflexed (petals curve downward)
3. Spider (long tubular petals)
4. Fuji (short stiff tubular petals)

II. Spray Types (several flowers per stem — no disbudding)
1. Single (daisy-like in appearance)
2. Pom pons (globular)
3. Decoratives (blossom flat)
4. Anemones (resemble single, but center is raised)
5. Spoons (flat blossom, tublar petal with end flattened)

III. Disbuds. (A commercial term referring to sprays and small standards that have been disbudded. Several stems are allowed to develop per plant, but only one flower per stem.

Dr. Wright further tells us that if we want to grow mums generally, we should choose some of the garden varieties that are of the spray types. Singles are beautiful, but very susceptible to attacks by sucking insects. Varieties of the pom pon and decorative types do best in the garden. A group referred to as the "cushions" have various blooms types but grow compacted and make a very good garden show. They are poor for cut flowers, however.

The Harvest Giants is a relatively new group of hybrid varieties. The individual blossoms of these are normally large when not disbudded. They have proven very satisfactory as a garden type this year Mr. Wright states. A list of these is on file at the center, given by Dr. Wright, giving the flowering dates and color. It is wonderful to be able to grow varieties that have been tried and tested for our area.

Next program — Wed. Nov. 27, 1963 — Dr. Katherine Foster, guest for T. V. and Fifth District Garden center brings "Nutty Pasttime" — A real treat is in store for you.

Camellias Selection Important

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles prepared by members of the Northeast Louisiana Camellia Club on various phases of the growing and showing of camellias in the Monroe area. Various articles discuss the different problems and aspect of camellia propagation.)

The selection of varieties of camellias to plant is a most important factor in successfully growing camellias. The number of varieties is said to run into the thousands. Large numbers of seedlings are being grown and some are named and put on the market each year.

Since the camellia possesses high year - round decorative value, it is desirable to learn all about the growth habits of each variety before committing a plant to a long confinement in a given space. Some varieties are tall, some are squat ,and some are pendulous. The shape of the bush, combined with leaf pattern and relative compactness gives it character. It doesn't pay to leave to chance its final location of the camellia belt.

SEVERAL WINTERS

In Monroe the past two years, growers have experienced severe winters down to zero at times, and then up to 80 and 85 degrees. our summers have been just as severe heat-wise. Camellias not only require less severe winters and summers, but they also require humidity of above 50 per cent. Fortunately there are species that can be found that bloom before the heavy freezes and some that bloom after the heavy freezes. The span of camellia blooms runs from August to April. The "Arejishi" is one of the earliest blooms in August. It is a dark salmon rose, large, peony form with mixed petals and petaloids of fullform. It is vigorous, with open and upright growth.

The "September Morn" starts blooming in September and continues through the complete season. Some bloomed last year in September and remained in bloom until March. It is white to pale pink, medium large bloom, semi-double to peony to anemone form, with medium and compact growth.

MUTATIONS

Some camellias have what is known as "sports" or mutations. Fortunately, there is a "Diakagura" which has several mutations which have adopted the early bloom habits of the "Diak" but have superior blooms. These are the "Ward," "High Hat", and the "Conrad Hilton." There is also an "Indian Summer," which is a seedling of the Diakagura, but much superior. The "High Hat" is a light pink; the "Conrad Hilton" a white, and the "Ward" a variegated.

One late bloomer is the "Blood of China," also known as the "Victor Emmanuel." This is a deep salmon red, large, semi-double to peony form with loose petals. It is a vigorous compact grower and blooms in April.

Between these groups of early and late bloomers are thousands of varieties. Nurseries are forgetting the old stand-bys for the large, beautiful blooms. Here is where the hobbyist should use caution. Pictures are pretty, but all these do not do well in some parts of the country. There are camellias that do well here, but poor in California or on the Atlantic coast. Others do well there, but not here. There is a camellia known as "Mrs. D. W. Davis" which was originated from seedling in Tampa, Florida. Scions were sent to other states for grafting and most of these died. This flower was not acclimated to the colder area and took several years to acclimate itself. Today it is fairly easy to graft.

Adolph Audusson, both solid and variegated, Arrabella, Barbara Woodruff, Bernice Boddy, Brilliant, C. M. Hovey, C. M. Wilson, Charlotte Bradford, Dr. Tinsley, Eleanor Hagood, all of the Chandler Elegans family, Elizabeth Boardman, Emperor of Russia, both solid and variegated, Eugene Lize Finlandia, Governor Mouton, Kumasaka, Lady Clare, Lalifornia, Leucantha, Lindsay Neill, Madge Miller, Magnolia Flora, Marjorie Magnificant, Onijim Pearl Harbor, Pink Champaigne, Prince Eugene Napoleon, Queen Bessie, R. L. Wheeler, Rev. John Bennett, Rose Dawn, Shrio Chan, Tricolore and Pink Perfection.

Then if necessary, you can always use them for heavier objects than originally planned.

SEED OF A LARGE variety of pumpkin which averages 100 pounds in weight and up to six feet in circumference, with bright yellow-orange flesh three to four inches thick, are being released for planting for 1964. The variety known as Big Max, is round to flattened-round in appearance, has a pinkish-orange slightly rough skin. It can be used for food or decorative purposes.

Prepare Rose Beds

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Now is the time to prepare planting beds for roses. They require a well drained soil with full sun exposure. Add humus to the soil and elevate the bed if there is a question about drainage. Break the soil to a depth of 12 inches and add peat moss or leaf mold. If existing soil is heavy, add coarse builders sand also. Always group your roses in one location. This will provide for easier cultivation and care.

PECAN TREES

If you, Mrs. Gardener, have plans to add a pecan tree to your landscape, now is the time to do so. According to Warren Meadows, our horticulturist, planting about the middle of November will permit the tree to become established during the winter. Also, if you wait until later you may not get the variety you want. Warren says the best varieties for North Louisiana include the Stuart, Desirable, Success, Schley and Elliott. The Schley has the highest quality, but is extremely susceptible to scab diseases and requires more care and protection than do other varieties next spring in grafting. This can be done when the trees are in full leaf and up until the middle of May.

CRANBERRIES

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, are watching those calories you will do well to include cranberries in your menu for they are very low in calories. One fourth cup of berries will yield only 12 calories. Addition of sugar though will boost the calorie count. If you want a quick and easy cranberry sauce for that dinner Thursday, then try this one from our assistant nutrition specialist, Joan Blondin: one pound or 4 cups fresh cranberries, 2 cups sugar, and 2 cups water. Combine cranberries, sugar and water in a saucepan and heat to boiling point stirring until sugar dissolves. Boil rapidly about five minutes or until berries pop open. This makes one quart. If you desire a thicker sauce, reduce amount of water to one cup.

H.D. CLUB WINNERS

Last Friday was awards day for the Home Demonstration Clubs in Ouachita. The Better Homemakers Club placed first in the Best Score for the year. Mrs. Pat Wright, president of the club, received the coveted award of a silver tea service from our good friend George Tyner. Second place went to Modern Homemakers with Mrs. J. B. Arrant, president, and third Thrifty Homemakers with Mrs. David Mahoney, president. The Best Attendance award at Council meeting during the year was presented to the Thrifty Homemakers Club. Mrs. David Mahoney, president of the club, accepted the $10 cash prize from John Birdsong, secretary - manager of the Parish Fair. Second place went to McGuire Home Demonstration Club, president, Mrs. R. L. Ingram, and third to McClendon, president of the club, Mrs. Melvin Riser. The last award presented was won by the Drew Home Demonstration Club for having the best scrapbook during the year. Mrs. Fred Riser, president of the council, presented Mrs. J. R. Agin, president of the Drew Club with a $5 cash award. Second place in the scrapbook division was won by Okaloosa. Mrs. T. A. Fuller is president of this club. Third place to Claiborne with Mrs. D. L. Bryan, president.

Twenty four of the 25 clubs were represented at the parish meeting.

HINTS TO HOMEMAKERS

To store coconut after the package has been opened, place it in the refrigerator in its tightly reclosed package or a covered container. It will retain its moistness and delicate flavor much longer than if stored on a shelf.

Store chocolate in a cool place (under 75 degrees) to prevent it from turning white.

Soggy biscuits are the result of too much liquid, too little fat or baking at too low an oven temperature.

One of the cheapest forms of health insurance a person can buy is in the form of a bag of enriched flour, corn meal or a box of enriched cereal. The enrichment process adds three B vitamins: Thiamine B1, niacin and riboflavin, plus minerals iron and calcium. By selecting four or more servings of bread and cereal each day you make a generous contribution of these important nutrients to your family's basic food requirement.

A THOUGHT

Be sure to take time Thursday to truly give thanks for our many blessings.

CHANGE OF PACE

NEW YORK (AP) — Helmut Qualtinger, leading Austrian satirist, is planning a change of pace by enacting Henry VIII in Maxwell Anderson's "Anne of the 1,000 Days."

Here for a limited German-language engagement in his "Herr Karl" sketches, Qualtinger said he would tackle the dramatic role in December at Hamburg. He is also writing a play called "The Execution."

The entertainer said it would shock Vienna more than some of his "Herr Karl" lampoons, but declined to reveal the plot.

Evergreens Need Water Against Cold

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Do your evergreens and other shrubs a big favor. Water them thoroughly before severe cold weather sets in. This is especially important in areas that suffered autumn drought.

Many plants, especially in the Northeast, did not get enough rain during their late growing season — the time of year when many gardeners become lax about watering and depend on nature. These plants are likely to go into the winter under unhealthy conditions.

Water your ornamental and foundation plants well before deep freeze. Then, after the freeze, provide a protective mulch. Give your broadleaf evergreens a windbreak of plastic or wax spray or shelter them with wooden structures.

DRY BLIGHT

The death of your evergreens is more likely to be from drying out than from the cold. The less moisture there is in the ground around your shrubs, the more will have to come from the foliage.

Our annual gift of bulbs from Holland, where my brother Henry is principal of the International High School, arrived early this year and were in the bulb garden late in October.

Because of the extremely dry weather, we watered the bed thoroughly before we set out the bulbs. Before covering the fat tulip and other spring flowering bulbs, we added a generous dose of peat moss to help hold the moisture and to break down the clay soil.

LEAF PROBLEM

Drought also adds to the problem of what to do with the falling leaves that increase fire hazard and mess up your grounds.

Rake the leaves into shallow windrows and go at them with your lawn mower. This will chew the leaves into valuable mulch for your garden and lawn. It takes too long for your whole leaves to become good compost and a thick layer of wet, frozen leaves is not good mulch because this will prevent air from reaching the roots.

Seventy - year - old John P. Ogsbury, who has been mulching leaves this way for many years, says you must do it slowly, raising the cutting blade or blades of your machine a bit.

This mulching operation is fine when the leaves are dry. Your mower will have a tough time with wet leaves.

Here's The Answer

By ANDY LANG

QUESTION: I recently dropped a heavy cast iron object on our bathroom floor and cracked several pieces of the ceramic tile. Can these be replaced?

The house is more than 20 years old and somebody told me it is probably impossible to match the particular tiles. If they can be replaced, can I do the job myself?

ANSWER: Nobody can answer the question of whether those particular tiles can be duplicated. You'll have to take a couple of them to a dealer. Even if he doesn't have them in stock, he may be able to get them from a manufacturer. Or he may be able to get so close a match that the repair will be almost unnoticeable.

The cracked tiles can be removed with a prying bar or an old screwdriver that has otherwise outlived its usefulness. The old concrete base then should be made level with a cold chisel. Be careful not to hit any nearby tiles.

When you get the replacement tiles, obtain a small amount of special adhesive. Apply enough adhesive so that the new tiles are level with the surrounding ones.

Home And Garden

PINWHEEL is a new variety of Gloriosa Daisy with five inch blooms in a pattern of mahogany and gold. Plants grow about two and one-half feet tall, and will bloom the first year if planted early. The plants are described as long-lasting and able to withstand zero weather as well as hot summers. The flowers stand up well when cut for bouquets.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Bulb Planting Special Art

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

There are at least two good reasons why tulips do not last long in some gardens. The first reason is that the soil is too poor. The second is that they are planted too shallow.

It takes good rich soil to keep tulips going from year to year. Just sticking them into any old soil will, of course, give good bloom the first year because the bulb people have taken several seasons to store up a fine bud and a lot of plant food in the bulbs they sell us. As we have said in the column before, however, tulips have small delicate root systems that do not fend very far, so the gardener has to plant tulips right in the middle of rich soils if the bulbs are to keep going from season to season.

DEEP PLANTING

Even if your soil is very rich, the planting of tulips less than five inches deep will cause the bulbs to break up into many smaller ones every season. The wild tulips of Persia, Turkey and Greece grow at surprising depths. They are the bane of plant collectors who have to practically mine for the bulbs down through rocks and tough soil.

Some years back, when the Tulip Society began trying to get gardeners to plant their tulips between five and eight inches deep for permanent performance, a few people planted bulbs at these depths in pure red clay, so the flowers never made it to the top. This was hardly a test case!

Planted below five inches in really good soil, tulips are out of the way and other plants can be set right over them. What we have to remember is that the soil must be rich enough and must be fertilized often enough to support both bulbs and plants. A good fertilizing must be done in fall or winter so that it will get down to the bulbs. If bone meal was incorporated in the lower soil when the tulips were planted, it will support the bulbs for at least four or five seasons, but they still need fertilizer.

CROCUSES

Crocuses are such small corms that it is difficult to get gardeners to set them in the ground as deep as five inches. In good soil, they do not even mind eight! Again, they are out of the way of digging and transplanting operations on the upper level of beds. Crocuses do not break up at the rate of tulips in the upper levels of the soil; they manage to pull themselves down each year a little until they are quite deep. If the soil at lower levels is not good, they simply play out and disappear.

Once squirrels ever learn how good crocuses and tulips are, they will dig up every single one they can reach. The Dutch had to eat tulips during the last war. They said they did not like them very much, but squirrels delight in tulips and crocuses. In some city gardens where squirrels abound, both kinds of bulbs have to be planted in baskets of half - inch mesh "rat wire."

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The installation of shelves inside the home is a project that anyone can undertake with reasonable chance of success. There are many different ways in which the shelves can be supported, some of them falling into the adjustable area, so that changes in the location of the shelves can be made with a minimum amount of effort.

In the more or less permanent or fixed category are wooden cleats. These can be ordinary pieces of one by two wood attached to the sides of the wall, cabinet or wherever the shelves are being placed. The side cleats are sufficient for most installations, but where the shelves will cover a long span and will support heavy loads, it is necessary to use additional center supports.

QUARTER ROUND

If the span is not long and the shelves will not be supporting heavy loads, a neat appearance can be obtained by using what is called quarter round, a kind of molding with two flat sides.

Wooden and metal brackets of various sizes and styles are available as shelf supports. Some persons object to their appearance where the shelves will be in open view, but others believe that they enhance the installation — in the same way that some persons like and some do not like exposed ceiling beams. There is no argument, though, about the value of the brackets where strength is concerned. No matter how heavy the books, canned goods or other materials that will be placed on the shelves, there are brackets that will handle the job.

ADJUSTABLE SUPPORTS

If there is a possibility that you may want to vary the heights of the shelves at some future time, then adjustable supports are recommended. One way is to insert small wooden pins or dowels into drilled holes, making extra holes so that the pins can be shifted if necessary. There is a type of metal dowel that also can be used for this purpose. A more modern method of using adjustable supports is that calling for the use of metal uprights into which little metal clips are inserted. The uprights have openings along the entire strip, enabling the metal supports and shelves to be changed to any desired height quickly and easily.

GROOVES

In an original installation, such as a bookcase or cabinet, the do-it-yourselfer can cut grooves or dadoes into which the shelves are placed. These grooves are best cut with a radial or table saw or with a router. No matter how they are made, it is important that they be exactly the right width. If too narrow, the wood might split when the shelves are inserted. If too wide, the shelves will not be secure enough to support any weight. Another point to watch is the depth of the grooves. They should not be more than half the thickness of the wood, although some experienced cabinet makers cut deeper grooves without trouble.

When in doubt, always make shelves stronger than you think they should be.

Louisiana Tech Downs Northeast State By 28-7

Schwab Cracks Ice On Chilly Day To Pace LSU To 20-0 Victory

Bulldogs Revenge Last Year's Loss

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

RUSTON — Louisiana Tech unleashed its explosive version of the Green Bay pro attack to defeat Northeast State, 28-7, in a brutally contested Gulf States Conference game played before an overflow crowd of 8,000 here Saturday night.

The Bulldogs, who strive for balance in their rushing and passing, and pattern their play after the National Football League champions, used both to gain a revenge victory and end the season with a good 6-3 record. Northeast, which whipped the Ruston team 13-6 the year before, ended the season, 4-6.

But the Techmen were forced to go all out in whipping a fired-up young Indian club which grabbed a 7-0 first quarter lead on quarterback Bookie Shillcutt's 52 yard pass play to end Steve Regan.

The Bulldogs could manage only a 7-7 deadlock at the half and that only because of quarterback Billy Laird's cruical fourth down touchdown pass to freshman end Maurice Greer in the second period. The play covered six yards and capped a 61 yard march.

The Bulldogs went ahead in the third period, marching 97 yards behind the passing of the brilliant Laird who completed seven straight passes in the drive and hti junior end David Lee on a five yarder for the TD with 5:33 left in the stanza.

Tech led only 14-7 going into the four quarter and had to blunt a stiff second half passing by Shillcut with a series of interceptions including one by senior J. R. Williamson which the all-GSC center ran back 87 yards to the Indians' five. In all, the Bulldogs snared four Northeast aerials.

An indication of the Indians' aroused play came when they halted Tech on three plays after Williamson's run giving up only one yard. C. T. Campbell's field goal attempt from the 11 on fourth down was wide and the Bulldogs failed to score.

Northeast, which put a good rush on Laird at times and dropped him for losses totaling 37 yards, weren't as successful halting Tech's potent pro-T in the fourth quarter however.

Halfback Alden Reeves who had a fine night intercepted a Shillcutt pass and returned it five yards to the Tribe's 40. On the next play, the Jonesboro freshman went around right end, cut back and raced 40 yards to up Tech's margin to 21-7 with 14:10 left in the game. Reeves led all rushers with 83 yards on 11 carries.

With 1:10 remaining to play, Laird went back into his own endzone and spotted flankerback Corky Corkern near midfield. Corkern gathered in the ball at the Indian 40 and raced the remaining yardage for a 92-yard touchdown pass play.

Ironically Laird had just hit split end Wayne Davis on a long pass which went from the Tech 22 to the Tribe 36. However, a penalty nullified the play.

After the score, Campbell toed his 20th straight extra point to eclipse the single season total of 19 set by Bud Alexander in 1961. Campbell has now kicked 20 of 23.

For Laird, it was the end of a tremendous sophomore year. In addition to the three touchdown passes, Laird hit 14 of 23 for 236 yards, surpassing the passing yardage record set by Tech's Micky Slaughter last year. Laird this season completed 90 of 157 passes for 1,103 yards. Slaughter, now a quarterback with the Denver Broncos, passed for 932 yards in 1962.

The game was also a milestone for Northeast senior fullback Willie Ragan who gained 22 yards to up his season total to 440 yards in a career mark of 1,193. Fullback Ronnie Graham and halfback R. F. Wilson paced Northeast's rushing with 36 yards apiece.

Shillcutt completed five of 13 passed for 110 yards.

Tech returned the opening kickoff to its own 39 but two plays later, Ronnie Myrick intercepted Laird's pass at the Bulldog 33. The Indians moved to the Canines' 15 where Ragan's 22 yard field goal attempt was wide to the left.

Later in the quarter, Northeast took over on its own 19 and promptly marched 81 yards in seven plays for the first touchdown of the game. Six plays moved the ball to the Indians' 48 where Shillcutt fired his long pass to Regan. Tech's Kenny Tidwell tipped the ball at the Canine 15 and it bounced into the hands of Regan who dashed into the end zone. Ragan kicked good with 3:05 left in the quarter.

On Williamson's interception runback, the big center collared a Shillcut pass at the Bulldog eight and lumbered downfield behind a cordon of blockers. He was hit at the 30, lost his balance and staggered all the way down to the five where he was tackled by Indian guard Joe McClain.

The play which should have broken the Indians' back only seemed to arouse them to stay in the fight to the end.

Scoring summary:
NE-Regan-52 yd pass from Shillcutt (Ragan kick)
Tech: Greer five yard pass from Laird (Campbell kick)
Tech: Lee five yard pass from Laird (Campbell)
Tech: Reeves 40 yard run (Campbell kick)
Tech: Corkern 92 yard pass play from Laird (Campbell kick)

Tigers Cling To Slim Hope For Bowl Tilt

By SAM HANNA
World Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE — Fullback Don Schwab broke the ice on a chilly afternoon Saturday with a 60-yard touchdown blast that paced LSU past Tulane's determined but outmanned Greenies, 20-0.

A topcoat crowd of about 55,000 fans watched the Tigers march up and down the field with an impressive but inconsistent ground attack, netting 314 yards to Tulane's minus one.

After the Game, Coach Charles McClendon, expressing satisfaction with the 7-3 record of his sophomore Tigers, said LSU was being considered by the Gator Bowl and the Bluebonnet Bowl.

The victory, LSU's seventh of the season against three defeats, kept the Tigers clinging by the skin of their teeth in the bowl picture.

Tulane closed the season in its eighth defeat against a lone victory and one tie.

Halfback Danny LeBlanc, who had a rough afternoon, scored LSU's first touchdown in the opening period on a three-yard buck after he was hit three times by would-be Tulane tacklers.

With sophomore end Doug Moreau booting two third quarter field goals for LSU, Schwab cracked the game wide open in the fourth.

On a third-down situation at the Tiger 34, he ripped through the right side of his line, bulled into a horde of Greenies but suddenly broke for the sidelines, going all the way.

And that pretty much tells the story, although in the fading minutes of the game quarterback Ed Greer came off the LSU bench to throw five passes, completing two but having one intercepted in the end zone moments before the clock ran out.

Dark clouds hovered over Tiger stadium for the first half as the big, silent crowd offered a prayer for the slain president, John F. Kennedy. Dr. John Hunter, LSU president, rendered a commemoration at halftime in Kennedy's honor.

But when the sun broke through in the second half, LSU went to work with a slim 7-0 lead.

The Tigers marched to the Tulane 22 after taking the second half kickoff, but ran out of downs as Moreau came in to kick a 40-yard field goal.

Schwab, workhorse of the afternoon with 20 carries for a net total of 154 yards, and LaBruzzo were the chief ball carriers in the drive that sputtered on the Tulane 22. LaBruzzo carried a total of 17 times during the game for a net yardage of 73.

Actually, LSU didn't have but one sustained drive all afternoon. And that came the second time the Bengals got their hands on the ball.

The Tigers drove 71 yards before LeBlanc slammed over for the score.

Later in the period Tulane came back with its deepest penetration of the half, driving to the LSU 32 where senior Robby Hucklebridge threw quarterback Al Burguieres for a five yard loss, killing the threat.

Guard Don Bright had tried a 52-yard field goal minutes earlier, but it fell short.

Burguieres turned in a fine performance for Tulane in a losing effort. He completed eight of 22 passes for Tulane's total net of 88 yards.

But the touch Tiger wall pounded him to the slippery turf all afternoon, throwing him for a net loss of 37 yards on 16 carries. He ended up gaining 29 yards.

LSU set up Moreau's second

HOGS BREAK EVEN

Arkansas Downs Texas Tech Club

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) —Arkansas wrapped a break-even football season Saturday by edging Texas Tech in a Southwest Conference game, 20, on the weight of a 24-yard touchdown run by quarterback Billy Gray.

The Arkansans jumped into the front with three touchdowns, one on an 80-yard punt return by Kenny Hatfield before the Texas Tech Red Raiders hit pay dirt. But then the Raiders unleashed a two-touchdown aerial blast engineered by quarterback Ben Elledge, who scored their third touchdown on a short run.

Jack Brasuell, sophomore running sensation, broke loose for a 34-yard off tackle sprint early in the second quarter after Bobby Nix scored first for the Arkansas Razorbacks near the end of the first period from one yard out after quarterback Fred Marshall had set it up with runs of 22 yards, topped by his 12-yard pass to end Jerry Lamb.

Then suddenly it was Elledge's show. First he executed a 17-yard touchdown pass to end Tommy Doyle and then four minutes later fired a 40-yard scoring heave to end David Parks.

Before Arkansas could find itself, the Raiders tied it up with Elledge's one-yard sneak, which climaxed a 76-yard march with Donny Anderson and fullback Jim Zanois contributing most of the yardage with hard up-the-middle running.

Parks speared four passes for 80 yards and set a Tech season record for passing yardage by an individual. His season total was 499 yards, breaking Robert (Bake) Turner's 1959 mark. Anderson also set a new mark for kickoff returns with 448 yards against 348 by Don Lewis in 1952.

The victory gave Arkansas an even break for its 10-game season, but it was the Razorback's poorest showing under Coach Frank Broyles since his first game here six years ago. In the conference, he finished with three victories against four defeats.

Less than 10 minutes were left when Arkansas pulled the game out of a deadlock. Bobby Reynolds with consistent ground gains, sparked Gray's aerial display on the 85-yard trip which ended with Gray's 24-yard touchdown run and victory.

Florida Defeats Miami By 27-21 Behind Clarke

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A 70-yard touchdown dash by Hagood Clarke shattered a 14-14 deadlock Saturday night and Florida defeated Miami, 27-21, in a traditional football battle dedicated to the memory of the nation's dead president, John F. Kennedy.

In the Orange Bowl Stadium where Kennedy attended New Year's Day games as president-elect and president, 57,773 persons participated in pre-game and halftime ceremonies for the man felled Friday by an assassin's bullet in Dallas.

Florida and Miami considered cancelling or postponing the game, as so many others did throughout the nation, but decided with Gov. Farris Bryant's approval that it should go on so that the spectators could join in a mass service.

The teams were locked in a tight struggle when Clarke accepted a handoff to the weak side, slipped out of the arms of the one tackler and sped to the winning touchdown.

Then, moments later, Alan Poe pounced on a wild Miami lateral at the Hurricane 46 to put the Gators in position for a clinching score. Tom Shannon whipped a 26-yard pass to Poe and later sneaked across from a yard out.

Miami's All-America George Mira, put on a great aerial show, throwing three touchdown passes, and might have guided the Hurricanes to victory if his receivers had not dropped many passes he threw directly into their arms.

Peel lead the winners with 15 points and Staples was runner-up with 14 to carry Weston into the finals.

Huskers Master Sooners; Claim Big 8 Championship

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska won its first Big Eight Conference football championship in 23 years Saturday by mastering Oklahoma's sixth-ranked Sooners 29-20 and moved into the Orange Bowl New Year's Day.

Oklahoma's fumbles, a devastating Nebraska defense and the hard running of Rudy Johnson, Willie Ross, Dennis Claridge and Kent McCloughan turned the victory into a fourth-quarter rout.

The victory rounded out a 9-1 season overall, 7-0 in the Big Eight and automatically put the Cornhuskers in the Orange Bowl at Miami.

Oklahoma, with a wind-up game against Oklahoma State to be played this week stands 7-2 for the season and 5-1 in the conference. The Sooners had won 16 in a row in the conference since 1961.

Holding a slender 3-0 lead at halftime, Nebraska capitalized on Oklahoma's fumble of a Nebraska punt early in the second half, tackle Lloyd Voss recovering on Oklahoma's 15. Johnson made the short drive good on a one-yard plunge and oranges rained onto the field as the near-capacity crowd of 38,485 savored the Orange Bowl prospects.

Nebraska, again using a fumble to advantage, added seven more points in the wild fourth quarter on Claridge's one-yard plunge and tacked on two more touchdowns in the game's closing minutes. The late Nebraska touchdowns were scored by McLoughan and Fred Duda.

Oklahoma packed its three touchdowns into the fourth quarter, mixing passes with runs after finding its ground game strapped.

The Sooners lost a net of five yards in the first quarter and were held to a total offense of 28 yards in the first half.

Oklahoma covered 57 yard on its first touchdown drive, aided by a 35-yard pass from Bobby Page to end John Porterfield. A 22-yard pass from Ronald Fletcher to John Flynn provided the score.

PEOPLE SUFFER SHOCK

Sports Activities At Near Standstill

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sports activity throughout the distraught nation was at a virtual standstill Saturday as the saddened citizens, still in a state of shock, mourned the death of President Kennedy.

Nearly all of Saturday's college football games, the entire Sunday American Football League schedule, the weekend American Soccer League games, National Basketball games, thoroughbred and harness racing, golf, baseball, track meets and other sports were either postponed or canceled altogether.

Only the National Football League, the National Hockey League, several NBA teams, about a dozen college football teams and one major race track decided to go through with weekend sports as scheduled.

Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York suspended all racing in the state until after the President's funeral Monday. As a result Aqueduct and Roosevelt Raceway canceled Saturday and Monday's cards. Both will resume Tuesday.

All scheduled televised weekend sports were canceled by the networks.

"It has been traditional in sports for athletes to perform in times of great personal tragedy," said NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle, in announcing the decision to play the league's seven games. "Football was Mr. Kennedy's game. He thrived on competition."

Among the college football games postponed were the 80th Harvard-Yale contest at New Haven and the Illinois-Michigan State game at East Lansing, Mich.

The Illinois - Michigan State contest, which will settle the Big Ten championship and the conference's entry in the Rose Bowl was rescheduled for Thanksgiving Day at East Lansing. The Harvard-Yale game may be played next Saturday, Nov. 30.

All Big Ten, Big Six and Ivy League games were postponed. Also put off was the Notre Dame-Iowa game.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association left it to the colleges involved to do as they saw fit. Only the Southeastern Conference offered a complete schedule. Most other schools canceled or postponed their games.

The Oklahoma - Nebraska game at Nebraska was the only Big Eight game that was not postponed. The game decided the host team in the Orange Bowl.

Among the major games postponed were Rice at Texas Christian, Penn State at Pitt, North Carolina at Duke, Air Force at Colorado, Washington State at Washington, California at Stanford, UCLA at Southern California, Missouri at Kansas, Kansas State at Oklahoma State, Oregon State at Oregon, Clemson at South Carolina and Iowa State at Drake.

Brigham Young Wins Over CSU; Ends Home Tilts

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Brigham Young University salvaged a little for its otherwise dismal 1963 record with a 24-20 intersectional football victory over also dismal Colorado State University Saturday.

In a game played mostly on the ground, the Cougars closed out their home season and posted a 2-7 record to date. The loss left Colorado State, an independent, at 3-7. BYU plays at New Mexico this week.

Brigham Young, playing without 12 players kicked off the squad two weeks ago, displayed for the first time some of its preseason expected form.

19-0 VICTORY

Vols Charge By Kentucky With Faircloth, Mitchell

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Tennessee's single-wing power sent tailback Mallon Faircloth and fullback Stan Mitchell crashing through gaping holes in Kentucky's line Saturday, but the Volunteers scored all three of their touchdowns by passes in a 19-0 Southeastern Conference football victory.

Two of the Tennessee touchdowns came on passes by second string tailback Hal Wantland, for five yards, to wingback Bob Petrella in the first period and for 17 yards to wingback Bily Tomlinson in the final period.

In the third period, end Buddy Fisher leaped between two Kentucky defenders near the goalposts to come down with a 26-yard high-lob pass from Faircloth.

Although the touchdowns came on passes, the credit for them belonged to the Tennessee line that let Faircloth, 193-pound senior, and Mitchell, big 212 pound sophomore running mate, roam at will into the Kentucky secondary.

Mitchell was the leading ground - gainer for the game, battering for 91 yards in 16 carries. Faircloth picked up 85 yards in 15 trips.

Kentucky had rigged a defense to stop Tennessee's off-tackle power, but even that wasn't much of a success and it left a yawning gap up the middle that Tennessee exploited often.

The Vols drove 39 yards in eight plays for their first score after Kentucky lost a first down on a holding penalty and had to kick into a gusty wind.

A pass from Wantland to Petrella picked up 14 yards and a first down on the Kentucky 11-yard line. Wantland's pass to Petrella in the end zone followed two plays later.

The Vols went 55 yards for their third period touchdown. Mitchell setting it up with a 9-yard smash to the 26-yard line. Faircloth threw one pass incomplete into the end zone, but Fisher came down with the next one.

The final score developed when Wantland returned a punt 10 yards to the Kentucky 35. Mitchell then crashed for two first downs before Wantland notched his second touchdown toss of the day.

Kentucky made only one mild threat, moving against the Vols' second team in the third period, but the Tennessee regulars came in to smother the drive and take over when quarterback Rick Norton's fourth down pass from the 30 - yard line missed connections.

The dreary Kentucky performance sent many in the crowd of 30,000 home early on this grey and somber day as the Wildcats wound up their season with a record of three victories --all in non-conference play-- against six defeats and a tie.

For Tennessee, the triumph meant regaining the Old Beer Keg that serves as a trophy in this traditional series, and a chance for an even break on the season by beating Vanderbilt next week. The Vols now have a 4-5 record.

Alex Grammas Inked As Coach

Athletic Director Bob Whitlow said signed contracts from the club's other 12 coaches have been received. Four of them will be assigned to the Cubs for the 1964 season. The others will be sent to the Cubs' farm clubs.

Definite assignments have not yet been made.

Grammas, 36, was given his unconditional release by the Cubs after the past season. He had been with them since June, 1962. In his 10 years in the National League, he also had seen service at Cincinnati and St. Louis.

FLORIDA STATE FALLS

Sidle Is Sensational Again In Auburn Win

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Jimmy Sidle, who may become the nation's No. 1 ball carrier, scored three touchdowns Saturday in pacing ninth-ranked Auburn to a 21-15 victory over the Florida State Seminoles.

Even though he watched part of the game from the bench resting for next week's encounter with Alabama, the Tigers' quarterback picked up 132 yards rushing to strengthen his bid for national championship.

With Sidle in the game, Auburn had the drive needed to turn back the invader and to capitalize on the breaks. Without him, the Tigers were in trouble.

The Seminoles, badly outplayed for the first half, stiffened their defense after the intermission and made it more and more difficult for Auburn to break through. Then a pass interception gave the Indians one scoring opportunity and a 56-yard punt return put them in position for another. They made both of them good.

Sidle got the first score early in the game with an eight-yard sprint, ending an 82-yard drive. The 200-pound junior from Birmingham, who leads the Southeastern Conference in total offense, dived over from the 2 for another touchdown in the second quarter, and bulled his way into the end zone from seven yards out for the final Auburn score.

Woody Woodall booted the three extra points, but missed two field goal attempts after touchdown drives bogged down.

Auburn's defense was marvelous at times, not so good at others. Fullback Doc Griffith hauled down one of FSU quarterback Steve Tensi's passes and gave the Tigers possession of the ball in what became their second touchdown venture. On the next play, Griffith kept the drive going by recovering an Auburn fumble to keep the ball out of Seminole hands.

Tensi threw a 27-yard scoring pass to John Wachtel for one FSU score. Quarterback Ed Pritchett jumped over from the 1 for the final score after Windred Bailey had returned a punt 56 yards to the Auburn 12.

Sidle went into the game needing only 15 yards to overtake Kansas's Gale Sayers for the nation's rushing leadership. Saturdays 132 yards increased Sidle's chances.

Tigers Cling To Slim Hope For Bowl Tilt

field goal in the third period after fullback Mike Vincent covered a Burguieres fumble on the Tulane 27. Quarterback Billy Ezell then picked up his own fumble, racing to the Greenie 16.

From here LaBruzzo carried to the 11 with Schwab going to the 8.

But on fourth down, the Greenies smothered LaBruzzo for a yard loss.

Tulane couldn't move the ball, however, and when quarterback David East kicked poorly to the Greenie 27, LSU found itself in good field position to score.

But the Tigers couldn't after LeBlanc slipped and fell after Schwab was stopped and Ezell threw incomplete. On fourth down, Moreau kicked his second field goal from the 31.

Moreau's two conversions gave him a perfect record of 15 for 15 for the season.

The Greenies got their big chance late in the final period after they took over on their own 27. A pass interference penalty was called against LSU at the 46 and from here the Greenies began to march.

Halfback Ron Chapoton carried it to the 50, then two plays later Burguieres hit him for a 13-yard pass play that carried Tulane to the 45.

Burguieres hit George Smith on the LSU 26 on third down and fullback Larry McIntire bulled his way to the LSU 23. This was the deepest penetration for Tulane in the game.

But senior end Billy Truax, LSU's team captain for the season broke through the Tulane line, throwing Burguieres for a 6-yard loss.

Burguieres threw out - of - bounds and the threat ended.

With the exception of the last three minutes, Ezell, who took over when star Pat Screen was injured against Miami, played the entire ball game for LSU on offense. He had some good moments, throwing 10 times for three completions and net yardage of 39. But the fans gave out with a loud cheer when Greer got into the ball game.

With the clock ticking away, it looked as though Greer would guide the Tigers to a last minute touchdown as he hit fullback Buddy Soefker at the 41.

Schwab was shaken up on the play and taken out of the game.

With Soefker carrying to the Tulane 44, Greer, on fourth down, hit Truax for the first down on the Greenie 31.

Then he hit senior end Danny Numann of Tallulah for a completed pass at the Tulane 15, but a penalty was called against LSU for off sides.

Greer's lust-ditch pass to Truax in the end zone was intercepted by Davis. Tulane took over, ran two plays and the game ended.

Cage President Receive Threats

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—Harry Rudolph, president of the Eastern Basketball League, said Saturday he received two phone calls threatening violence if the game between Wilmington, Del. and Scranton, Pa. were played Saturday night at Scranton in view of President Kennedy's death.

It was called off a few hours before game time.

Cajun Classic To Be Finished In Play Today

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — A double barreled windup is set today for the $20,000 Cajun classic—1963's final PGA golf tournament.

With 36 holes scheduled for today, it boosted the chances of sturdy Jack Nicklaus, who was six strokes off the pace. The gruelling test should be just suited for a golfer with Nicklaus' power and stamina.

But Goetz, a Tulsa, Okla., swinger, who says this is his last tournament as a tour regular, led the field Friday after two rounds with a 135.

Dave Marr and Jack Rule Jr., winner of the St. Paul Open this year, were next at 136.

Southern Gets Big Win Over The Citadel Club

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) —Southern Mississippi used a fumble recovery in the end zone and a 63-yard punt return to break open a tight football game and crush The Citadel 37-12 Saturday night.

Held to a 7-6 margin in the first quarter, the Southerns took control midway in the second.

First, a wild pitchout by Cadet quarterback Wade St. John was recovered behind The Citadel goal by guard Joe Owen. Minutes later, Rabbitt Brown took a Citadel punt and couldn't be caught.

The Citadel's first touchdown came after guard Mel Phillips recovered a fumble on the Southerners 14. Dennis Vincent went over from the one.

The lone sustained march mustered by the Cadets produced their second score in the final period. St. John plunged from the one to cap a 60-yard plunge.

Cincinnati playing without injured Jack Twyman and Tom Hawkins, fell five games behind the leading Boston Celtics in the Eastern Division.

When the Hawks were cementing their lead in the fourth quarter, Pettit scored only three points, but Hagan came to the rescue by scoring 15.

Cincinnati's scoring leaders were Oscar Robertson with 33 and Wayne Embry with 26.

The spike was especially significant to Hutson since it was his first deer killed with a bow and arrow.

NFL OUTLOOK

Tie Is Possible In Both Leagues

By NORMAN MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

It happened only once before in the National Football League, 13 years ago, and it could happen again this season—if the Chicago Bears and New York Giants stumble.

Both conference races could wind up in ties that would force special playoffs.

In fact, the Eastern Division conceivably could result in an unprecedented three-team deadlock that would push the championship playoff game back to Jan. 5.

Both the Bears and the Giants were involved in the only double conference playoffs back in 1950 and both were beaten. The Cleveland Browns went on to defeat the Los Angeles Rams 30-28 in the championship game that year.

To get down to the matter of the moment, the Bears, with a 9-1 record and a one-game lead on the Green Bay Packers in the West, take on the tough Steelers (6-3-1) at Pittsburgh Sunday. The Packers (8-2) face a soft touch in the San Francisco Forty Niners (2-8) at Milwaukee.

The Eastern race could be thrown into a threesome tie by sundown Sunday if the St. Louis Cardinals (7-3) upset the Giants (8-2) in New York and the Browns (7-3) beat the Dallas Cowboys (3-7) at Cleveland.

Redskins Seek Win

In Sunday's three NFL games that do not involve division contenders, the Redskins (2-8) seek to snap a seven-game losing streak against the Philadelphia Eagles (2-7-1) at Washington; the Minnesota Vikings (3-7) are at home against the Detroit Lions (4-6), and the Los Angeles Rams (3-7) are host to the Baltimore Colts (5-5).

The game against the Steelers could be Chicago's last serious hurdle to the Western Division title. After Sunday, the Bears' opponents are three teams with losing records, Minnesota, San Francisco and Detroit, all to be met in Chicago.

Green Bay's comeback road is tougher. Immediately after Sunday's game, the Packers must go right to work for their nationally - televised Thanksgiving Day scrap with the Lions in Detroit. Green Bay's final two games are at Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The Steelers, who can just about forget about the 1963 title race if they lose to the bears, are aware of the big job ahead.

"The Bears lead the league in nearly every defensive department," observed Coach Buddy Parker of Pittsburgh, "and I don't expect we'll score much."

Fretted Coach George Halas of the Bears: "I don't know whether we can keep the pitch we had last week (in trouncing the Packers (26-7). I've known since I saw the schedule that this game was going to be a toughie for us. And now that it's on us, it's crucial. I hope they (the players) realize what they're up against."

Casares Injured

Chicago's fleet of running backs was reduced by one because of an ankle injury to Rick Casares.

Coach Vince Lombardi of the Packers said he thought "Bart Starr looks like he's going to be able to play Sunday" against San Francisco. The Packers are three-touchdown favorites.

In the Eastern race, the Giants, with five straight wins, can shake off the Cardinals and perhaps even the staggering Browns, too.

The Giants may have to call on their strong bench once again to replace fullback Alex Webster and defensive back Dick Lynch. And the Cards hope young Charley Johnson learned a lesson when he was intercepted four times in the game won by the Giants 38-21 three weeks ago.

St. Louis has three key injuries -- tight end Taz Anderson, end defensive linemen Don Brumm and Ed Henke.

The Browns, who have lost three of their last four games, face an air bombardment from Don Meredith of the Cowboys. His passes have produced wins in two of the last three games. Frank Ryan should be back at quarterback for the Browns after yielding the job to Jim Ninowski last wek.

AT INTERSQUAD CLASH

Fans Can Peek At Tech Cagers

RUSTON — Louisiana Tech cage fans will get a chance for a preview of Bulldog teams Tuesday when the varsity and freshman teams clash at 7:30 p.m.

Coach Cecil Crowley's varsity, with eight returning lettermen and four squadmen, will test the quality of Coach Scotty Robertson's first-year men.

Crowley's starters will probably include Joe Abendroth and Ray Penny at forward, Jerry Hood at center and Butch Miller and Ron McNabb or David Hruska at guard. Abendroth has seen little action in two weeks because of a bad ankle sprain and Joey Barron, topnotch soph prospect, may start in his place. Barron has been impressive in the early drills.

Robertson also has one starter hobbled by a leg injury. Jon Pat Stephenson of Shreveport Woodlawn is a doubtful starter and his place will be grabbed by Danny McCormick of Many or Tim Hall of Alexandria Menard.

Other possible starters include guards Jim Pruett of Shreveport Fair Park and Leon Barmore of Ruston, and forwards Sydney Boone of Shreveport Byrd and Bobby Misso of Bossier City.

Both coaches have been striving to improve the defense in fall drills to help offset a lack of height. Hood and Barron have paced varsity scoring in practice with Stephenson, Boone and Barmore going at a fast scoring pace for the frosh.

Tech will be out to improve on a 10-13 overall record last year and a 4-6 mar kin the Gulf States Conference. The Bulldog Pups will play their first full-fledged schedule in many years against college freshman or junior varsity outfits.

After the varsity-frosh clash, both outfits hit the road to open their seasons against Mississippi State at Starkville Monday, Dec. 2. Tech's Pups play their first home game against the Northeast JV team here Saturday, Dec. 7 as a preliminary to the varsity-East Texas State contest.

All the Pup home games will be preliminaries to Tech varsity contests.

'We Hit Well' Head Husker Says Of Win

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nebraska's Bob Devaney gave the credit for his Orange Bowl win over Oklahoma to his defensive lines Saturday.

"We were hitting extremely well. We had the best hitting on defense since I have been here," said Devaney without emotion.

In the loser's dressing room, Coach Bud Wilkinson said "Nebraska is the best team in the conference. We have no excuses."

Wilkinson, always calm whether on the sidelines or in the dressing room, saw his team lose on fumbles. Devaney, whose Huskers, had held only a 3-0 lead at the half after knocking on the touchdown door several times, said he was fearful of an Oklahoma second half comeback. The big break in the ball game did come swiftly when the second half opened.

When Oklahoma fumbled a punt deep in its own territory and Nebraska recovered, Wilkinson seemingly knew this was a turn of events that could very well seal the decision.

On the sidelines he gave a swift backward kick at a piece of paper. This, and a sudden tensing of his jaw mucles were the only signs that he knew the big break had gone against him. When his offending player, Lance Rentzel, came to the side lines, Wilkinson gave him a quick hug and a few words of encouragement as tears welled in the eyes of Rentzel.

Devaney also mentioned the breaks and praised his club for "knowing what to do with them."

Bob Brown, Nebraska's 271 - pound guard and All-America candidate, termed Oklahoma a tremendous team.

"They are a tremendous team that is never beaten until the game is over. I was personally not certain that we had them beaten until the referee's whistle blew for the last time. You never can forget their comeback potentiality," Brown said.

The big guard said that during the week he had worried a bit about whether the Huskers would be "up" for this game. But, he continued, the team spirit came to life in the last hours before the game.

Utah Redskins Revive To Edge Utah Aggies

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — Underdog Utah engineered two fourth quarter touchdown drives, then staged a last - minute goal line stand Saturday to edge Utah State, 25-23, in their traditional football game.

A -Romney Stadium record crowd of 15,220 watched in 30-degree weather as the Utah Redskins came from behind on the passing arm of Gary Hertzfeldt to overtake the heavier and slow-moving Aggies. Hertzfeldt passed 35 yards to wingback Mike Davis for the winning points.

Utah State, favored from one to two touchdowns, almost pulled out the game in the final three minutes. The Staters drove from their 25 to the Utah one where halfback Larry Campbell was piled up as the game ended.

Utah State's Bill Munson, brilliant in defeat, set a school record for passing yardage in a single game, completing 14 of 24 aerials for 223 yards. He passed for one touchdown.

The loss was only the second of the season for Utah State against eight victories but it probably snuffed out Aggie hopes for a bowl bid. State had been angling for an invitation to the Sun Bowl.

PRESIDENT KENNEDY

Sports World Loses Champion And Friend

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The sports world lost a champion and a friend in the tragic death of President John F. Kennedy, sports leaders throughout the nation said Saturday.

From the citadels of every major sport—baseball, football, golf and the sprawling collegiate program—came expressions of shock and sorrow over the passing of a man who emphasized the importance of building the body as well as the mind.

"We all feel a deep loss and at the same time a great sense of shame and unhappiness that this should happen in our country," said Ford Frick, commissioner of baseball. "We are all shocked and in deep sorrow."

One of the favorite pictures in Frick's Rockefeller Plaza office shows the late president, bare - headed and standing, while looking at a foul ball in the Washington, D. C. park. He ordered all baseball offices closed until after the funeral Monday.

Kennedy was an ardent baseball fan and threw out the first baseball in three opening games in the nation's capital.

Joe Cronin, president of the American League, called Friday's assassination of the young chief executive a "tragic affair" and added:

"He surely was one of the greatest sports enthusiasts ever to live in the White House. He knew a lot about sports, things you wouldn't expect, and he enjoyed swapping sports stories."

Warren Giles, National League president, said:

"While all citizens of the nation are crushed by the loss of our President, we in sports are especially saddened and shocked.

"John F. Kennedy was a sportsman and a friend of baseball. Words seem so out of proportion to one's feelings as we reflect on the tragic, almost unbelieveable circumstances causing his death. The National League shares the grief of this tragic loss and our sincerest sympathy goes out to Mrs. Kennedy and his family."

Walter Byers, executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said all people must be stunned by shock, disbelief and the thought such a thing could happen in America.

"President Kennedy contributed to the advancement of America in uncounted ways," he said. "We shall remain forever conscious of the new meaning and significance he gave to the importance of being physically fit and maintaing a sound body as a base for an alert mind."

Kennedy was a substitute on the Harvard freshman football team while an undergraduate at Cambridge and he and his family popularized touch football as a pastime during informal gatherings at the White House and at their home in Hyannis Port, Mass.

The 80th Harvard-Yale game was the first cancelled when the tragic news of the president's death from a sniper's bullet flashed over the wires.

Joe Dey, executive director of the U. S. Golf Association, said:

"President Kennedy's concern for the total man—for his body as well as his brain and spirit—gave a tremendous lift to the national health. He left both a legacy and a challenge for every red-blooded American."

The late president played golf regularly, but seldom took time to go a full round.

"He's the best golfer of any of our many golfing presidents," a Newport, R. I., professional once said. "If he took time, he could be an 80 shooter."

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, named by Kennedy to arbitrate the bitter NCAA - AAU dispute which threatened our Olympic teams, sent the following telegram to Mrs. Kennedy:

"I realize the utter futility of words at such a time but the world of civilization shares the poignancy of this monumental tragedy. As a former comrade in arms, his death kills something within me."

Col. Donald Hull, executive director of the AAU, called Kennedy "a great dynamic leader with an interest in sports."

"His loss certainly will be strongly felt," Hull added. "Like everyone else the world over, we in sports will miss the President greatly."

Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, expressed himself as "deeply shocked" and Commissioner Joe Foss of the American Football League, which postponed its weekend games, said:

"It is difficult at this time to comprehend the full impact of President Kennedy's loss as a man as well as the head of our government. The magnitude of his loss can only be measured by time and his accomplishments as a heroic service man and devoted servant of our country."

Walter Kennedy, president of the National Basketball Association, said he felt keenly over the loss because of a personal friendship with the late president, and he added:

"His leadership was meaningful to American sports in so many ways and his firm direction will be sadly missed."

Arthur Lentz, assistant executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said world sports had lost a true friend.

"We are lal deeply shocked by this news," Lentz said. "President Kennedy had a love for all sports and he was deeply interested in the Olympic movement which fostered good will among nations."

Tom Hamilton, director of the Big Six Conference on the Pacific Coast, said the President's death was a tremendous loss.

"Mister Kennedy was most interested in the Olympics and all other sports," Hamilton said.

Art Rooney, owner of the National Football League's Pittsburgh Steelers, called it a "terrible tragedy" and David (Sonny) Werblin, president of the New York Jets of the American Football League, said it was "a tragedy of national proportion."

"I felt all sports events should be cancelled out of respect for our late President," Werblin added.

OPEN TUESDAY NIGHT

Indian Cagers May Start Season Without Walker

Northeast may start the 7:30 game without star forward Jimmy Walker, twice a member of the all-Gulf States Conference second team. The Jonesboro senior broke a small bone in his right wrist during practice this week and may not be able to play. He is expected to be back in action within a few days, however.

Walker is one of two returning starters on the Northeast squad, the most inexperienced the Indians have had since 1960. The other is another senior, diminutive Irby Gamble, the 5-7 sharpshooter from Marthaville and the GSC leader in field goal accuracy last winter.

Other probable starters this season are junior letterman Larry Butler (6-4) of Forest, sophomore letterman Tommy Enloe (5-9) of Saline and junior college transfer Dick Williams (6-3) of East Orange, N. J. If Walker does not play against Arkansas A&M, he is likely to be replaced by big Lawson Swearingen, a 6-6 sophomore letter winner from Ruston.

This year's Tribe team will be the first in four years without Stuart Toms, Robert Cook, and Milton Linder, three four-year letterman instrumental in Northeast's fine seasons of 1961-62 and 1962-63 when the Indians won the Gulf States Conference championship and tied for second. Toms made the all-GSC team and third team all-America. Cook was a second team all-conference choice and Linder started for three years.

All told, Fant has six lettermen back from last year's team which won 15 of 26 games, the five listed above and sophomore Billy Brooks (6-2) of Jonesville.

Brooks, junior college transfer Walter Snelling (5-8) of Converse, and returning squadman James Brian (6-3) of Pleasant Hill, Truett Nolan (6-0) of Monroe and Albert Krause (5-11) of Sicily Island are expected to see action also and should give the Indians a stronger bench than they had last season.

Fant calls the upcoming campaign a rebuilding season. "Our team will be young and inexperience will probably be our biggest weakness. We'll also be small, smaller than most of our opponents. What we do will depend on how we hustle and how soon our young players reach their potential."

Butler has lettered two years, playing in a total of 36 games. He is a tough rebounder and he and Walker, second in GSC rebounding last winter, should give the Indians good work on the boards.

Enloe is a good driver and ball - handler and has been one of the most improved players in workouts this fall. Williams led the Dixie Conference in scoring last winter at Marion (Ala.) Institute.

Quail On Thanksgiving

An untold but big number of Thanksgiving dinners will be gobbled down hurriedly Thursday before Louisiana's army of redshirted deer hunters marches off to do war.

Everybody will be in the act, rushing to the woods to stay up all night before the season opens at dawn Friday, leaving behind their broken homes, plus another army preparing to open the duck season at noon the same day.

The smart ones will be the quail hunters, who can open the bird season on the edge of town early Thanksgiving morning with plenty of time to eat turkey at home in peace.

But there won't be many smart ones; there won't be many hunters sane enough to stay at home to shoot quail or open the duck season at noon the following day.

No sir, most of us got up this morning with visions of that grand ole buck slipping quietly to within shooting range. We can see him now — rocking chair rack and all.

That's why it's a must to blast off Thursday, Thanksgiving or not.

And it should be a good season with 34 hunting days from November 29th through December 16th and from December 26th through January 10th. The whitetails are more plentiful now than ever before, and be darn if it doesn't look like we're going to get some rain and cold weather.

Besides that, many parishes now have huntable deer herds, even including Ouachita where the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area offers the biggest bucks anywhere in Louisiana, except for the button - willow country along the Mississippi River.

And if you can't find a spot on private property, you have a choice of six game management areas in Northeast Louisiana — areas open to public hunting. With the exception of the Russell Sage area, which will be open for 15 days (November 29th - December 6th, and from December 26th - January 1st), all of the areas will be open for five days or for a designated number of deer as follows:

Jackson - Bienville, 400 any deer and 5 days; Union, 50 any deer and 5 days; East Carroll, 125 any deer and 5 days; Caldwell, 75 any deer and 5 days; and Chicago Mills, 1,000 any deer and 5 days.

There's a place to hunt for everybody.

But if you're as crazy as a deer hunter but turned in another direction, the duck season should be much more suitable this year, what with a longer season, November 29th through January 2nd, and a four-duck bag limit that can include two mallards.

Granted this is not the best, but it's so far ahead of last year life is worth living again for the admirers of the greenhead.

And if you belong to that small but growing clique that prides itself in being gentleman members of the king's sport, then Thanksgiving will dawn brightly, because the quail season will last through February 23rd. The bird population is good this year, or so everybody says.

But don't forget all the things you're supposed to remember, like having a regular hunting license, a big game hunting license, a duck stamp, and a permit if you're hunting on a public area.

One other thing. Don't shoot unless you're sure you're shooting at a deer or a duck or a quail — and not a fellow sportsman.

It should be a big Thanksgiving.

Hunting Projects Underway

A lot of work is underway to make things better for the hunter.

For instance, the Wild Life — Fisheries Commission has two projects going in Lafourche Swamp to improve conditions for the duck hunters. One is the Lafourche Public Shooting Area and the other is on the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area.

The Lafourche Public Shooting Area, located just inside Richland Parish south of U.S. 80, is being flooded again for duck hunting. This area has been open for the past several years and should be familiar to the duck hunter. The area consists of 1200 acres.

At any rate, it should be ready by opening day Friday.

On the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area, a pump was installed early this week at the request of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit to flood several hundred acres for duck hunting. Some 500 acres may be flooded by opening day, but frankly that will be pushing it a bit.

This spot is located four to five miles down the Lafourche canal south of U.S. 80.

If these directions are confusing to you, then you can get a map of the areas from the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission office in Monroe.

Meantime, Richard Yancey, assistant director, informed us from New Orleans a day or so ago that the commission will begin work Monday on a temporary fill across the mouth of French Fork to put water in Catahoula Lake, the biggest duck spot in North Louisiana.

A third of the lake is covered with water now, Dick explained, and according to commission estimates there are about 100,000 ducks on Catahoula presently. With more water in Catahoula, there should be more ducks too.

Two culverts will be placed in the temporary fill to permit the water to flow in French Fork. Dick Yancey emphasized that this is a temporary project and can be removed without any trouble.

Finally, not on hunting but on fishing, the commission has stocked some 2½-million bream in D'Arbonne Lake at Farmerville. This is the first phase of the stocking program.

All of these projects are designed to improve hunting and fishing conditions in our area. Hats off to the commission and its personnel.

Latest Waterfowl Survey

Latest waterfowl survey conducted, which was November 4-7th, showed Northeast Louisiana with 34,250 ducks, including 6,400 mallards. About 2,000 of the total were on Coulee Refuge.

Actually, this area had more greenwing teal than any other kind with 16,000.

Southwest Louisiana, of course, led the state with 2,284,000, and it probably would be a safe guess to say that a big part of these turned up on the Rockefeller Refuge.

The state was 3,486,550 ducks for the state with 297,950 geese.

Both totals will increase as the winter weather comes on.

So it looks like some good shooting ahead for the duck hunter.

Little Man's Corner

The little men were busy fishing and hunting and make news afield.

Locally, Ray Clement of Monroe killed a doe in East Carroll Parish with a bow. And from Vidalia, Bill Dale killed a spike on Davis Island.

Our friend Grits Gresham of Natchitoches, in an exchange of reports on the bow season, informs us that David Carter of Natchitoches killed a 6-point buck in Tensas while Henry Mitchell Jr. dropped a spike in Tensas.

Our state total has climbed now to 23 kills for the archery season. But don't forget to report your kill if you have been successful during the season that closes today.

In Arkansas where the first split of the deer season has ended, Ashley County has reported between 400 and 600 deer killed, according to game warden W. Z. Spencer. But he says the figures are not complete.

Highlight of the season was an 8-point buck killed by 81-year-old Jack Kinard. And the biggest kill was reported by Jimmy Clark of Hamburg, who killed a 17-point buck that weighed 230 pounds.

Ashley was proud to report no hunting accidents for the first split.

A local sport took advantage of the Arkansas season. W. B. Goza, circulation manager of the News Star-World, took a 9-point buck out of circulation on an Arkansas hunt.

Hunting deer in Tensas, Travis A. Maxwell of Monroe got too close to a 5-foot rattler. The rattler struck at him, hitting him on the pants leg. But Travis was lucky, jumped aside and shot the snake with his bow. The snake had 15 rattles and a button.

On the fishing scene, H. L. McGlothlin of Ferriday got the limit of bass in Lake Concordia. So did George Wilson, Bill Strickland, Al Britt, Herb Bailey, Ed Carol, Robert Hodges, and Henry and George King, all of Ferriday.

C. W. Crumbley of Ferriday got the limit of bass in Concordia while Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Sillers of West Monroe landed the limit of bream in Lake St. John.

Johnny Abers and M. C. Bellbellew of Monroe caught the limit of bream in St. John.

John and Alice Whitt of Vidalia caught the limit of white perch at Deerpark. Others getting their limits there included Priester, Willie Goss and Powell Kaiser.

ENTIRE TEAM DISTRESSED

Heartsick Ralston Loses In Tourney

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)— Dennis Ralston, heartsick over news of the death of President Kennedy, bowed to Australia's John Newcombe Saturday in the finals of the South Australian Tennis Championships.

The 20-year-old University of Southern California student from Bakersfield, Calif., went down 6-1, 6-3, 15-17, 6-1 after being urged to take the court by William Battle, the U.S. Ambassdor to Australia. It was his first Australian setback.

"Our entire team was distressed over the news of he President's assassination," Bob Kelleher of Los Angeles, captain of the U. S. Davis Cup team said. "Denny didn't know whether he should play or not."

The American player finally assented after Ambassador Battle, a personal friend of the late President, assured him that it would have been the wish of the late president.

Even so, it was obvious to the gallery of 6,000 at the Memorial Park courts that Ralston was merely going through the motions. He was only a shadow of the player who swept to the new South Wales title a week ago and beat Roy Emerson, Australia's No. 1 star, en route to the finals here.

Newcombe, 19-year-old Australian junior champion and an outsider up to now in the Australian Davis Cup plans, whipped through the first two sets with ease.

Ralston played with little spirit. His first service was seldom getting into court. He was sluggish at the net, where he fell into repeated errors.

In the third set, the young American had a sudden revival and for a brief period showed flashes of his old form. He broke Newcombe's service in the first game and ran up leads of 2-0, 3-1, 4-2 and 5-3. Then he was passed twice at the net in the 10th game and the score was leveled at 5-5.

Games then went with service until Ralson broke Newcombe in the 31st game for a 16-15 lead. He held service easily for the set.

The comeback was short-lived however. Newcombe stepped up his pace in the fourth set and Ralston again went into a slump, apparently losing concentration. The Australian won the final set in 11 minutes. He broke Ralston's service twice and missed one match point on his own service before finally clinching.

Ken Fletcher and Tony Roche won the men's doubles championship by beating Mike Sangster and Roger Taylor of Britain 9-7, 4-6, 6-4, 4-6, 8-6.

Margaret Smith beat Jan Lehane 6-3, 6-1 in an all-Australian final for the women's crown. She teamed with Fletcher to win the mixed doubles from Owen Davidson and Robyn Ebbern of Australia 9-7, 6-3.

The U. S. team plays the defending champion Aussies for the Davis Cup here Dec. 26-28.

Cotton Closes On Low Ground

Prices were off $1.25 to up 10 cents for the week. The only net gains for the week were recorded by the March 1965 delivery.

Although interest in trading remained limited, the day-to-day turnover was better than a week ago. Commission houses participated on both sides of the market. Much of the trading reflected switching operations.

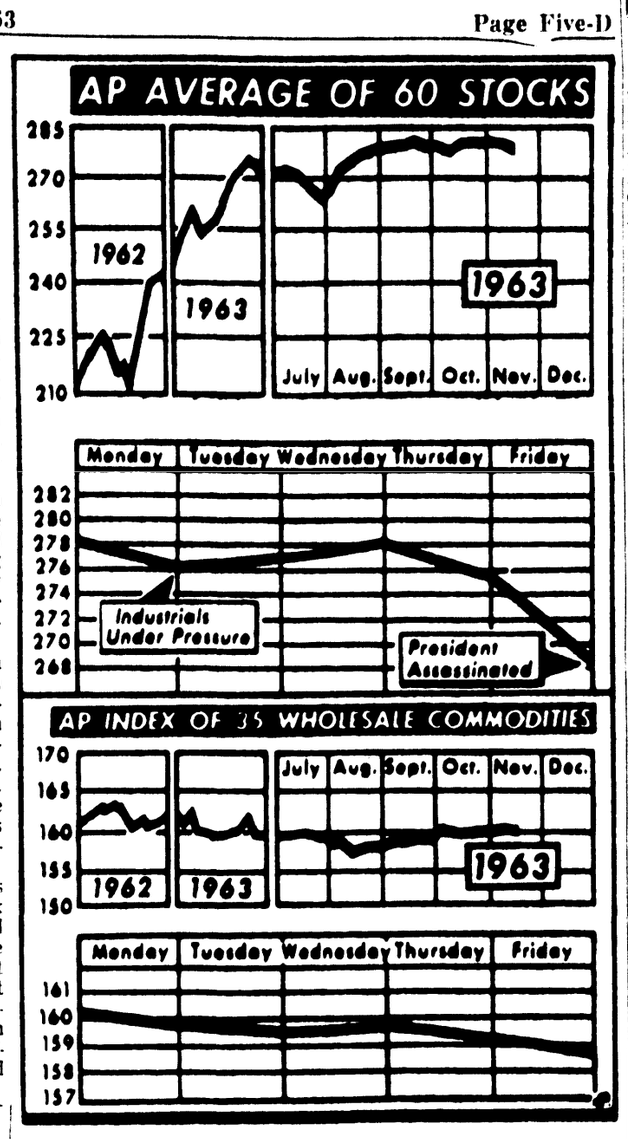
Assassination News Drops Stock Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Kennedy's assassination overshadowed all other developments during this news-crowded week and helped knock away approximately $15 billion from the market's paper value—about two thirds of this in the last abbreviated session.

The market, already shaken badly during the week by the suspension of two respected brokerage houses, was showing signs of recovering on Friday when one of the brokerage houses was reinstated to dealings.

At 1:39 p. m., a UPI flash reported that Kennedy had been wounded seriously—perhaps fatally. The news spread through Wall Street. Dow-Jones industrial average, up 3.31 at 1:30 p.m. had dropped 2.47 by 2 p. m. Trading during that hour alone amounted to 3,010,000 shares compared with Thursday's average pace of 590,000.

By 2:07 p. m., the governors of the New York Stock Exchange announced they had closed trading because of the flood of orders. They said it was their opinion "the market would reflect values more realistically after the public had an opportunity to appraise the effect of this great national and international tragedy."



NEWS OF PRESIDENT Kennedy's assassination caused the stock market to close early Friday. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped sharply this week. The average closed at 268.3, down from 278.1 a week ago, as shown in chart. The commodity index closed lower at 158.8 from 160.1 a week before. Food, livestock and agriculture components declined. Amite Wildcat Production Tests Held By Credo

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Production tests were underway Saturday at Credo Oil Company's Amite County wildcat, the Branch No. 1, sec. 7-4n-6e, two miles northwest of the Smithdale oil field.

Operators will test the commercial worth of a sand in the lower Tuscaloosa formation at 11,030-43 feet. The well was drilled to a total depth of 11,223 feet with production casing set at 11,100 feet.

Sun Oil Co. ran production tests at its Johnston Gas Unit No. 1, sec. 24-4n-7e, conformation well in the recently-found East Summit field of Pike County. Completion will be attempted in the shallow Sparts gas sand at 3,533 feet. The discovery well was Sun's No. 1, Paulk sec. 24-4n-7e, completed in early October from a Sparta sand at 3,534-38 feet. The well was completed flowing at the rate of 500,000 cubic feet of gas per day with a flowing pressure of 1,235 pounds.

In Madison County, J. L. Drilling Co. erected pumping unit at its reopened Madison County wildcat, the Hardeman No. 2, sec. 24-9n-1w, in an effort to complete as a commercial producer. Swabbing operations have recovered oil and salt water from perforations in the gas rock at 4,790-4,805 feet. The well was abandoned in August of this year by C. A. Lee after drilling to 10,495 feet. Present operator was attempting to clean the well out and test shows below 9,000 feet when oil was noted on mud pits at depth of 4,900 feet. Production casing was run in an effort to complete the well from the shallow zone. The wildcat is two miles north of the shallow Flora field.

Two important wildcat tests in the Hardrock Country of northeast Mississippi are drilling in Calhoun County. Pan American Petroleum Corp. was below 6,100 feet in its Hodges No. 1, sec. 4-22n-1:e, six miles southeast of Calhoun County the venture scheduled to be drilled to 10,000 feet. Pan American's second venture the Gates No. 1, sec. 14-12s-1e, three miles northeast of Reid is below 3,400 feet. Both tests are being drilled on 640 acre units granted by the Mississippi State Oil and Gas Board.

A new test is scheduled to get underway in the Siloam field of Clay County with American Exploration and Dev. Corp. rigging up at its McLemore No. 1, sec. 36-16s-1:e. The Siloam field is also located in the hardrock country of northeast Mississippi.

Humble Oil and Refining Co. is drilling below 10,000 feet in its Issquena County wildcat, the Anderson-Tully No. 1, sec. 1-7n-3e.

Market Moods Set By Bulls

CHICAGO (UPI)— The bulls set the market mood this week and paved the way for a sharp selloff of grain futures.

Compared to last Friday, wheat was off 5¾ to up 10⅝, corn off 1⅝-1⅝; oats off 1-2⅜; rye off 4¼-8⅛ and soybeans off 8¼-16.

News of President Kennedy's assassination topped disappointment over the continued delay in a wheat sale to Russia and word that a large eastern vegetable oil firm had filed a bankruptcy petition to hand soybeans a 16c loss. The downtrend in soybeans began last week when prices slid 10c.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Good, Bad News Rocks Wall Street

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

Spirits were raised in the Street and across the country when American Telephone & Telegraph Co. voted to split its common stock 2- for-1, raised the dividend and offered its 2.2 million stockholders rights to buy 12.25 million shares of stock.

The financial community was shaken up when the New York Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange suspended the trading privileges of two big brokerage houses because of financial difficulties.

AT&T, world's largest utility, will double the shares held by its biggest family of stockholders next June. It also will pass out an extra 10 cents in each quarterly dividend next year.

Its stock offering will give stockholders the right to buy one new share for each 20 held on Feb. 18. Proceeds will help finance a record $3.25-billion construction program in 1964.

The suspended brokerage firms were the old-line Ira Haupt & Co. and J. R. Williston & Beane, Inc.

They ran into financial troubles when Allied Crude Vegetable Oil & Refining Co. of Bayonne, N.J., was unable to meet calls for nearly $19 million in margin on trades in cottonseed and soybean oil.

Allied had filed bankruptcy proceedings on Tuesday, the day before the suspensions were announced.

Allied apparently had overextended its credit in buying commodity futures in anticipation of sales of vegetable oils to Soviet-bloc countries.

The price of the commodities dropped sharply in the last week as a deal to sell wheat to the Soviet Union stalled in Congress. The wheat deal was considered a prelude to commodity sales.

Haupt and Williston & Beane said their suspension would not mean losses to their customers.

Dividend increases were announced by three other major companies — Du Pont, Sears, Roebuck and American Motors.

Analyzing the health of the economy, the Morgan Guarantee Trust Co. of New York commented that, "The current round of business expansion now in its 33rd month, is putting on an impressive display of youthful pep."

"All of the broad economic indicators appear to be moving upward, not only assuring a good fourth-quarter gain in gross national product but hinting at considerable carryover momentum for early 1954," the bank said.

The Commerce Department reported that personal income in October ran at an annual rate of $470.3 billion, up $3 billion from September. However, intentions to buy new cars, while up from a few months ago, weren't as ambitious as a year earlier.

The intention of families to buy new homes slipped from the previous quarterly survey.

Housing starts and factory orders for durable goods—two important economic indicators — improved substantially in October. Private housing starts ran at an annual rate of 1,876,000 units, up 8 per cent from September and 22 per cent from a year earlier. Orders for durable goods returned to the record $17.9 billion set in April.

Despite a rash of strikes, the automobile industry turned out an estimated 188,200 passenger cars, compared with 177,067 last week and 133,010 a year ago.

Chevrolet became the first individual automaker to produce 10,000 passenger cars in a single day.

Steel production rose during the week for the fourth consecutive week, totaling 1,1979,000 tons, a gain of 1.1 per cent from the previous week.

Stocks Take Worst Loss Since 1962

NEW YORK (AP) — Shocked by President Kennedy's assassination, the stock market last week took its worst loss in 17 months.

Not since the week ended June 23, 1962 — when the big market plunge of that spring bottomed out — had stocks undergone such a decline.

This week the Dow Jones industrial average fell 28.51 to 711.49, compared with the fall of 38.99 in the June '62 week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week fell 9.9 to 268.3, its biggest fall since the 11.6 loss of the same June '62 week.

The decline, however, probably would have been far worse had the New York Stock Exchange — and other exchanges throughout the nation—not suspended trading a half hour after the first news came that the President had been shot. Trading was stopped an hour and 20 minutes before the usual closing time.

What might have happened can be guessed by the extent of the decline on Sept. 26, 1955, when President Eisenhower suffered a heart attack. On that day—a full session—the Dow industrials lost 31.89 and the AP average 11.4.

The news of the President's death came to a Wall Street which had been jittery most of the week.

The market, vulnerable to further "correction" of its big 1963 advance, sank sharply on Monday as pessimism spread concerning the fate of the administration's tax-cut program and as concern grew over the troubles American oil companies were having in various parts of the globe.

The popular market averages recovered somewhat on Tuesday and a fairly good rally was mounted on Wednesday. Stocks were buoyed by the surprisingly good news that American Telephone — the most widely-held stock of all—had proposed a 2-for-1 stock split, a dividend increase and a stock rights issue. The advance, however, was somewhat dampened by news that two old-line brokerage Houses had been suspended by the New York Stock Exchange because of financial deficiencies which violated exchange rules.

Stocks embarked on a vigorous rally Friday after declining Thursday. After this rally had been under way for something more than an hour news came of the shooting of the President.

Prices immediately barked away. The ticker tape ran 27 minutes late. Great losses were taken by many of the prime blue chips. A half hour after the news came, the exchange closed for the day. Other exchanges throughout the nation followed suit.

Volume was 26,862,771 shares compared with 226,664,551 the previous week. It was the largest since the week ended Nov. 2 when 28,722,840 shares changed hands.

Bond prices changed only slightly during the week before the dramatic halt in trading due to assassination of the President. Both U.S. government and corporate lists were narrowly mixed.

Corporate volume totaled $51,919,000 par value compared with $40,710,000 the previous week and was the most since $55,510,000 the week of May 28-June 1, 1962.

Johnson Makes Unannounced Church Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Lyndon B. Johnson slipped quietly away from his office Saturday to a special service at St. John's Episcopal church.

He and Mrs. Johnson, dressed in black, sat alone on the front pew of the church across from the White House.

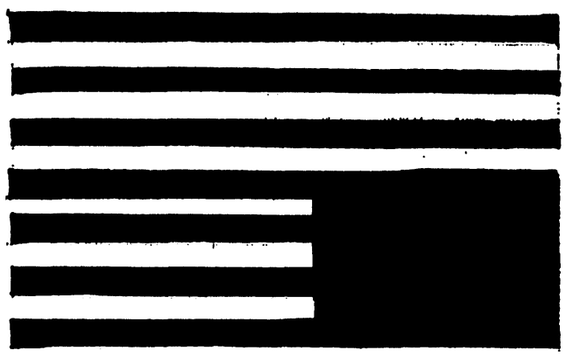
The ceremony which began about 12:15 lasted a little over 10 minutes. No announcement had been made that it would be held or that Johnson would attend.

The Rev. John C. Harper, rector of the church, told reporters the service was arranged early Saturday morning at Johnson's request.

Approximately 100 people were scattered in the small auditorium of the church. The Rev. Mr. Harper said he did not know how they could have known of the service—probably they just came to church on this day of sorrow for President Kennedy's death.

The rector read excerpts from the Episcopal Prayer Book.

In the prayers he asked God to grant the President the "authority, wisdom and strength to know and to do Thy will."



Is America in distress?

This upside-down flag is a signal all is not well with higher education.

Here's the reason. Colleges supply our leaders.

We need more leaders to keep our world place in science, business, living standards.

But the cost of leadership has soared. Colleges face higher costs and shortages. Many need classrooms, laboratories, teachers.

Keep America—and the colleges—out of trouble.

HELP THE COLLEGE OF YOUR CHOICE NOW!

To find out how the college crisis affects you, write to HIGHER EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36.

Barnett Issues Mourning Period In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI)—Gov. Ross Barnett Saturday issued a proclamation declaring a period of mourning in Mississippi until the late President Kennedy's funeral is completed Monday.

Barnett's proclamation also directed that all state offices close from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday out of respect to President Kennedy.

It requested that city and county offices and public shools also suspend operations temporarily on Monday.

Aldous Huxley Dies Of Cancer At Hollywood

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Author scholar Aldous Huxley, 69, the literary member of one of the world's foremost scientific families, died of cancer Friday night at his Hollywood home.

"Private services have already been conducted," said a brief announcement from a daughter-in-law, Judith Huxley.

Huxley's physician, Dr. Max Cutler, said he had been ill for about three years of cancer of the mouth, "which had extended."

The British-born titan of letters had made his home in Southern California since 1937.

The forthright author, who blazed a wide path through the world of letters in the 1920s and '30s, had a life-long pastime: taking man apart to see what makes him tick.

His best known work was "Brave New World," which sold nearly a million copies since its publication in 1932.

In it Huxley previewed the 25th century, drawing a chill picture of a godless, mechanized society where even babies arrive on a production line.

Accurately he foresaw television, jet planes, tranquilizing drugs and other medical advances.

Huxley wrote more than 40 books, including a dozen novels. Of these, "Point Counter-point," "Eyeless in Gaza" and "After Many a Summer Dies the Swan" were widely acclaimed and read.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a solution for those who have kitchen cabinets that are marred and the paint worn off around the handles.

I went to my dime store, bought some adhesive-backed paper and cut circles from it (using a dinner plate for a perfect circle). I removed the handles from the cabinets and applied the paper to the cabinet, replaced the handles, and presto! The kitchen looks like new.

I do suggest that people find nearest matching color to the paint used in the kitchen to avoid that spotty look.

We used imitation marble and it is absolutely beautiful.

William Cruse

* * *

That's about the greatest. Thanks, William.

Heloise

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

If you find that your rocking chair "travels across the room" . . . remedy that situation:

Buy two yards of VELVET ribbon (color makes no difference. I used black because that was the color of my chair).

Turn your chair upside down and brush some glue on the bottom of the rockers. Glue the whole rocker from tip to end.

Now . . . take your ribbon and place it on the glue from the tip of the rocker to the end and cut it off with a pair of scissors. Do the same on the other rocker. Make sure the velvet is facing YOU.

After this is COMPLETELY dry, just turn your chair right side up again and you can rock from here to China, without leaving the room!

Derby

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

I have found an excellent way to fry pieces of meat and fowl.

I use a two-pound coffee can and fill it one-third full of flour, salt, pepper and seasonings.

Close lid after putting in your chicken or other meat and just shake the can! No mess, and the flour can be reused if sifted.

Shirley Osborne

DEAR HELOISE:

If you ever need an ice bag late at night—which is usually the case—did you know that you could crush some ice cubes and stuff them in your rubber glove? Just twist the arm section, turn it back, and tie it with a rubber band and you have a mighty good emergency ice bag.

I have found, too, that instead of putting pure ice in the glove if you add a little water—approximately four tablespoons full—that the glove will not be too cold when applied.

Mrs. E. H. B.

* * *

I tried this. You are exactly right! Thank you for briefing us on emergencies. We never know when they will happen, do we?

Heloise

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

Before reshaping or making flower beds around a new home (or an old one), lay out your garden hose first as a pattern for the outline of the beds.

Since curves are most fashionable now you can get a good idea of exactly how you want the bed shaped. Once it's dug it's pretty permanent . . . according to the man of the house. Of course the little wife thinks you can reshape them each week!

Take your spade and make an indentation on the inside of the hose the exact shape of the curve you have outlined. This pays off in the long run. I know. This is my third new home.

S. P.

CAR WAX TIPS

DEAR HELOISE:

Before discarding that old worn-out bath mat . . . consider keeping it and cutting it into small pieces when polishing the car!

I have found that those old chenille rugs and bath mats cannot be beaten! They are excellent when used for that part of your polishing job. They may either be washed and reused, or thrown away.

Henry S.

Dear Henry:

Did you know that after the wax has been applied to your car, a little dry starch sprinkled on the polishing rag will make the job easier? And here are a few more hints that have come in from our fabulous collection of car waxers:

Never wax the car in the sunshine. This not only causes streaks but it's harder on the finish.

If your car has road film, a good cleaner must be used first. It is useless—especially on a colored car—to try to apply wax over a car that has road film. This also causes streaks.

Heloise

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

For heaven's sake, would some bachelor, wife or widow woman . . . please tell this widower how to keep my waffles from sticking to my waffle iron?

I just recently started keeping house and would love to know the secret. I eat waffles every Sunday morning and I have yet to have a perfect one. They either split or stick when I open the lid.

I would appreciate any help.

Ronald Hume

Somebody take pity on this man! Drop an answer on a post card to Heloise, care of this paper. Letters do not have to be signed to appear in this column.

Heloise

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

A good way to keep your sofa and chair away from painted walls is to attach door stops.

I screwed a door stop on each end of our sofa at the back . . . rather low so they only touch the base boards.

I have used this method for years, and the children cannot push furniture to the painted walls where it rubs and mars them.

Mrs. J. Gleeson

GRANDMA'S NEW IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

When I replace our worn-out twin fitted sheets for my children, I rip out the top of the sheet and sew in two yards of 36-inch percale PRINT. My girls absolutely love them!

For the boys' room I use stripes or boys' prints.
